Southerners Still Ponder Decision on UMW Terms

'Don't Like' Pact Signed by Northern Coal Men, One Says; Meet Again Today

By Stirling F. Green
Associated Press Reporter

The Southern coal industry was undecided last night whether to grant John L. Lewis the fat one-year contract offered by Northern operators or risk a soft coal strike next Tuesday.

"We've reached no decision," said a spokesman for the Southern Coal Producers Association, which met for three hours and then recessed until 3 p. m. (EST) today.

"But we don't like it," added one influential member of the group privately.

He referred to the tentative agreement between Lewis and the Northern owners setting up a 44½-cent hourly basic wage increase and an employer-paid levy of 10 cents a ton for the miners' welfare fund.

UMW Vote Today

The 200-man policy committee of the AFL United Mine Workers will vote on ratification of that contract at 3 p. m. today. Ratification is considered generally a foregone conclusion.

But not until approximately that hour—when all terms are finally fixed—do the Southern operators expect to learn exactly what concessions UMW will demand of them to bring the miners back to the pits at the end of their current 10-day vacation.

Officers and lawyers of the UMW and the Northern producers were deep in conference yesterday at UMW headquarters, ironing out the language of the contract. A UMW spokesman said the meeting will continue today.

Western Agreement Seen

Western operators—those of Illinois, Indiana, Iowa and other Western mining areas—probably will accede to the Northern terms, in the view of Federal labor officials and of some of the Western mine owners themselves.

This would leave the Southern commercial mines virtually alone, if they choose not to submit to the Northern terms. The "captive" mines—those owned by steel companies in both Northern and Southern States—banded with the Northern operators in seeking early agreement with Lewis.

The Southern association represents upward of 25 per cent of the country's coal production and is the largest single unit among the operators. It split with the Northern operators last December, and in the recent negotiations has hovered on the sidelines.

"All we know about the contract is what we read in the newspapers," said one Southern representative. "We have had no direct information from the union and none from the Northern operators."

Some were frankly resentful of

Drunken Driving Charge Denied by Gael Sullivan

Wakefield, R. I., July 4 (AP).—Gael Sullivan, 42, executive director of the Democratic National Committee, pleaded innocent to a charge of drunken driving tonight.

Police Chief Walter L. McNulty said Sullivan was charged with drunken driving after his auto collided with a car operated by James Earl King, 47, of Foster Center, R. I., on a curve last night.

Damage to Sullivan's car was negligible, but King's car was smashed badly, Chief McNulty said.

The police chief quoted a report by Dr. Henry B. Potter as saying: "I found this man (Sullivan) under the influence of liquor and unfit to drive a motor vehicle."

The Democratic Party leader, who was alone at the time of the accident, appeared in court with his wife, Atty. Peter W. McKiernan of Providence, and an unidentified woman.

Dr. A. G. of Wilson Blvd., Arlington, learned last week how The Post's "Business Opportunities" section brings together people who want to buy a business and those who have one to sell. He advertised his photofinishing laboratory in two other papers—without a reply. Then he listed the business in The Post and sold it the second day.

End of a Holiday Joyride . . .

BLOODY TRAIL—Two men lie injured on the pavement at Wisconsin ave. and M sts. nw., before dawn yesterday. They are Carroll Mills, 21, of 3426 N. Washington blvd., and Eddie Hollingsworth, 21, of 924 N. Stafford st., both of Arlington, Va. They and a third man, riding in a coupe smashed into the rear of a streetcar. Spectators gave first aid and the injured were released after treatment at Emergency Hospital.

171st Year of Independence

225,000 Witness Fireworks At Big Monument Celebration

Stay-at-Homes Take It Easy as Others Jam Beaches, Parks

Relaxed as a beachcomber on a holiday, Washington took on the air of a sleepy Southern town yesterday.

What was left of the population—and that wasn't much—relaxed in shorts at home, lolled at nearby parks and playgrounds or sauntered about at a snail's pace.

But by 7:30 p. m., thousands had come out of seclusion to attend a traditional July 4 fireworks exhibit at the Monument Grounds. Smaller communities in surrounding areas held their own Independence Day observances.

The weather was perfect—the temperature a pleasant 84 degrees at its peak. Today and tomorrow will be just as nice, the Weatherman promised.

Like everything else, even traffic had slowed down yesterday. Union Station business was reported "a little better than normal," but Greyhound Bus Co. spokesmen said travel was "exceptionally light."

Most airlines were "booked solid" in both directions, however, a survey showed.

Among the most popular spots in Washington with residents and holiday visitors alike were Rock Creek Park, the Zoo, the pools and the monuments. Park Police estimated 40,000 visited the Zoo, more than 3300 the Washington Monument and some 8000 the Lincoln Memorial.

Glen Echo personnel estimated 2300 had stopped by for a dip by 4 p. m., compared with 1800 on an average Sunday.

But the biggest crowds jammed nearby beaches.

Maryland's three Sandy Point-Matapeake ferries shuttled back and forth across Chesapeake Bay as fast as they could to handle crowds going to the Eastern Shore for the holiday.

Ocean City had no special events, and its was just as well. There wasn't room on the boardwalk for more people. The Chamber of Commerce hesitated at calling it the largest crowd ever there for a holiday, but seldom had there been a larger one.

Hundreds of persons were left without sleeping accommodations when hotels and rooming houses overflowed. Hundreds more were able to find shelter only in nearby towns.

Television Broadcasts July Fourth Program For First Time Here

Beneath the towering backdrop of the Washington Monument, a throng estimated at 225,000 last night watched Washington's annual Fourth of July observance, "The Cavalcade of Freedom."

There was oratory, music, pageantry and that must of all Fourths—fireworks.

Benevolent weather blessed this first Fourth of July celebration at the Monument grounds ever to be televised. The complete program was broadcast by Dumont and made available to television sets here and in New York City.

Capt. Mark Raspberry, head of the Park Police, estimated the crowd gathered for the display at 225,000 after a survey from the top of the Washington Monument. Inspector Arthur E. Miller, head of the Metropolitan Police Traffic Bureau, agreed this estimate was about right.

The crowd was slightly less than in previous years.

Many Other Observances

While the program at the Washington Monument Grounds was the top one of the day, many other observances and special events were held in the Washington area.

The United States Army Band, under the leadership of Capt. Hugh Curry, presented a night concert on the east steps of the Capitol.

Communities which held special programs included Takoma Park, Bethesda and Hillandale in Maryland, Fairfax County in Virginia and Metropolis View in the District.

Jacqueline Clark of Arlington, Va., reigned as "Miss CAP" at a Fourth of July pageant staged by the Civil Air Patrol at Baltimore's Municipal Airport.

Washingtonians who visited the Naval Gun Factory yesterday were permitted to inspect eight landing craft and one patrol vessel of the Navy, several of which made history during World War II. The craft can also be inspected today and tomorrow during afternoon hours.

Parade in Takoma Park

More than 20,000 persons lined streets to watch the colorful parade which opened Takoma Park's twenty-sixth annual Fourth of July celebration.

Following the parade, patriotic exercises were held in North Takoma Park with Maj. Gen. Orval R.

A 58-year-old woman and a 2-year-old child were killed here last night when a speeding, hospital-bound automobile raced through a red light into the side of the car in which they were riding.

The struck automobile rolled over in the street three times, spilling out five occupants, and came to rest against a streetlight pole, at N. Capitol and H sts. The accident occurred at about 7:45 p. m.

Dead on arrival at Casualty Hospital was Melvin Plater, age 2, of 1612 D st. se.

Fatally injured was Mrs. Beatrice Chambers, 58, of the same address, relationship not known, who died a few minutes after arrival at the same hospital.

Hurrying to Hospital

The accident marred the Greater Washington area traffic fatality record for the holiday, which up until then was without death.

Edward Butcher, 26, of 715 1st st. nw., told police he was hurrying his friend, Clarence Moss, 37, of the same address, to a hospital with a nose hemorrhage.

Butcher said he drove through a red light at the intersection with horn blowing, only to crash full in the middle of the other automobile. Injuries to Butcher and Moss were not believed serious.

Two boys in the overturned car were treated at Casualty Hospital. They were identified as Reginald Thomas, 7, and his brother, Aaron, 5, both of 319 15th st. se. Also thrown from the overturning car were its driver, Oscar Crowder, and his wife, Mrs. Gloria Crowder, 17, of 317 15th st. se. The dead boy was their nephew.

Also hurt was Mrs. Mary Crowder, of 317 15th st. se., the driver's

Three Girls Drown at Va. Picnic

Cousins Disappear In Sight of Parents; Artificial Respiration By Father Futile

Three 8-year-old girls, at a family reunion picnic, were swept to their deaths yesterday while wading in Scott's Run, Potomac River branch, 2½ miles north of Langley, Va.

The triple tragedy occurred at 2 p. m., within sight and hearing of three generations of the families of the victims. Drowned were:

Catherine Lynn, the elder of the two daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Lynn, at whose rustic riverside lodge the reunion was being held.

Mary Hope Pharis, her cousin, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin J. Pharis, of Laurel, Md.

Jane Ann Hearn, another cousin, the only child of Mr. and Mrs. William Hearn, of South Wood rd., Baltimore.

Lose Footing in Pool

Family witnesses said the happy, squealing trio were treading about in the shallow waters at the water's edge when they apparently stepped into a deep pool. The strong current there swept them off their feet.

"One minute," sobbed Mrs. Hearn, "they were laughing and happy. The next minute, they were gone."

Harry Hearn, 19, of Laurel, Md., an uncle of the three victims, ran into the run and recovered all three bodies not far downstream from the edge of the deep water. Other relatives were searching farther downstream.

The dead Hearn girl's father, a qualified Red Cross expert at artificial respiration, began resuscitation and directed others in vain attempts to revive the children. They were officially pronounced dead more than two hours later by Dr. T. B. McCord, Fairfax County, Va., acting coroner.

Too Quick to Call Out

"They didn't even have a chance to call for help," said the uncle who found their bodies.

The Lynn family reunion was being held outside the cabin home of Louis Lynn, local artist, and his wife, Ruth. Their second child, Laura Jane, 6, had not been permitted to join the waders because she was "too young," her parents said.

A great-grandmother, grandmother and two great-aunts were among the more than 20 members of the Lynn family picnicking at the river home.

After attempts to revive the trio failed, the McLean, Va., volunteer fire department rescue squad was called.

The rescue squad used inhalators for over an hour without success. The bodies were removed to the Money & King funeral home, Vienna, Va.

From an earlier Potomac River tragedy, grapplers yesterday recovered the body of Vernon Richard Gallahan, 20, of 909 Cameron st., Alexandria, Va. He was drowned after diving in water over his depth from a rowboat off Jones Point, Md., Wednesday afternoon.

The body was snagged at 9:30 a. m. from a small power boat manned by the dead man's brother, Robert, and a fisherman, Gardner Arnold of New Alexandria, Va.

Gallahan, a grocery clerk, is survived also by a brother, Elwood, who was with him at the time of the drowning; his wife, Elouise, and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Elzie Gallahan of Route 1, near Annandale, Va.

Cases Disappear Into Files

Numerous 'Little People' Find Pleas for Police Aid Are Vain

Hundreds of Washington's "little people" have vainly sought police action against thugs and robbers.

Analysis of robbery cases concealed by the Police Department, either by holding the cases at the precincts or burying them in secret files in the robbery squad, discloses the futile effect of many ordinary citizens to get effective police help.

Of the more than 1350 robberies occurring in Washington in the 11 May 31, 1947, only 761 were dismonths between July 1, 1946, and closed in official statistics. Over 600 complaints never saw the light of day. Many of these cases involved persons of outside residence, transients or local residents unlikely to have influence or prestige enough to demand and compel official notice of their cases.

Failure of these "little people" to get their cases officially recorded frequently meant that the Police Department made far less than maximum effort to catch the criminals who robbed them. Sometimes their cases were unknown to any precinct stations except the one in which the crime occurred. If recorded at the central bureau in accordance with regulations, all precincts would have been enlisted in the search.

Here are some more typical cases withheld from official files from the Congress, the public and the FBI's Uniform Crime reports.

On February 25, 1947, Miss Gladys A. Baker 253 14 Pl. ne., a telephone operator at the Reconstruction Finance Corporation reported to police that her pocketbook containing $37 was snatched from her arm at the corner of Warren and C sts. ne.

Miss Baker, when contacted by a Post reporter, said three detectives had visited her the night the robbery occurred. Subsequently, she said, she was called to a police line-up of suspects, none of whom was the culprit. For the past several months has heard nothing from the police, she asserted.

There is no record of her report in the police statistical bureau. Her complaint was carried in the "M" file in the Robbery Squad.

On November 22, 1946, Oscar V. Jackson, 26, 5523 Bell pl. ne., a cab driver, picked up three men in Marine uniforms at 16th and K sts. nw. They asked to be taken to Bethesda Naval Hospital. One of the men sitting in the front seat with Jackson pulled out a pistol and made him stop the cab, he said. The trio then forced him to lie on the floor in the rear of the cab while they drove him to

But It's Unofficial

Gov. Dewey Begins Nine-State Campaign Tour Through West

Albany, N. Y., July 4 (AP).—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, leading contender for the 1948 Republican presidential nomination, leaves tonight on a nine-State 4000-mile unofficial campaign trip to line up delegates for the GOP convention next year.

Accompanied by Mrs. Dewey and their two sons, he will visit Oklahoma, Missouri, Colorado, Utah, Montana, Wyoming, Idaho, Illinois and Michigan before returning here August 1.

Dewey maintained that the trip was "just to show the boys the wonders of the West," but he acknowledged that he would confer with Republican leaders in the nine States where his supporters hope to win over a large bloc of convention delegates.

Dewey, making his first stop in Missouri, President Truman's home State, will be at Salt Lake City July 13 through 16 for the conference of Governors. He will preside over a committee dealing with taxes.

Although 11 reporters will make the trip with Dewey, they were told by his press representative that it would be incorrect to dateline stories, "Aboard the Dewey Special" or Aboard the Dewey campaign train." They were handed an outline of the tour which was captioned: "Schedule of Governors' Conference Trip."

The Dewey party, including his secretary, Paul E. Lockwood; James C. Hagerty, press secretary, and two State troopers will arrive in St. Louis tomorrow afternoon and proceed immediately to Sapulpa, Okla., for a three-day visit with Mrs. Dewey's parents.

Dewey will be in President Truman's home State again when he

Truman, Bevin Warn Russian Attitude Halts World Reconstruction

Briton Says Soviet Provokes Lovers Of Peace; Marshall Plan Bids Go Out

London, July 4 (U.P.).—Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin warned Russia implicitly tonight that "you can carry provocation too far" and said "we are tired of those who think they can play with peace-loving people too long."

Bevin made his speech at an American July 4 dinner a few hours after British and French envoys had delivered formal invitations to 22 European countries to attend the Marshall Plan conference in Paris July 12.

In addition to Bevin's plain speaking, the British Foreign Office warned Russia by implication that any attempt to intimidate countries which might wish to attend the Paris conference would be considered a violation of their sovereignty.

Emphasize Urgency

The invitations, emphasizing the urgency of the European economic situation, asked acceptance or rejection of the invitation by next Thursday, and called for committees to start work by July 15 on a four-year European recovery plan.

A report is to be made to the United States by September 1 on Europe's available resources and needs during the next four years.

[Officials of five governments promptly announced their acceptance. Reports from four other countries indicated that they, too, would join. No official replies had yet been submitted, but announcements of acceptance of the invitation were made in Denmark, Greece, The Netherlands, Portugal, and Italy, while official comment in Eire, Switzerland, Turkey and Belgium strongly indicated their representatives also would be present.—Editor's note.]

His First Statement

Vevin's speech was the first statement he had made since his return from Paris, where Britain and France decided to go ahead with the Marshall plan despite Russia's boycott.

"We are tired of those who think they can play with peace-loving peoples too long," Bevin said. "They must study their psychology.

"The time may come when we may say we have had enough. Then I say to my friends, do not provoke that situation."

Both the United States and Britain, Bevin said, desire to devise a plan "to settled everything on reason and discussion."

"We will go on discussing until we do agree," he added.

Bevin paised Secretary of State George C. Marshall as "honest and direct," although "he, like me, had not been trained to subtleties in diplomacy."

Bevin Finds "Obsession"

"I find in dealing with the United States that there is a great obsession . . . to build a world without the constant threat of war," Bevin continued.

He urged European peoples to "get together and put up your plans."

"Who could be suspicious of the honesty of the (Marshall) plan?" he said. "We take the American Nation at its word. I accept your challenge. I'll get on with the job."

American Ambassador Lewis W. Douglas introduced Bevin.

Invitations to the Paris conference call for the setting up of a committee of cooperation and subcommittees on food and agriculture, fuel and power, iron and steel and transport.

A senior Foreign Office spokesman, discussing the conference, said:

"Mr. Molotov has stressed that the great powers should not influence the sovereignty of lesser powers. That is an excellent prin-

Marshall Plan Wins Backing For Ramadier

Paris, July 4 (AP).—Premier Paul Ramadier won a vote of confidence from the French National Assembly tonight after debate in which the Communists attacked and Ramadier defended the Marshall aid-Europe proposal.

The premier won 331 votes, 21 more than an absolute majority, while 246 opposition votes were cast, all by the Communists and the Rightist Republican Party of Liberty (PRL), both of which are outside the government.

In the course of the debate on Ramadier's economic policy, Communist Secretary Jacques Duclos assailed the government for "accepting a policy (the Marshall program) the essential basis of which is the reconstruction of Germany."

"To collaborate with America is to collaborate with peace," Ramadier retorted.

Eichelberger, Mundt Differ On Europe Aid

Stop Helping Those Who Ignore Plan, Says Congressman

Sharply differing views were expressed here yesterday in connection with the Marshall plan for economic reconstruction of Europe.

Representative Carl Mundt (R., S. Dak.) proposed that Congress withhold any further economic aid from countries which decline to participate in the Marshall plan.

At the same time, Clark Eichelberger, representing the American Association for the United Nations, declared that "by-passing of the United Nations" in the reconstruction undertaking "has had tragic consequences." He said that holding the British-French-Russian conference in Paris this week, which broke down when Russia refused to go along with the program, "was a grave mistake in procedure." He declared that the matter should be presented to the Economic Commission for Europe, meeting at Geneva today.

Would Avert Veto

Had such a course been followed, Eichelberger said, instead that of calling the Paris conference, "Mr. Molotov would not have had a veto as at the three-power conference."

"Futhermore," he said, "the split between East and West would not have appeared so serious."

"All European states, members of the United Nations, including Russia, are represented on the Economic Commission for Europe. The procedures of this commission are already set. It has already started gathering the very data which must be the basis of response to Secretary Marshall's suggestion.

"Had the Marshall proposition been considered by this commission, the plan of action could have been adopted by a majority without emphasizing the split between East and West that grew out of the failure of the three-power conference in Paris.

"In the effort which the British and French governments are now making without Russia to secure the cooperation of as many European states as possible in the plan for European economic reconstruction, it is to be hoped that these governments will now use the Economic Commission for Europe. . . .

"By-passing of the United Nations in this instance has had tragic consequences, but there is still time to retrieve the situation

President Gives 4 Requisites For Peace of World in Monticello Speech

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

Charlottesville, Va., July 4.—In plain and forceful language directed obviously at Russia, President Truman today described as "folly" a nationalism so extreme that it blocks the peaceful reconstruction of the world.

He termed "fallacious" the grounds on which Russia declined at the Paris conference this week to participate in the Marshall plan for economic rehabilitation of Europe, "that this would mean interference by some nations in the internal affairs of others."

He hit at "organized mistrust" and called for an end of "propaganda attacks upon other nations."

Speaks at Jefferson Home

The President chose for his setting the home of Thomas Jefferson, author of the Declaration of American Independence and militant apostle of the rights of man. He chose for his time the 171st anniversary of the birth of American liberties and the 121st of Jefferson's death.

Mr. Truman laid down four "requisites for peace among nations" and then, speaking in grim and measured voice, declared that "some nations" have flaunted or ignored these principles.

They were:

1. Common adherence to the principle that governments derive their just powers from the consent of the governed, a principle to which "the constitutions of virtually all members of the United Nations subscribe."

"In many countries, however," he said, "progress toward that goal is extremely slow. In other countries progress in that direction is nonexistent. And in still others, the course of government is in the opposite direction."

2. Common respect for the basic human rights with its close relationship with maintenance of world peace.

"So long as the basic rights of men are denied in any substantial portion of the earth," he declared, "men everywhere must live in fear of their own rights and their own security—the maintenane of peace will depend to an important degree upon the progress that is made within nations and by the United States in protecting human rights."

Maximum Freedom Urged

3. The free and full exchange of knowledge, ideas and information among the peoples of the earth and maxmum freedom in international travel and communication.

"Unfortunately," Mr. Truman said, "a number of countries maintain barriers against the flow of information and ideas into, or out of, their territories. Some of them, behind barriers of their own creation, present to their citizens carefully selected or distorted versions of the facts about other countries. They teach and broadcast distrust and scorn of thier neighbors.

"These activities of organized mistrust lead the people away from peace and unity."

4. For "nations to devise their economic and financial policies to support a world economy rather than separate nationalistic economies," a principle only recently rejected by Soviet Premier Molotov at Paris.

Cooperation Held Needed

After pointing out that the United States had already contributed nearly 20 billion dollars to world recovery, Mr. Truman declared it was not enough "for one nation to live up to its responsibilities" but that "the cooperation of all nations is necessary."

"Yet," he went on, in unmistakable reference to Russia's refusal to join with France and Britain in carrying out the Marshall plan for European reconstruction by economic cooperation, "certain nations today are withholding their support of reconstruction plans on the ground that this would mean interference by some nations in the internal affairs of others.

"This is as fallacious as the re-

Isolation Ruined Confederacy, Says Eisenhower at Vicksburg

Vicksburg, Miss., July 4 (AP).—General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower cited as an object lesson for world cooperation here today the history of this ancient citadel of the South, whose last conquering general 84 years ago became President of the United States.

As honor speaker at the Carnival of the Confederacy in Vicksburg, Eisenhower attributed failure of the cause of the South in the Civil War to isolation from the remainder of the world. He offered this as an example for the present necessity for international interplay.

But of the presidential possibilities wrapped up in the history that was recalled today—the surrender of Vicksburg on July 4, 1863, to General U. S. Grant, the eighteenth Chief Executive, Eisenhower drew no comparisons.

In answer to questions at a news conference as to his "possible political aspirations," the general said:

"I wouldn't have the effrontery to say I wouldn't be President of the United States. No one has asked me."

He followed immediately with a reiteration of his previously expressed position that he had no political aspirations.

He said the spirit, skill and stamina of the army of the South were outweighed by a fact that "must be accepted as an axiom in world relations."

"A nation's success in war and peace demands participation in war and peace," he added.

The general was welcomed by Gov. Fielding L. Wright and Mayor E. W. Haning, who told him "Vicksburg recognizes you as its real conqueror and gladly accepts unconditional surrender."

Text of President Truman's Holiday Speech at Monticello

GOVERNOR TUCK, Mr. Houston, distinguished guests, fellow countrymen:

It is fitting that we should come to Monticello to celebrate the anniversary of our independence. Here lived Thomas Jefferson, author of the Declaration of Independence. Here Thomas Jefferson died on July 4, 1826, 50 years from the day the Declaration was adopted by the Continental Congress and proclaimed to the world.

The Declaration of Independence was an expression of democratic philosophy that sustained American patriots during the Revolution and has ever since inspired men to fight to the death for their "unalienable rights."

The standard phrase used by writers of Jefferson's day to describe man's essential rights was "Life, liberty and property." But to Jefferson, human rights were more important than property rights, and the phrase, as he wrote it in the Declaration of Independence, became "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness."

The laws and the traditions of the Colonies in 1776 were designed to support a monarchial system rather than a democratic society. To Thomas Jefferson the American Revolution was far more than a struggle for independence. It was a struggle for democracy.

Within a few weeks after independence had been proclaimed at Philadelphia, Jefferson resigned his seat in the Continental Congress and returned to his place in the Virginia Legislature. There he began his monumental work of laying the foundation of an independent democracy.

WITHIN a few years the Virginia Legislature, under Jefferson's leadership, instituted full religious freedom, abolished the laws which had permitted great estates to pass undivided from generation to generation, prohibited the importation of slaves, revised the civil and criminal code of laws, and established a general system of public education. These acts, according to Jefferson, eradicated every fiber of ancient and future aristocracy. These acts formed the basis for a truly democratic government.

Jefferson knew that it was necessary to provide in law the requisites for the survival of an independent democracy. He knew that it was not enough merely to set forth a Declaration of Independence.

Two years ago the United States and 50 other nations joined in signing that great declaration of interdependence known as the Charter of the United Nations. We did so because we had learned, at staggering cost, that the nations of the world cannot live in peace and prosperity if, at the same time, they try to live in isolation. We have learned that nations are interdependent, and that recognition of our dependence upon one another is essential to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness of all mankind.

It is now the duty of all nations to converge their policies toward common goals of peace. Of course, we cannot expect all nations, with different histories, institutions, and economic conditions, to agree at once upon common ideals and policies. But it is not too much to expect that all nations should create, each within its own borders, the requisites for the growth of world-wide harmony.

THE first requisite of peace among nations is common adherence to the principle that governments derive their just powers from the consent of the governed. There must be genuine effort to translate that principle into reality.

The respective constitutions of virtually all members of the United Nations subscribe to the proposition that governments derive their just powers from the consent of the governed. In many countries, however, progress toward that goal is extremely slow. In other countries, progress in that direction is nonexistent. And in still others, the course of government is in the opposite direction.

It is necessary, if we are to have peace, that the peoples of the earth know each other, that they trade with each other and trust each other, and that they move toward common ideals. And yet, when governments do not derive their powers from the consent of the governed, these requirements are usually denied, and peoples are kept in isolation.

The stronger the voice of a people in the formation of national policies, the less the danger of aggression. When all governments derive their just powers from the consent of the governed, there will be enduring peace.

A second requisite of peace among nations is common respect for basic human rights. Jefferson knew the relationship between respect for these rights and peaceful democracy. We see today with equal clarity the relationships between respect for human rights and the maintenance of world peace. So long as the basic rights of men are denied in any substantial portion of the earth, men everywhere must live in fear of their own rights and their own security.

We have learned much in the last 15 years from Germany, Italy and Japan about the intimate relationship of dictatorship, aggression, and the loss of human rights. The problem of protecting human rights has been recognized in the Charter of the United Nations, and a commission is studying the subject at this time.

No country has yet reached the absolute in protecting human rights. In all countries, certainly including our own, there is much to be accomplished. The maintenance of peace will depend to an important degree upon the progress that is made within nations and by the United Nations in protecting human rights.

The third requisite of peace is the free and full exchange of knowledge, ideas and information among the peoples of the earth, and maximum freedom in international travel and communication.

Jefferson well understood this principle. On one occasion he said, "If a nation expects to be ignorant and free in a state of peace, it expects what never was and never will be." Today, we can paraphrase these words in international terms as follows: "If the nations of the world expect to live in ignorance and suspicion of each other in a state of peace, they expect what never was and never will be."

Many members of the United Nations have jointly created and now support the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization for the purpose of promoting the free exchange of ideas and information among the peoples of the earth. In the preamble to the constitution of this organization the member nations have declared that "the wide diffusion of culture and the education of humanity for justice and liberty and peace . . . constitute a sacred duty which all the nations must fulfill."

THE UNITED STATES has taken a leading role in furthering this ideal. We believe that it is essential to a peaceful and prosperous world. We believe that common knowledge and understanding among men can be greatly expanded in the years to come. We have the mechanical facilities—the radio, television, airplanes—for the creation of a world-wide culture. We have only to set them to work for international good.

Unfortunately, a number of countries maintain barriers against the flow of information and ideas into, or out of, their territories. Many of them restrict international travel. Some of them, behind barriers of their own creation, present to their citizens carefully selected or distorted versions of the facts about other countries. They teach and broadcast distrust and scorn of their neighbors.

These activities of organized mistrust lead the people away from peace and unity. They are a far cry from contributing to the full and free exchange of knowledge and ideas which we need if we are to have a peaceful world.

The first step to end ignorance and suspicion would be to stop propaganda attacks upon other nations. The second step would be to let down the barriers to information, ideas and travel. The final step would be to cooperate with other nations who are so earnestly endeavoring to increase friendly understanding among men.

Here at the home of Thomas Jefferson, who dedicated his life to liberty, education and intellectual freedom, I appeal to all nations and to all peoples to break down the artificial barriers that separate them. I appeal for tolerance and restraint in the mutual relations of nations and peoples. And I appeal for a free flow of knowledge and ideas that alone can lead to a harmonious world.

The fourth requisite of peace is that nations shall devise their economic and financial policies to support a world economy rather than separate nationalistic economies.

It is important to recognize that the United States has heavy responsibilities here. The United States is the greatest industrial Nation of the world, the leading exporter of agricultural products, and the greatest creditor Nation. Europe and Asia, on the other hand, have been devastated by war, and with insufficient funds and materials are struggling desperately with mountainous problems of reconstruction. In this situation the economic and financial policies maintained by the United States are of crucial importance.

We have contributed nearly 20 billion dollars since the war to world relief, reconstruction, and stabilization. We have taken the lead in the establishment of the World Bank and the World Stabilization Fund. We have cooperated fully in the work of the Economic and Social Council of the United Nations. We have authorized aid to Greece and Turkey. We have made generous loans through our Export-Import Bank. And we have suggested to European nations that further requests for American aid should be on the basis of a sound plan for European construction.

Our representatives are in Geneva negotiating a series of tariff-reducing trade agreements. They are seeking agreement with other nations on the charter of an International Trade Organization designed to bring fairness and a spirit of cooperation into the trade relations of nations.

I BELIEVE that the United States is living up to its responsibilities for creating the economic conditions of peace. We must realize that these responsibilities are continuous. Even the emergency aspects of the job are not yet behind us.

It is not enough, however, for one nation to live up to its responsibilities for aiding reconstruction and for cooperating in the production and the exchange of goods. The cooperation of all nations is necessary if the job is to be done. To the extent that any nation falls behind, to that extent will urgent needs for food, clothing and shelter remain unfilled.

Yet, certain nations today are withholding their support of reconstruction plans, on the ground that this would mean interference by some nations in the internal affairs of others. This is as fallacious as the refusal of a man to enter a profitable business partnership on the ground that it would involve interference in his private affairs.

Surely after two World Wars nations should have learned the folly of a nationalism so extreme as to block cooperative economic planning among nations for peaceful reconstruction.

The life of Thomas Jefferson demonstrates, to a remarkable degree, the strength and power of truth.

He believed, with conviction, that in this young Nation the survival of freedom depended upon the survival of truth.

And so it is with the world.

As the spirit of freedom and the spirit of truth spread throughout the world, so shall there be understanding and justice among men.

This is the foundation for peace—a peace which is not merely the absence of wars, but a deep, lasting peace built upon mutual respect and tolerance.

Our goal must be—not peace in our time—but peace for all time.

Truman Hits Russia Policy

fusal of a man to enter a profitable business partnership on the ground that it would involve interference in his private affairs."

The President spoke from the east portico of Jefferson's home, Monticello, to a crowd of some 2500 which sat in the blazing sun and interrupted him frequently with applause. At his back sat a collection of State and national dignitaries. Down the steps on both sides of his rostrum stood a squad from Charlottesville's Monticello guards, arrayed in colonial uniforms of buff and blue faced with red and wearing three-cornered hats with red, white and blue pompons.

Carried Garand Rifles

They carried modern Garand rifles, as far from Washington's Army as the Normandy beachhead which they stormed three years ago as K Company, 116th Infantry, 29th Division.

After his address, Mr. Truman motored down a winding mountain road to a small cemetery where he placed a wreath on the grave of Jefferson. Then he sped through Charlottesville, along streets solidly lined with cheering citizens, to the University of Virginia.

There he climbed the long steps to the rotunda, designed by Jefferson, went inside and signed the guest register: "Harry S. Truman, Independence, Mo.—the White House." From there he walked down again to the long and spacious lawn and strolled down toward Campbell Hall, followed by a motley crowd of photographers and reporters, and walled in on both sides by enthusiastic spectators.

Before he had gone far, the President wrote a glowing page in the life of 2-year-old Hedgman Smith of Charlottesville.

The boy, in a striped overall suit, his blond hair shining in the sun, darted from his father, William A. Smith, a University Hospital pharmacist, and ran out to the President's party. He strode along a little behind Mr. Truman for a few steps while the crowd broke into delighted laughter.

Then he said in a high, clear voice:

"Hi, Mr. President."

Mr. Truman turned and, for the first time saw Hedgman. He stopped at once, stooped and lifted the boy in his arms. The crowd went into ecstasies.

Photographers Active

Photographers ran up to the President from all directions, camera cases flying. They got there just as Mr. Truman was putting Hedgman back on his feet and together they clamored for a shot.

The President picked up the lad again. "All right," he said, "shoot all you want."

Midway down the lawn the presidential party turned into the Colonnade Club in the west building, where Mr. Truman was to lunch as the guest of the club, established by the Raven Society, a campus honorary society.

He lunched on baked Virginia ham, turkey, peas, salad and raspberry glace. His luncheon companions on the cool portico of the building were President-Designate Colgate W. Darden of the University; Dean Ivy F. Lewis; Gov. William M. Tuck, of Virginia; Judge Armstead Dobey of the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals, a professor of law at the University; and Admiral William F. Halsey (Ret.), director of the University Development Fund.

Motors to Ashlawn

From the University, the President motored to Ashlawn, home of James Monroe, enunciator of a doctrine of American international policy which antedated the Truman doctrine by 130 years. He laid a wreath on a statue of Monroe and toured the home.

He ended a strenuous day by attending a cocktail party at the university given by Halsey for newsmen and the presidential party. Leaving there, he returned to Colle, hilltop home of Stanley Woodward, chief of the State Department protocol division, where he will be a guest until he leaves again for Washington Sunday.

Mr. Truman braved the hot July sun in a double-breasted white suit set off by a maroon tie and pocket handkerchief. He wore the soft panama hat which he favors for summer days.

Many Notables Present

Among the notables with him on the platform at Monticello were Senators Byrd and Robertson, French Ambassador Henri Bonnet, Lady Astor, Virginia-born former member of the British Parliament; Edward R. Stettinius, jr., rector of the University of Virginia; Governor Tuck, Frank K. Houston, president of the Thomas Jefferson Memorial Foundation, and members of the presidential party.

Houston, who introduced Mr. Truman, spoke briefly to open the ceremonies.

"At Monticello," he said, "were enunciated the principles which were to become our republican form of government."

Governor Tuck, in an address of welcome to the President, declared that Virginia "believe in democracy—Jeffersonian democracy" and do not intend "to depart from the tenets of representative democracy." The roots of freedom, he said "are long and deep in Virginia."

"Through the ages," Tuck said, "we have repeatedly fought to uphold the American traditions. We will fight again if it be necessary to save that which is our proud and rightful heritage."

Southern Operators Ponder UMW Coal Contract Terms

the apparent terms, however, and a few privately accused the Northern group of "selling out" the industry.

Terms of Contract

The broad terms of the tentative contract as unofficially reported, include:

1. An hourly increase of 35 cents. This will amount to $13.05 for an eight-hour, portal-to-portal day at straight time. The present pay is $11.85, but it covers a nine-hour day of which 2½ hours are at overtime rates. The new contract would eliminate the overtime rates during the ordinary working day, but this is more than offset by the basic wage increase.

2. An increase in welfare fund "royalty" payments from 5 cents to 10 cents a ton. The 5 cents levy was granted by the Government when it seized the mines to settle a 59-day strike in May, 1946. Southern operators have objected to the 5-cent payment.

3. Continuance of the mine safety code, as written into the agreement with the Government which expired last Tuesday.

Lewis has yielded, it was said, on his demands for time and a half pay for any Saturday work and double time for any Sunday work; also on his proposal for six paid holidays a year.

UMW officials estimate the contract will increase the cost of a ton of coal 67 cents, on the average. Operators figure the cost higher, some saying it will boost prices $1 a ton and in some cases more.

Czech Leaders Plan Hurried Moscow Trip on Marshall Aid

Prague, July 4 (AP).—Czech leaders hurriedly scheduled a trip to Moscow tonight, undoubtedly hoping to confer with the Russians about the crucial economic situation created here by Soviet rejection of the Marshall aid-Europe proposals.

Premier Klement Gottwald, a Communist, and Foreign Minister Jan Masaryk decided on the Moscow trip after day-long discussion in parliamentary circles of the new complications arising from the Paris three-power conference.

They arranged to ride as far as Warsaw with Polish Premier Josef Cyrankiewicz and nine of his ministers, who earlier today signed a treaty comprising the last link in a Slav nation network of cultural and trade pacts which conceivably could form the basis for a separate eastern European economy.

Europe Division Seen

Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov's action at Paris Wednesday, many persons here fear, may well have been the first phase of an outright division of Europe into two distinct camps, at least economically.

The Czechs—and the hurried trip by their leaders to Moscow underscores this—are unable to foresee which camp they will join, or whether it would be possible to straddle and keep a foot in each one.

There has been no official announcement in Prague whether the British-French note inviting Czech participation in a 24-nation economic parley at Paris July 12 had been received. In any event, it appeared certain no answer would be forthcoming until Gottwald and Masaryk get back.

Prague's Communist daily described the new Paris bid today as "an invitation to participate in a western bloc," and if this turns out to be the view of the government, it will be extremely hard for them to accept the invitation, especially in the light of Molotov's statement that countries participating in a program under the Marshall suggestions would find their sovereignty sacrificed to the big western powers.

Czech Acceptance Seen

Prague, Czechoslovakia, July 4 (U.P.). — Usually well-informed sources said tonight that Czechoslovakia would accept the Anglo-French invitation to the Marshall plan conference.

Following the parade, engraved trophies were presented to the units which made the best appearance by James F. Aubrey, senior vice commander of the Department of Maryland, Disabled American War Veterans.

The Takoma Motor Co. was judged the best float in the parade and the Silver Spring Elks Boys Band was voted the best band in line.

The Silver Spring Boys Band, numbering 48, which led the fire department division, won a trophy for having the largest number in the line of march.

Best Decorated Firm

The J. C. Flood Electrical Appliance Store was voted the best decorated business house, with second prize going to Hann's Jewelry Store.

Herman C. Heffner, 107 Carroll ave., Takoma Park, Md., won first prize for the best decorated home.

A trophy was also given to the best unit in each of the parade divisions, with these results:

First Division (military and veterans units)—Irish War Veterans, Post 17, of the District.

Second Division (marching youths)—Campfire Girls of Montgomery County.

Fourth Division (business houses)—The Washington Sanitarium and Hospital.

Fifth Division (volunteer fire departments)—Best engine company, Silver Spring, and best truck company, Hyattsville.

A celebration sponsored by three Bethesda organizations, the Chamber of Commerce and Lions and Civitan Clubs, was held at Ray's Meadow on the East-West hwy. in Bethesda. Games were held during the day and there was a fireworks display at night. Guest speaker at the fete was State Senator Roy Tasco Davis.

The Metropolis View Citizens Association in cooperation with the District Recreation Department sponsored a day-long celebration at the Edgewood playground, 3d and Evarts sts. ne.

The Fairfax County observance, which featured a reading of the Declaration of Independence and athletic contests, was held on Old Lehigh rd. at Difficult Run.

Communists Open Attack On Aid Talks

Paris, July 4 (U.P.).—The Communists opened a word war today against the British-French sponsored July 12 conference on the Marshall plan, from which Russia had excluded itself.

Florimonde Bonte, spokesman for the French Communist Party, and the Communist press opened up on the conference to which 22 nations have been invited.

Maurice Thorez, secretary-general of the French Communist Party, at a meeting in the huge Velodrome D. Hiver, tonight pledged the party's one million members to fight against "forces which are trying to isolate Russia from the rest of the world."

Twenty thousand cheering Communists, who came to protest the recently exposed Black Maquis plot to seize the government, heard Thorez denounce the western bloc as "a force to aid international trusts."

Although Thorez did not specifically mention the plan of United States Secretary of State George C. Marshall for European recovery, Raymond Guyot, secretary-general of the Communist Federation of the Seine, attacked it as "a device of capitalist America to try to save it from its greatest depression expected next year."

'Sitting Meters' Asked For Boardwalk Benches

Atlantic City, N. J., July 4 (U.P.).—If Hotel Owner Ralph E. Clouser has his way, "sit meters" will be installed to curb "hogging" of boardwalk benches.

Clouser told the city commission that the meters would permit a person to sit on a bench at a cost of 10 cents an hour. He said visitors often were unable to find a place to sit because others sat for hours, then turned their benches over to family members or friends.

U. N. Palestine Probers Hear Jewish Case

Jerusalem, July 4 (AP).—The United Nations Palestine investigating Commission heard the Jewish case for Palestine today and then adjourned until Sunday to allow a subcommittee to sort out a flood of new applications from persons and groups desiring to be heard.

Committee sources said more applications had been filed than the group could possibly hear before its scheduled departure from the Holy Land July 20. Arabs are boycotting the inuiry, ordered by the United Nations Assembly in an effort to untangle the knotty problem of Palestine.

Today's first speaker for the Jewish Agency, official spokesman for Holy Land Jewry, was Russian-born, white-haired David Ben Gurion, chairman of the agency's executive.

Jews Reject Mandate

In a voice sometimes calm, sometimes choked with tears, he told the 11-nation commission of Jewry's achievements and hopes and reviewed past negotiations aimed at a Jewish state—a national home.

"Only by establishing Palestine as a Jewish state can the true objectives—immigration and statehood for Jews, economic development and social progress for Arabs—be accomplished."

"You'll achieve your mission successfully," he told the commission, "when you restore freedom to Palestine, give justice to the Jewish people and stability, progress and prosperity to the Middle East.

"These three objectives can be accomplished by immediate abolition of the White Paper (restricting Jewish immigration and land sales to Jews), establishment of a Jewish state and promotion of a Jewish-Arab alliance."

Hints Switch on Partition

At one point he hinted strongly that Jewish leaders might have changed their minds about partition of Palestine. Departing from his prepared text in an extemporaneous reference to the earlier Morrison Federation Plan, Ben Gurion commented:

"We said then it could not be accepted as a basis for discussion. But we are ready to consider the question of a viable (self-supporting) Jewish state."

The Palestine Arab press hailed this to say concerning today's commission session:

"Commission members of the United Nations will listen as they did in the past to the excessive Jewish demands and their haughty pride. But the reply of Arabs to these demands will be heard by the higher executive."

whole world at a great conference

This conference was summoned called Sunday in Haifa by the Arab by Jamal Effendi Husseini, deputy chairman of the executive, to ponder "preservation of Arab lands and a boycott of Jewish industry, products and services."

July 4th Sees India Bill Read In Commons

London, July 4 (U.P.).—Prime Minister Clement Attlee introduced the first reading of the Indian Independence bill in Commons today, making July 4 Independence Day for that subcontinent with its nearly 389 million people.

In essence, the bill would create two independent dominions in India—India (Hindu) and Pakistan (Moslem)—by August 15. Specifi- India, about 55 per cent of the whole of India. Actually, it affects the whole subcontinent, because the princely and tribal states may join either India or Pakistan or become independent in themselves.

The text of the bill was not read. It will be available, however, before second reading and debate next Thursday. There was no doubt about its passage as the opposition Conservative Party was expected to support it completely.

Pakistan, as defined by the bill, would be the provinces of East Bengal and the West Punjab, as defined by boundary commissions. It also would include territories which on the date the bill is passed were included in the provinces of Sind and Baluchistan, plus territories in the Northwest Frontier Province to be decided by referendum.

Each dominion would have a governor general. The same person could be the governor general of both dominions, unless one dominion decided it wanted a governor-general of its own.

Each dominion would have full authority to make its own laws, including those in extraterritorial operation.

The British have promised to withdraw completely from India by next June. Then the Hindu and Moslem states may decide whether they want to remain dominions or cast off all connection with the British Empire.

Russians Hide Kidnap Wave, Austrian Says

Vienna, July 4 (U.P.).—Interior Minister Oscar Helmer told parliament today that Russian authorities had forbidden Austrian police to report to government agencies the frequent kidnapings by Russian soldiers within the Russian zone.

Helmer said he had definite evidence that 11 persons had been abducted by Russian soldiers in the last few weeks.

"This includes only kidnapings which have officially come to the attention of the Ministry of Interior," he said.

Motives Undetermined

"Despite vigorous efforts the ministry has not been able to learn the motives which caused the abductions, nor have we been able to gain any clues as to where the victims are being kept."

Helmer, in a formal report to Parliament, listed the exact date of the 11 cases officially reported, along with eyewitness details and evidence such as the finding of Russian army caps which the kidnapers lost in snatching their victims.

Approval Necessary

The Russians now, Helmer said, have issued orders to all Austrian police officers in their zone not to report kidnapings to higher Austrian government agencies "unless approval for such action is given—by Soviet authorities."

Helmer said also that two Austrian police officers were arrested recently "by members of one occupation power in the Soviet zone of Vienna when on duty."

Only the timely arrival of Inter-Allied, police prevented the kidnaping of the officers, Helmer said.

Chinese Claim Soviet Troops Take Tahcheng

Mukden, Manchuria, July 4 (U.P.).—Gen. Hsiung Shih-Hui, commander of the Nationalist northeast army, said today that Soviet army units had violated the Chinese-Soviet border and occupied the city of Tahcheng in upper Sinkiang Province.

General Hsiung said he had received the information only today from Gen. Chang Chih-Chung, commander of the Nationalist northwest headquarters. General Chang reported Soviet troops had entered Tahcheng at the end of May.

Hsiung, who is supreme commander for Manchuria, also asserted Chinese Communist troops were reinforced, supplied and trained from three Soviet-controlled areas: Siberia, Outer Mongolia and Korea. The best Chinese Communist units were transported to Siberia for specialized training, then rushed to Manchuria fronts, he said.

Hsiung claimed the Soviet Union directly aided the Chinese Communist war effort in these ways: 1—Soviet gunboats transported Korean troops, particularly technicians and artillery experts from Dairen to Communist-held Chefoo in Shantung Province; 2—Soviet officers directed Communist artillery signal units in the battle for Szepingkai; 3—Soviet engineers ran all locomotives used by Communists in their spring campaign.

All-Out War Ordered

Nanking, July 4 (AP).—The Chinese government today ordered total mobilization of manpower and resources for unrestricted war against the Communists.

A two-page government announcement said the order was for a finish fight against "enemies of the state" and also included demands for increased agricultural and industrial production to speed the drive.

'Voice of America' Program Praised By Soviet Colonel

Berlin, July 4.—Nicholas Nabokov, an official on the "Voice of America" broadcast to Russia, found out in the course of a brief visit to Berlin something of the program's effect on the Russians. It came out in a conversation with Col. Sergei Tulpanov, chief of the Russian military government political affairs division.

The colonel complimented Nabokov, an old acquaintance, on the broadcasts. "The cultural side of the program is particularly good," Colonel Tulpanov said, adding: "As a matter of fact, the cultural side is so good that I think you ought to emphasize it more and cut down on the straight news."

State Trading Seen if Geneva Parley Fails

By R. H. Shackford
United Press Reporter

One of Secretary of State George C. Marshall's top policy advisers on economic affairs warned yesterday that failure of the international trade conference at Geneva would lead "inevitably" to increased Government control of American foreign commerce—toward a state-trading system.

George C. McGhee, special assistant to the Undersecretary of State for Economic Affairs, William L. Clayton, and recently named Washington coordinator for both the Greek and Turkish aid programs, made the prediction in a special article in the State Department's official bulletin.

Geneva Seen Crux

The article reflects not only the views of both Marshall and Clayton, but their concern that failure at Geneva will topple the world helter-skelter into cutthroat economic warfare which would make even a super "Marshall plan" useless.

The Geneva parley of 17 nations, not including Soviet Russia which has state monopoly of foreign trade, has been in session since April 10 trying: (1) to negotiate reciprocally for lower trade tariffs and elimination of trade discriminations; (2) to write a code of fair conduct in international trade—a charter for a proposed international trade organization which it is hoped that Russia will join.

A virtual standstill in negotiations was precipitated recently by United States congressional passage of a "wool bill" which would have made possible a 50 per cent increase in wool tariffs. Although vetoed by the President, the action embarrassed Clayton and his associates who were charged with insincerity by other countries for trying to get them to eliminate trade barriers while the United States was trying to raise higher barriers on a key commodity.

The Senate declined to try to override the veto and passed a substitute to meet the President's objections. The House has not yet acted but House GOP Leader Charles A. Halleck has written Marshall demanding to know whether the United States plans to press for reduced world wool tariffs at Geneva. He said the information is necessary so Congress will know what future action to take on wool.

Must Lower Tariffs

"Because the United States relies chiefly on its tariff system for control of imports," McGhee wrote, "the chief bargaining stock of the American delegation is the lowering of American tariffs.

"In return we are asking the other countries to relax their restrictions and trade discriminations, most of which operate to the disadvantage of our traders.

"If we obtain in Geneva some of the objectives for which we are bargaining, private traders in the United States will be able to carry on their business with people in other countries.

"If not, this Government may ultimately be forced to assist American traders by bargaining with other governments for entry of things which we want to sell abroad and for the right to purchase things which we want to buy. Inevitably, this means increased governmental control of American foreign commerce."

McGhee conceded that the road ahead at Geneva was rough and that success was far from certain. The greatest difficulty, he said, is the "plain fact" that foreign countries do not have enough American dollars to buy all the American products they need and that we could and want to sell them. He cited 1947 trade as an example—the United States will export 16 billion dollars' worth of goods and import only eight billion dollars. "The rest of the world just can't dig up the additional eight billion dollars," McGhee said.

"The ultimate solution is for the United States to increase its imports of goods and services which we want and need from the rest of the world, which will permit their production to increase."

Then he quoted Clayton at the opening of the Geneva conference:

"Certainly we (the United States) don't want to try to solve the problem by cutting down our exports—which would mean cutting down our own production and employment."

However, former President Hoover already has denounced the Administration program—claiming the United States is "overexporting" and thus should reduce exports, and that any further increase in imports would provoke unemployment at home.

Senate President Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich.), in calling for a balance sheet of what the United States can afford to do to help other countries in the future, indicated that he was thinking along the Hoover lines.

Red Embassy Reports Some Gems Recovered

London, July 4 (U.P.).—A spokesman for the Soviet Embassy reported tonight that Scotland Yard had recovered some of the jewelry stolen from the homes of embassy officials last month.

The British Foreign Office asked Scotland Yard last month to give the burglaries special attention. One burglary occurred June 2, when an undisclosed amount of jewelry was stolen from the apartment of L. Boris Karavaev, first secretary. Several nights later the apartment of Capt. Vladimir Fhamdabylow was burglarized.

Man Kills Son, 4, Self

Milwaukee, July 4 (AP).—Detective Lieut. Rudolph Glaser said today a 35-year-old Milwaukee laborer who left home with his 4-year-old son to attend a Fourth of July celebration hurled the boy to his death from an 80-foot viaduct, and then jumped, killing himself. Graser identified them as Walter Haasch and his son, Gary.

Spread over most of the floor space in a large office, the photostats include cards from secret "M" and "C" files and the "hold" cases on precinct books

'Little People' Cases Vanish

Catholic University grounds at 4th and Michigan ave. ne. Here they tied him up and robbed him of his watch, cab and $50, he told police.

Later the cab was found abandoned in front of 82 Q st. nw. Jackson was interviewed the following morning at police headquarters and an effort was made to obtain fingerprints from the cab but none was found. The pawn inspector's office was notified to be on the lookout for the watch.

There is no record of this case in the statistical bureau.

No Word Since September

John Thomas, 46, 1224 14th st. nw., a waiter at the Statler Hotel returning home from work on the morning of September 4, 1946, told police he was accosted on the street near his home by three men. They knocked out several of Thomas' front teeth and robbed him of $120.

Detectives interviewed Thomas and subsequently asked him to appear at a police line-up.

Thomas told The Post that he has not heard from the police since three weeks after the incident happened. This is another case that is not reported in the statistical bureau and was carried as a "pocket" case.

On March 25, 1947, Mrs. Dorothy Johnson, 1668 Trinidad ave. ne., reported her pocketbook snatched at 8th and I sts. ne. It contained papers and $11.

Mrs. Johnson gave detectives a description of her assailant and she was called to two police line-ups to see if she could identify any suspects. She was unable to do so.

That was several months ago and she has not heard from the police since.

Cabbie's Case Disappears

Leo D. Hennesy, 30, 2838 Bladensburg rd. ne. driving his cab about 1:45 a. m., April 19, 1947, told police he picked up two men at 7th st. and Adams dr. nw. He was told to drive to the 800 block of Alabama ave. se. where he was held up by his passengers. He was forced to drive to an isolated spot in Maryland where $33 was taken from him and he was thrown from the cab.

The cab was later recovered by police at 5th and Savannah sts. se. Hennesy was shown the Rogue's Gallery photographs but he was unable to identify any in the file.

Official Statistical Bureau records do not include this robbery report.

On November 29, 1946, Oscar H. Jung, 50, 1343 L st. nw. reported to police he was held up and robbed near his home. He was dragged into an alley by two men who beat him and robbed him of his wallet and $9.

He was taken to Emergency Hospital and told two detectives he could not identify his assailants because they grabbed him from behind. Detectives told him, he said, that there had been similar incidents in the same neighborhood.

His case was not added to the Statistical Bureau record of crimes.

Barrett Changes Mind

Newly appointed Police Superintendent Robert J. Barrett publicly recognized the gross discrepancies upon taking the oath of office. He promised to correct the "custom" of hiding crime complaints.

His first official action, however, was to issue Police Department Order No. 1, permitting the "pocketing" of many types of complaints. His order was later approved by District Commissioner John Russell Young, who appointed him to the post.

The police superintendent's order superseded one issued one day earlier by Barrett's successor as detective chief, Inspector Floyd A. Truscott. Truscott's directive provided "secrecy" in only rare and justifiable cases.

Discussion Set

The Washington Criminal Justice Association is to meet with Superintendent Barrett this week to discuss police methods of recording and investigating crime complaints, in the light of The Post disclosures.

And Commissioner Young has been called to meet with members of the Senate District Committee to explain police methods or lack of method in recording and reporting crime here. The meeting date was set last week as "as soon as possible after July 6," by the committee chairman, Senator C. Douglass Buck (R., Del.).

ciple. It is to be hoped that all governments invited to the Paris conference will be left completely free by every great power to make their own decisions in the light of their own desires and interests and in accord with what they esteem to be their economic needs."

Free to Decide

The spokesman emphasized that Britain and France are leaving invited countries "completely free" to reach their own decisions.

"We are not holding a pistol to anyone's head," he said. "It is up to them to decide."

But—expecting Russia to exert terrific pressure on countries in its sphere to boycott the conference, and to try to influence border-line countries against it—the spokesman said:

"Invited nations must make up their mind one way or another."

Finland Doubtful

Helsinki, Finland, July 4 (U.P.).—A source close to the Finnish cabinet said today that "personally, I see no possibility for Finland to join in the Marshall plan because the official Finnish policy is friendship toward the Soviet Union.

"To join in the Marshall plan would be joining the Western bloc, which seems impossible," the source said. "It is difficult to understand how Finland has any other way than to refuse."

stops at Kansas City en route to the Governors' conference.

From there the party will go on to Yellowstone National Park and the Grand Canyon. Dewey will stay at a ranch at Cody, Wyo., and attend a rodeo at Cheyenne.

Four Days at Owosso

Returning East, he plans to arrive at Detroit, Mich., July 26, and spend four days at Owosso, Mich., his home town.

The Deweys had only Pullman accommodations.

The first leader to meet with Dewey will be Lewis Wentz, Oklahoma's GOP national committeeman, who will meet Dewey in Tulsa Sunday.

Dewey said he had more than 200 invitations to speak while on the trip, but had declined. He said his only planned speech would be at the Governors' conference.

Dewey also planned brief stopovers at Denver, Colo.; Pocatello, Idaho, and Chicago.

through the United Nations if the statesmen will use it."

Mundt's view, given to International News Service, contained the plain implication that the East-West division, heightened by Russia's refusal to participate in Secretary of State Marshall's economic integration proposals, would be further accentuated by withholding economic aid to the Soviet's East-European satellite states should they choose to align themselves against the plan.

Mundt took the position that any European nation which refuses to join in the common effort to restore Europe's economic health should be held as not meriting further United States assistance.

The Belasco Warehouse

What was once the Belasco Theater, named for one of the outstanding theatrical producers of modern times, is now a storage warehouse for some overflow files of the Treasury Department. No doubt it is convenient for the Treasury Department to utilize this building which happens to be contiguous to one of its annexes. But the building, designed as it was for the presentation of plays and the accommodation of an audience, seems singularly ill-adapted to the Treasury's purposes. The continued use of it as storage space can scarcely, at any rate, be reconciled with the President's directive of a year ago to the Federal Works Administrator "to study and determine the extent to which consolidation, reassignment and reallocation of office space . . . would be advantageous to the Government" and "to direct and prescribe the economical use or the surrender of such space as is found to be uneconomically used. The Treasury's files could much more economically be stored elsewhere. The most economical use for the Belasco would be as a theater.

It happens that there are bona fide theatrical entrepreneurs who would like to make such use of the Belasco and have offered to pay a fair rental to the Government for the building—a rental greatly in excess of what it would cost the Treasury to find other accommodations. The building is owned by the Government which purchased it along with the structures comprising the Cosmos Club for the purpose of erecting on the site a Federal office building. But construction costs, material scarcities and congressional appropriations forbid construction of the projected building for several years. Those years could afford much pleasure to the people of Washington (as well as profit to the Government and to the fortunate producer-lessee) if the Belasco were to be utilized as a theater instead of as a warehouse.

Washington needs another theater for the presentation of stage plays. Construction difficulties being what they are, it is unlikely that a new theater can be built here for a number of years to come. And it is an unhappy possibility that the one legitimate theater now in Washington will soon choose to end its stage presentations. In these circumstances, the Treasury seems something of a dog in the manger. We hope that it will make way for what would be a heartening and progressive contribution to this community's intellectual life.

Bad Business

What amazes us about the recalcitrance of the Republican leadership toward the State Department foreign information and education program is that the niggardliness is such poor business. As Representative Mundt testified Wednesday, the 31 million dollars asked for the program is but one third of 1 per cent of what we have already spent on other means of maintaining the peace. Surely business-minded legislators can see the necessity for protecting such an investment! To chisel away at this little bit of insurance seems to us the most wanton kind of recklessness. Yet the Senate Republican leadership is reported to show no enthusiasm for taking up the Mundt bill, already passed by the House, which would give the information program sound legislative backing. And House conferees have forced their Senate counterparts to agree to slash one million dollars from the $13,400,000 grudgingly approved for the piteously pared down interim operation.

What this amounts to is extension of the dubious practice of legislation by appropriation rather than on grounds of principle. Secretary Marshall has appeared four times to plead for the program. He considers passage of the Mundt bill this session, along with necessary funds, as vital to the heavy task of protecting American interests. Yet the compromise leaves him with but half a weapon. Aside from the restrictive effects on our Voice of America broadcasts and our libraries and information services abroad, there are other areas in which the cuts virtually throw good will out the window. They nullify, for instance, most of the student exchange program except for Latin America. There are no stronger boosters of America than foreign students educated in our universities who later rise to important positions in their governments. Other countries are crying for American technical advisers to rebuild their industries. But without the Mundt bill, the Government has not the authority to send them out.

Certain legitimate objections have been raised about the efficiency of the program's operation and personnel. The point is that the defects cannot be corrected by starving the patient. Secretary Marshall has explained that his hands are tied in improving the program or meeting criticisms without money. With his staff reduced by half, and with the entire operation insecure, he is in no position to attract top-level replacements. In amending deficiencies the important thing is to keep the program going. We must, as Representative Lodge has put it, export ideas to cope with the intellectual aridity that has fallen on many areas of the globe—areas where Russia is sure to move in through propaganda if we muff our opportunity. Good will is a fleeting thing. Once lost, it is difficult to recapture. We think the Republican leadership ought to consider this fully before it profligately throws away what has been so painstakingly cultivated. If donothingness prevents action on the Mundt bill in the Senate and estops adequate funds to implement it, we may wake up someday to find that our investment has eroded to nothing.

Scarlet Fever

It is always in the name of security that liberties are lost. The Gestapo became the sovereign power in Hitler's Germany through the myth of encirclement. On the pretext that it is threatened by external enemies—the United States in particular—the Soviet Union is a rigid police state today. And here in Washington—capital of the very fortress of freedom—the security neurosis has so assailed the minds of men that they have become careless, even cynical, about individual rights and human values which are the real genius of the American society. Realism compels recognition that in the present position of world affairs a genuine security problem does exist. But it is a spurious realism that ignores ideals or sacrifices them on false altars. For what is a nation profited, if it shall gain the whole world, and lose its own soul?

It was in the name of security that the State Department the other day discharged 10 employes under the temporary authority to do so conferred on it by the McCarran rider to the 1947 appropriation act. And it is also in the name of security that the State Department, along with the War and Navy Departments and the Atomic Energy Commission, is asking Congress for permanent authority to dismiss employes summarily, without hearings or review. It seems to us that this procedure is neither wise nor necessary. It breaches fundamental safeguards against injustice without effectively buttressing essential security. A hearing can protect only the innocent. Yet the granting of it may well represent something like the difference between a lynching and a fair trial.

"We are not engaged in a witch hunt," said Secretary Marshall, "and I will not permit unfounded charges based on prejudice to force our hand. I mean to see that the rights of the personnel as well as the interests of the Government are secured." Yet the 10 persons dismissed a few days ago were accorded no hearings. A State Department press officer said the dismissals did not necessarily concern the loyalty of the individuals involved but rather "their discretion and the company they keep," and the Secretary disclosed merely that some of them had had "indirect" association with representatives of foreign powers. These are charges so vague as to be disquieting. Morale within the department alone, we should think, would dictate more definite findings.

It is well that the department did not disclose the names of the dismissed employes. But it would be naive to suppose that this will save them from serious injury. Fellow workers must know well enough who they are. The stigma attached to their names will forever bar them from any other Government agency. And private employers looking into their background will be reluctant to hire anyone dismissed from the Government for security reasons. The punishment involved is far too grievous to be imposed on the basis of ambiguous allegations and unsubstantiated suspicions.

More serious still, perhaps, is the effect of this kind of summary dismissal upon the character of the Government service. It is one of the lamentable manifestations of the security neurosis that its suspicions fasten inevitably upon the outstanding—upon those whose thinking is unconventional or nonconformist. Men of initiative and ability will not care, or dare, to seek Federal employment when panic of this sort prevails. And only the mediocre can survive such a process of selection. The result is to institute a kind of means test for Government jobs—a means test in which only those indigent in ideas can qualify. The end of this will be neither freedom nor security.

Worker, Stockholder

A dispatch from London to the Wall Street Journal states that British industrialists are trying to establish a better understanding between factory workers and shareholders by taking the latter on conducted tours of company plants and giving them an opportunity to talk with the employes. The idea seems to be that these contacts will convince the workers that shareholders are ordinary citizens like themselves, who have invested hard-earned savings in the company, instead of being parasitic beneficiaries of the labor done by others.

Besides removing such misconceptions, visits of this kind also enable stockholders to acquaint themselves with the problems of the workers as well as to acquire a more intelligent appreciation of the complexities of the industrial organizations in which they have invested their capital. Of course it should be self-evident that workers, managerial heads and stockholders have a common interest in maintaining a high degree of plant efficiency. But in practice the importance of working together to maintain the prosperity of the industrial concerns upon which all these groups depend for income is often lost to sight in an intergroup struggle over the division of returns.

Possibly class hostility is more in evidence in socialist England than in the United States. But here, too, there is a widespread and growing hostility between workers and ownership groups that is a socially disintegrating influence. It might be a good idea, therefore, to follow the example set by English industrialists of encouraging more frequent direct contacts between workers and company shareholders with a view to their mutual enlightenment.

The "Black Maquis"

Since the announcement last Monday by M. Edouard Depreux, Minister of the Interior, nothing more has appeared in dispatches from Paris about the bizarre plot by a group of French reactionaries to seize control of the capital and to institute a military dictatorship. It is clear, however, that in France itself the announcement was received rather cynically, despite the arrest of a half dozen more or less prominent persons including General Guilladot, inspector general of the National Gendarmerie.

The conspirators are said to have adopted a "blue plan" for the proposed coup, which was to have taken place either late in July or early in August. In order to obtain opinion favorable to the uprising, false reports of a Communist insurrection were to have been circulated, and various Frenchmen were to be notified that sentences of death had already been passed on them which were to be executed as soon as the Communists seized power. The scene of the militarist uprising was to be Brittany, and the plan called for a series of jail deliveries of political prisoners. These were to be followed by a march on Paris in which elements of the army, including some armored units, were expected to join.

The leaders of the conspiracy seem rather strangely assorted; they are said to include some former Cagoulards, or quasi-Fascists, some Petainists and some former leaders of the resistance movement. Only one perhaps of those identified is known by name to Americans, Colonel Renaud, formerly associated with General de Gaulle and the Free French movement. All the same, M. Depreux was careful to make clear that the Gaullist Party, called the Rally of the French People, had no complicity in the plot and had rejected all liaison with its leaders.

There is nothing inherently implausible about the story itself. The conspiracy, to be sure, seems to have been an altogether stupid affair, but since the time of Charles X political intelligence has never been characteristic of French reactionaries. At the same time it would be naive not to observe that the story of the conspiracy has afforded a diversion of attention from the precarious situation of the Ramadier government, harassed, as it is, by the Communists on one side and by General de Gaulle and his followers on the other. The Communists have been seeking by successive strikes and other means to blackmail the Assembly into readmitting them to the government, while M. de Gaulle is now openly demanding that France align herself with the United States in the present diplomatic conflict with Russia.

Some sort of reorganization of the French cabinet is now thought to be impending. If, as has been rumored, this reorganization is to signify a breach between M. Ramadier and the left wing of his own party, it will be necessary for him to be sure of support from the center and the moderate right. One way to assure this might be to create suspicion or doubt as to General de Gaulle's ultimate purposes. If, however, it is the intention to capitulate to the Communists and to readmit them to government, it might be necessary to forestall any realignment of forces between the Gaullists and the general's former supporters of the M. R. P.

Minimum Wage

At a minimum wage of 60 cents an hour, a man who works a 40-hour week can bring home to his wife and children a weekly pay envelope stuffed with 24 dollars. The sum does not seem excessive in view of the current cost of living. It is estimated, indeed, that only about a million workers engaged in interstate commerce are now being paid less than 60 cents an hour, despite the fact that the minimum wage under the Fair Labor Standards Act remains at 40 cents. An increase to at least 60 cents is long overdue. It is welcome if surprising news, therefore, that the House Republican leadership has designated such an increase as "must" legislation for this session of Congress.

Representative Schwabe's opposition to the proposed increase was a candid opposition to the whole idea of a floor under wages. Labor, in his view, is merely a commodity to be purchased as cheaply as possible. If an employer "hires a worker cheap," he said, "that's the American way of doing it." This is to say that the high wages which have made America preeminent in industrial productivity are un-American. This country long ago reached the decision that the sweatshop is neither good business nor good Americanism. Its last vestiges should be eliminated from our economic life.

THE BLUE TIME

I looked uphill too quickly. There
A man in blue was plowing air,
A man in blue, a silver plow
Against the sky. I wondered how
It felt to plow horizons. "Ma'am,
Some are dafter than I am,"
He said, "to watch in such a heat."
"From head to feet
You're made of blue," I said. "You plow in blue."
"Your eyes are playing tricks on you,
Ma'am," he said. "I plow hard earth,"
And stamped his foot to show, and mirth
Rolled down to meet me. There
He shimmered blue against blue air,
A man who did not question why
He chose to plow a piece of sky.

Youth Seeks World Ties

By Malvina Lindsay

Younger Set Abroad

WITH ABOUT 8000 young Americans studying in Europe this summer, and several thousand young Europeans in this country, the one world language that youth speaks to its own will begin to come into more general usage. This gives promise that 10 or 15 years from now, possibly sooner, new young leaders with international understanding will be putting their shoulders to the world's load of problems.

Groping, discouraged youth throughout the world, and particularly in Europe, is eager for help from its own generation—which understands it as no older groups ever can. It now feels a special kinship with its age groups everywhere because of the sort of world they have inherited in common.

A German fraeulin, Cornelia Grube-Ehlers, recently stood before a Berlin conference on youth problems called by the American Military Government, and expressed the feelings of her generation in much of Europe. "The generation of our parents," she said, "has been terribly decimated. It will soon be our turn to do the work. We realize that the world is looking upon the German youth because there will never be a democracy here if we are not democrats.

"Our worst obstacle," she went on, "is that so many people don't feel like democrats. I wish every German boy and girl could have the opportunity to come in touch with young living democrats. It is not good to know this sort of people out of books only."

NONE OF this summer's students from the United States will study in Germany, owing to occupation difficulties. However, the War Department recently arranged for some selected German students from the American occupied area to come to the United States for non-technical studies at such schools and colleges as would grant them scholarships. Expenses will be met by the colleges or by organizations that are aiding this reorientation program.

It is almost a universal longing of studious young people in Europe, indeed in the world, to come to the United States on scholarships. They look to American knowledge and leadership to help them prepare for the great problems they face in rebuilding their own countries.

Though many governments are sending students here, this country's export of students abroad is likely to be in excess of its imports for some time to come. Starting this fall, students from here will begin to go abroad under the Fulbright act, which provides that credit from sale of surplus property in foreign countries may be used for a student exchange program. Eventually about 50,000 American students may benefit from this. Since the financing is limited to foreign currency, foreign students can be helped only by transportation. Hence many more students will go from America abroad than will come here.

THE THREE boatloads of young Americans recently sent to Europe to study, visit youth hostels, attend international meetings, serve as counselors at children's camps and help in reconstruction work, are being sponsored by national organizations—as are their exchanges here. The program was arranged by the Division of International Exchange of Persons of the State Department.

These boys and girls will for the most part share the rigorous life and plain diet that is the lot today of Europe's youth. They will be able to understand—as only youth with its hearty zest for food can—how hard it is to sell democracy to young people who are undernourished and hungry.

"Our worst problem," Cornelia Grube-Ehlers told the Military Government conference, "is whether we are strong enough to win the race with hunger, cold, despair and the dictators of tomorrow, who are among the youth of today."

As Andre Gide, French author, told a youth rally last week at Munich University, "It is not easy to be young today." Perhaps that is why the youth of the world is so eagerly seeking solidarity.

Stateless Children

Malvina Lindsay's article of July 2, "Decision on the Displaced," is the most thought-provoking presentation of American public opinion and reaction toward the Stratton bill that has been published to date. However, neither in this nor in any other press report has any mention been made or appeal put forward on behalf of the children. On the other hand, an excellent case is made out for the skilled craftsmen and potential domestic servants; one would conclude that the displaced persons are either all adults or, at most, family units.

Are your readers aware that there are approximately 4000 nonrepatriable, orphaned and unaccompanied children who cannot qualify for entrance into the United States under any quota today because they cannot establish the country of their birth and are, therefore, without an identity? Do your readers know that a group of men and women of American, English and Norwegian birth have banded together for the purpose of rescuing as many as possible of these orphans from the concentration camps, where they were found and where many of them have had to go on living since the liberation of Europe two years ago?

Does it not interest your subscribers to learn that the British Colonial Office will permit the Stateless Children's Sanctuary, Inc. to establish a home for these children on the island of Nevis in the West Indies if sufficient funds to carry out the project be guaranteed? The corporation is establishing a boarding school and proposes to care for and educate the orphans for a 15-year period; the children are between the ages of 3 and 6.

Without a cent having been spent on publicity and without the backing of any powerful person or organization, our contributions and pledges amount to $21,312.56. Mrs. Irene Caldwell of this city has guaranteed all the clothing for the orphans and the entire bedding for one hundred beds. However, one million dollars will be necessary to endow the sanctuary; the estimated annual operating cost will be $27,000 and capital investments total $77,000.

We are seeking international status from the United Nations for our charges so that they may become the nucleus of world citizenry. By saving these children from the doom that menaces them we shall have an unique opportunity to benefit not only the displaced children but their whole generation.

VERE STUART-ALEXANDER,
Executive Vice President, Stateless Children's Sanctuary, Inc.
Washington.

Social Security Murals

I was delighted that you have taken notice in The Post of June 28 of the murals in the Social Security Building. Not only are these murals an offense to those of us who must pass them twice a day going to and from our jobs in the building, but they also give visitors from abroad, of whom there are many these days, a mistaken notion of life in this country.

Why should our "art" perpetuate conditions of 50 years ago? Does Russia in her art picture conditions of the past century and show it as life under the Soviets?

Another set of murals which should be shown to the public for criticism is in the cafeteria of this building. These murals have just been placed on the walls. Not only are we forced to pay higher prices and take smaller portions of food but our eyes are assaulted with pictures of some subhuman species at what seems to be various forms of recreation. Whatever they are doing, they don't seem happy and neither does it add to our pleasure to see them. R. S.
Washington.

Holidays On Monday

An improvement in our system of holidays could be made by celebrating all holidays on the Monday of the week in which they fall. This would permit a succession of holiday weekends throughout the year. One could enjoy himself much more than when a holiday falls in the middle of the week. Resorts would increase their trade during the summer months, and in the winter months short visits could be made which are often impossible at present.

We follow this plan now when a holiday falls on Sunday and we could easily extend the idea to the other days of the week.

AGNES W. MITCHELL
Washington.

Unequal Sentences

I see by The Post of June 28 that a man was sentenced by the D. C. Municipal Court to a year in jail for stealing a $3.50 box of candy, while another who stole a $30 drill got only 180 days from the same court the same day.

I should be interested to learn just how these sentences were computed.

Why not be fair to all in these serious matters and just chop off a hand for anything over $3 and so on up the scale? The present latitude allowed our judges should easily permit such a square deal to all. HANFORD M. EDSALL.
Arlington.

Teaching Discipline

I quote from an article by Mr. Ralph Dighton called "Rosalind in Mother's Role" in The Post of June 22: "From this you might gather the Ros has little patience with the let-em-grow-up-wild school of thought in modern education."

I find no fault with the article or with Miss Russell's method of raising her son, but that above statement makes me furious. It is typical of the layman's idea of modern education. I used to find when teaching that the parents who made such statements were the ones who never visited school to find out just what was going on.

To put it bluntly the modern idea is not to let them grow up wild. The idea is to teach them the most rigid and important and useful type of discipline, namely, self-discipline. To teach self-discipline requires a great deal more learning and interest on the part of the teacher than the old idea of "Mind me or you'll be punished. You have to mind me, because I'm the teacher."

It takes a great deal of training and understanding on the part of the teacher to teach the modern way. It also takes money to hire those teachers. The teacher load is so heavy now, due to lack of teachers due to lack of funds to pay those teachers, that it is a wonder that the children are taught anything, let alone the importance of learning to think for themselves.

But if the writer mentioned above would poke his nose into a few schoolrooms I'll bet he would see a great deal of discipline. And when he saw some children punished, and he asked them why, they would no doubt be able to tell him and the answer would not be because "Teacher said so."

MARY H. CAYLOR.

Armed Forces Unification

It was particularly interesting to read General Truscott's reply of June 20 to Admiral Zacharias' communications of May 27 and June 16. His opening paragraphs make the generalized statement that "unification" is being opposed by the same objections year after year.

This is not a fair statement. "Unification" itself is not being opposed. Certainly General Truscott would not want to state that he disbelieves the high-ranking officers who have emphasized their belief in the benefits of "unification." What these officers have voiced repeated objections to is the form of unification.

It is not my purpose to quarrel with many of General Truscott's statements, although a student of logic might take exception to the "non-sequiturs" contained in his letter. For instance, he states that he is dubious of the admiral's point that "naval officers almost unanimously are still opposed to unification"—he should say one form of unification—because "there are very few people—in the armed services—who know what the issues are." Disregarding the detailed knowledge shown by those who have expressed a desire to modify the currently proposed form of unification, his reason has no connection with the doubt he has expressed."

In one of the other non-sequiturs the general says that the admiral's fear that a secretary of national security might lean excessively toward one branch of the services is discounted by statements of Secretaries Patterson and Forrestal and other interested parties. The admiral's opinion was not about the present incumbents of what would become subordinate offices, but about what the wording of the law would permit. The admiral's point is that we are a Government of laws, not of men.

There is one point the general attempts that I do take exception to. That is his twisting of the comments upon amphibious operations. The general suddenly leaped from the question of development of amphibious technique and doctrine to a discussion of the performing of operations. The best he can claim is that after the start of World War II the War Department undertook "the development of its own amphibious methods," and performed a number of operations.

The question is "What amphibious development was done by the War Department to December 7, 1941?" The answer is well known—none.

Even the general should admit that "the development of its own amphibious methods" and the training of a proportion of the amphibious Army troops was based upon the developments performed by Marines over 20 peacetime years, and such belated wartime development was based upon the continuing improvements made by the Marines in the Pacific campaigns.

General Taylor, superintendent of West Point, pointed out one of the reasons for the lack of amphibious development by the War Department when he said, as quoted in The Post for March 9, "After World War I we used to cite the Dardanelles campaign and preach that amphibious operations were so difficult and costly that we should always avoid them if possible." The War Department's record shows that between World War I and World War II it accepted the above theory so completely that it made no developments at all in this field. On the other hand, the Marine Corps accepted the Dardanelles campaign as proof that an effective doctrine and technique had to be developed. And it did so. S. R. SHAW,

No Military Training

I am pleased to note that on July 1 you published a letter from a mature contributor against conscription. It does seem there should be more noise from that school of thought to counterbalance the incessant bellowing from the other. Not a day passes but what Patterson or Eisenhower or some other of them aren't telling us all the terrible things that will happen to us if we do not hand a million children over to the military mind forthwith.

The people who are making the demands for conscription are the very ones who are not qualified to judge the issue, which is one for philosophers, historians and scientists to measure. Patterson, Eisenhower, et al., are only the loud speakers of the military mind. We have the unseemly spectacle of a priest and educator saying "Turn our young men over to that military mind whose preoccupation is self-interest, brutality and subserviency."

Military discipline is not a mental discipline that develops the mind and character to choose civilized values, but a hardening molding that steels a man to crush his instincts of honor, chivalry, all the rest of it that we call civilization, and kill his fellow-man senselessly and, we hope, without the full consent of his own will.

And on the lower plane—just what are the million young men to do when the bombs fall? Pass the coffee to the survivors and collect the skins scorched off the dead?

Choosing Sides

By Barnet Nover

Europe's Testing Time

THE MOST FATEFUL plebiscite Europe has ever witnessed is now under way.

This time it is not peoples but governments that are being polled. The question is whether or not to take part in the conference which Great Britain and France have called to meet on July 12.

NOVER

At that conference—the meeting place, significantly, is Paris where Russia scornfully rejected the Marshall proposal—plans are to be drawn up for the carrying out the program of European mutual aid and cooperative reconstruction with the assistance of the United States.

THERE WOULD not be the slightest doubt as to the outcome of the plebiscite were the peoples of Europe allowed a truly free, uninhibited choice.

The overwhelming majority of them, those living in the Soviet sphere of influence as well as those living west of the iron curtain, would enthusiastically support the Marshall program as developed by Great Britain and France.

They live in a battered, broken and bleeding continent. They are desperately eager to get back on their feet. They want something more than an existence on the barest subsistence level.

IT WAS BECAUSE of such feelings that Russia found it necessary to participate in the Paris Conference. To that extent, at least, she responded to the demands of her satellites, particularly Poland and Czechoslovakia.

It is now abundantly clear, what was fairly evident at the time of Russia's acceptance of the Anglo-French bid, that the Soviet government did not have the slightest intention of helping to carry out the Marshall program.

Instead, Molotov tried to twist that program into a mockery of itself. He got nowhere. Then, as a last resort, he resorted to threats. Great Britain and France were warned of the evil consequences of following their intended course.

SUCH TACTICS were aimed to drive a wedge between Great Britain which has no Communist movement to speak of, and is not subject to fifth column pressures, and France, which has a powerful Communist movement capable of doing great injury to that nation's domestic peace.

Molotov must have known better than to believe that he would get away with such threats. But he was under strict instructions from the Politburo to make no concessions to European unity. The result has been the most serious defeat suffered by Soviet diplomacy in a long time.

No sooner was the three-power conference over, than Great Britain and France sent out invitations to 22 nations to join them at Paris on the 12th.

WE CAN TAKE it for granted that not all of the 22 will accept.

In view of Russia's bitter opposition to the Marshall program, such Russian satellites as Romania, Bulgaria, Albania, Hungary and Yugoslavia can be counted on to refuse the invitation. Poland and Czechoslovakia, eager to join in the benefits of the Marshall program though they are, will be governed by Moscow's decision.

They and other satellite states may get a dispensation from the Kremlin to take part in the Paris parley. That remains to be seen.

On the other hand, there is every reason to believe that the countries of western Europe, including Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands, Luxembourg, will attend the Paris meeting.

In deciding whether to respond favorably or unfavorably to the Anglo-French invitation, every nation will also be deciding to which camp it belongs.

Russia's action at Paris transformed into a grim reality what many have hitherto regarded as merely a temporary phase of the postwar situation in Europe, namely, the division of Europe into opposing blocs.

The responsibility for that development rests entirely on Russia herself.

At Paris, she had the chance to reverse the evil trend that she herself had set into motion when her armies swept into Eastern Europe. She did not do so.

Molotov's complaint that in going ahead with the Marshall program Great Britain and France are dividing the continent comes with particularly poor grace from him.

His tactics are the tactics of a burglar who caught red-handed with stolen goods, turns on his accuser and shouts: "Stop thief!"

The fraud is too transparent.

Walter Lippmann is on vacation. His column, "Today and Tomorrow," will be resumed on his return.

Dollar Economy And Soil Erosion

THE MISSISSIPPI River at flood crest is rolling down to the sea and carrying with it the stuff of life itself. It is carrying millions of tons of topsoil that can never be replaced.

Childs

We read headlines about the damage in dollars done by the floods in the Middle West.

One expert estimate puts the cost of soil erosion thus far in Iowa alone at 107 million dollars.

Dollars are such a feeble measurement of the loss, since the soil that goes washing down the rivers is literally priceless. While we measure with the dollar sign, the true values slip away and are ignored.

The weakness of a society that uses only the money measuring-rod was illustrated during the war by a remark that Jesse Jones is reported to have made. One of his assistants told him that a warehouse containing reserves of natural rubber had been destroyed by fire,

"Well, it was insured, wasn't it?" Jones is said to have replied. That was at a moment when the war effort was seriously imperilled by desperate lack of rubber.

Behind the dollar sign is the threat to the well-being, yes, to the very existence of the Nation. There are those with expert knowledge who believe that the great breadbasket of America in the Middle West is rapidly approaching the stage of erosion that existed in the South 20 years ago.

WITHOUT AN immediate large-scale advance to check the rate of erosion, our best farming country will go on washing down into the great sewer of the Gulf of Mexico. That means widening gullies. It means barren subsurface clay and rock. It means eventually drought, dust storms and desert.

In face of all this, with every river in the Mississippi system boiling brown with precious soil, it is hard to understand a Congress that hacks away at the funds for the Soil Conservation Service. It is hard to understand until you remember that "economy" to most members of the Eightieth Congress means dollars. Such economy completely and tragically overlooks the loss of the wealth that is our bone and sinew, our staff and our strength.

The Bureau of the Budget recommended an appropriation of $48,120,000 for the Soil Conservation Service. That was a little less than two million dollars over last year's budget. The House cut this to $40,273,000, and the Senate has thus far shown little disposition to restore even a part of the cut.

Arbitrarily the House cut the amount available for research from $1,423,000 to $673,000. That somehow points up the folly of this dollar economy, for if one thing is important it is to work on new ways to stop the real loss in the good earth that feeds and clothes us.

ONE OF THE important functions of the Federal Government in these matters is to provide know-how and guidance for the States and local districts that are setting up soil-conservation projects. There are now more than 1800 such districts covering about three fourths of all the farms in the United States.

But in spite of what has been done so far, the losses are still terrifyingly large. H. H. Bennett, chief of the Soil Conservation Service, estimates we are losing around 500,000 acres of farmland through erosion every year. Measured by the dollar sign, this is at least a billion dollars a year.

Soil conservation, through terracing, contour plowing and numerous other techniques, is directly related to floods. The more water that can be kept in the soil, the lower the level of the flooded rivers. Bennett believes it is possible to cut down flood crests as much as 20 per cent through work now being undertaken.

From one river system you hear no reports of floods. This is the Tennessee Valley. Thanks to TVA, the Tennessee system is today the best-controlled river system in the world.

Heavy rainfall in the Tennessee Valley in 1945 and '46 would almost certainly have brought major flood damage at such vulnerable points as Chattanooga if it had not been for TVA's dams and conservation system. Here is an example of constructive effort that stands out in startling contrast to the disaster in the Mississippi Valley—a disaster that will cost at least 100 million dollars quite apart from the soil loss. We can do these things if only we will have faith in our own powers.

Summer Crisis?

By Ernest Lindley

Threat Of Russian Obstruction

THE COLLAPSE of the Paris Conference can hardly be called a disappointment, since few, if any, informed observers in Washington really expected the Soviet Union to cooperate in a continental European plan for economic reconstruction.

Lindley

The French government has proceeded to invite the Soviet satellites in eastern Europe to join with their western neighbors in drawing up a balance sheet. The Russian position, as stated at Paris, would appear to preclude participation in a joint plan by the nations in the Russian orbit. Some of the satellites might prevail upon the Kremlin to modify its attitude, so that they can reap at least a little benefit from the Marshall proposal. But the strong words of Molotov's closing statement at Paris makes this appear improbable.

THE ALTERNATIVE is an economic plan for western Europe. And Molotov has given warning that Russia will oppose any such plan. His words, "The Soviet government considers it necessary to caution the governments of Great Britain and of France against the consequences of such action," are what Foreign Secretary Bevin called them, a "threat."

If the Russians are as determined to block a western Europe economic plan as Mr. Molotov's words indicate, they may be expected to employ to the utmost their Communist fifth columns, which are especially numerous and well organized in both France and Italy. The European economic crisis which was expected to come to a head in 1948 may therefore be preceded by a political crisis, or series of political crises, which will expedite and aggravate the economy crisis.

In Italy, Communist gangs already have begun to resort to violence. In France, with their control of so many of the labor unions, they are capable of precipitating a full-sized crisis. Whether the Russians are ready to make their bid now for control of Italy and France, perhaps not even the Kremlin has made up its mind. But Molotov's closing statement at Paris apparently was intended to intimidate the governments of western Europe, as well as those further east.

THE EXTENT to which western Europe stands up in the face of a Soviet campaign of intimidation, supported by fifth column activities, will depend very largely on the extent to which it feels sure of the support of the United States. The firm assurance of such support may be needed sooner than was expected when the Marshall proposal was made. The new economic aid itself may not be essential sooner than was then thought, but the guarantee that it will be forthcoming when needed may be essential at a very early date. And, it goes without saying, western Europe must remain confident that the United States will honor its basic obligation under the United Nations Charter, to repel aggression, with force if necessary.

While it was expected that the Kremlin would oppose a continental plan for European recovery and that it would object also to a western European plan, the Russian reaction has been sharper than some informed observers had anticipated. It would seem prudent for the country to be prepared for more shocks in Europe during the next few weeks or months.

The Gallup Poll

U. S. Opinion Is Nearly 50-50 On Women as Church Pastors

By George Gallup

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., July 4.—The American public is about equally divided in its opinion on the idea of having women in the pulpits of the churches.

The question came to public notice recently when a majority of the districts in the Presbyterian Church voted down a move to open the ministry of that denomination to women.

To determine the attitudes of the entire adult population, the Institute conducted a Nation-wide poll on the question:

"Some churches now permit women to be ministers. Do you think a woman would make as good a minister as a man?

Forty-seven per cent indicated they would rather continue having men minister to the religious welfare of their communities, while 43 per cent voiced a willingness to give women a chance in the pulpit. Two per cent see nothing wrong with the idea, but they would want to be sure that the applicant's background, personality and marital status meets the tastes of the individual congregation. Eight per cent had no opinion.

A number of women evangelists, Aimee Semple McPherson for example, have won American reputations. Maude Royden, a Congregationalist, is one of England's prominent clerics. However, less than 3 per cent of the ordained ministers in America were women at the time of the 1940 population census. With more students attending theological schools than at any other time, only about 5 per cent of the candidates for the Bachelor of Divinity degree are women and all of them may not become ministers.

Most of the larger denominations do not permit women to be ministers. Among the churches having no such limitations are:

Disciples of Christ, Northern Baptist Convention, Congregational Christian Churches, Evangelical United Brethren Church, African Methodist Episcopal Zion Church Society of Friends and Seventh Day Baptists. The United Church of Canada also has women ministers.

About the same number of men as women say they would not mind having women ministers.

Among church members polled there is less approval of the idea than among nonchurch members. As for members of the Catholic faith, which has an age-old-tradition of a male priesthood, about one third agreed that females would make good ministers. Many of these Catholics, however, were thinking in terms of denominations other than Catholic.

The vote by religion:

	Approve	Disapprove	Qualified	No opin.
Nonchurch members	52%	37%	1%	10%
Protestant Church members	44	48	3	6
Catholic Church members	30	58	1	11

When it comes to politics and professions other than the ministry, the country tends to give women more of a break. The Institute asked voters this question:

What is your feeling about having more women serve as governors, senators, doctors, lawyers and in other professions?

The replies:

Approval	46%
Qualified Approval	7
Disapproval	41
No Opinion	6

More women than men would like to see women move out of the kitchen to become lawyers, doctors and politicians. Those who gave qualified approval think more use should be made of feminine talents in the professions but that women shouldn't meddle in politics. The amount of education a voter has received evidently affects his judgment on this question: 61 per cent of college graduates approve, compared with only 38 per cent of those with grammar school education.

In an institute poll conducted a year-and-a-half ago a majority of the voters questioned said they would not vote for a woman presidential candidate, and did not approve of women in the President's Cabinet. However, a majority of those having an opinion said they would approve of a capable woman on the United States Supreme Court and would vote for a woman gubernatorial candidate if she seemed the best qualified.

Macedonians Favor U. S. Direction of Loan

By M. W. Fodor

(Post reporter, authority on the Balkans and the Near East, author of "South of Hitler," "Plot and Counterplot in Central Europe," and other works.)

Salonika, Macedonia, Greece.—"Mr. Dwight Griswold better come direct to Macedonia and in a hurry. If the situation is not remedied here, he won't be able to come to Macedonia at all, even if he wishes to do so. . . ."

This gloomy comment on the Macedonian situation was uttered by a serious student of Greek affairs, an American who lived in Greece for years and knows every nook of this rugged country. Probably living so near to armed trouble caused our friend to take such an extremely gloomy view. Yet, indeed, the picture we find here is despondent.

Greece is an agricultural country and Macedonia is her granary. This usually richest agrarian part of the country is today the poorest of all. Those who are misled by the fine shops in Athens, bursting with commodities which are even rare in the United States, ought to come here to see the true situation. Extreme poverty has been made worse by this year's drought and subsequent bad crop, 60 per cent below normal. In addition, the civil war is being fought out in the hills and rocky mountains of this unfortunate province. Pitched battles nearby put Salonika in a position resembling that of Washington during the Civil War.

Widespread Discouragement

There is discouragement all over Macedonia. Unrest is now spreading right into Salonika. The causes of this distress are both external and internal. Andartes (Greek guerillas) come and go across the rugged mountains which form the frontier between Yugoslavia and Greece. I was told by people who ought to know (Greek officials refuse to give figures or information on this subject) that in the "nomos" (prefecture) of Florina only 23 villages and towns are controlled by the government, out of a total of 306. From some 203 towns and villages in the Kozani "nomos" only 50 are secured by the government. The others are either in the hands of the Andartes or are in no-man's land.

The Andartes who come down from their mountain hide-outs or cross over from Yugoslavia, raid the villages, seize the harvest and livestock and burn the villages. When they withdraw, they take the entire male population with them. Sometimes they have no time to evacuate the population from these communities. Then, after their withdrawal, the Greek army, police and the "M. A. Y.", a rightist organization, enter the community. Very often these government forces illtreat those whom they accuse of being Communists. Many people who hate Communism, but don't see eye-to-eye with the incumbent regime, fare the fate of the Communists. Unfortunately both right and left often indulge in the practice of cutting off the heads of the victims . . .

Frightened Villagers Flee

Ten miles west of Florina begins the no-man's land, and even on this side of this Macedonian city a pitched battle was fought between the Greek army and Andartes on June 22. In this guerilla-infested territory, mines, sniping and ambushes prevent the pilgrim's progress.

Fearing retaliation from both sides, the frightened villagers flock into the big cities. Kozani has 13,000 refugees; Salonika's population in recent years doubled to 600,000, of whom at least 10 per cent are said to be recently arrived refugees. There is actual starvation in Florina and Kozani, with the Andartes grabbing the harvest and livestock, and the army requisitioning the rest.

Many places, like Krakaro, were burned down 100 per cent by the Andartes. Other villages were evacuated by the police to prevent the Andartes' "conscription" of the male population. In the mountains the situation is simply hopeless. Remember: the Yugoslav frontier is only 35 miles from the outskirts of Salonika!

Living conditions are heartbreaking in the towns and villages of the Macedonian plain, at least out of the reach of the actual fighting. Let's visit some of these villages and hear what the inhabitants have to say.

Look to America

The village of Kalohori is only about 10 miles from the center of Salonika, situated near the bay shore, and, on clear days, within sight of 10,000-ft. high, snowclad, overawing Mount Olympus. The nearby swamps were drained by an American company (I believe, by Monk and Uhlen) between the two wars. In a small and neat house at the end of the typical Macedonian village I found Triandaphilos Androniades. He is a thickset, heavy man, with a week's old beard of whitish hue, patched-up clothes and with a somewhat limping gait. Andronides lived for two years in New York City. Later he had a candy store at 224 Courtland st., Chicago, Ill. He came back to Greece in 1921. He said with deep sorrow in his voice:

"It was a great mistake. Now I am telling to the villagers how people live in America."

I asked him about his views concerning the best practical use of the American loan.

"We are worried," said Andronides, "how this loan is going to be used. We would like to know, who is going to distribute it? If Greeks will handle the funds, nothing will reach us poor villagers. You Americans must control the disposal of this loan."

Andronides complained bitterly about the economic situation in Kalohori.

"Our crop was less than half of last year's average crop. My fields have yielded only 3000 oks (about 7000 pounds) of wheat. It is impossible to live on it. Only gardening keeps us alive."

Farmers All in Debt

There is fortunately water in the village for irrigation purposes, and the gardens were full of luscious tomatoes, eggplant, onions and legumes.

"Every farmer is in debt to the Agrarian Bank. If we sell our properties, it does not yield enough to pay our debts."

Andronides told us that the entire village consisted of refugees who came from Bulgaria in 1917 (during the First World War) and from Turkish Thrace after 1922.

"I have built my house with money which I saved in America, but the rest of the villagers constructed the houses with the aid of an American loan," explained Andronides. This loan was issued by the League of Nations, but was mostly subscribed in the United States. Then Andronides told me that he had a sister-in-law, Mrs. Chrysantis Seraphim, in Astoria, N. Y.

As we passed through Kalohori, other citizens of the village confirmed the complaints of Kyrios (Mister) Andronides.

Carrier Shangri-La Being Deactivated

San Francisco, July 4 (AP).—The Navy has decided to put the war-famed aircraft carrier Shangri-la in the moth ball fleet.

Officers of the carrier said they did not know why the ship was being deactivated but that perhaps it was because she is a few months older than active carriers in the Pacific Fleet. Many a Japanese plane plunged into the sea before the guns of the Shangri-la's aircraft.

Strategic Air Force Strength To Be Doubled by Year's End

By John G. Norris

Post Reporter

Plans to double the strength of the United States Strategic Air Force by the end of this year, were revealed yesterday by Gen. George C. Kenney, its commander.

Kenney said he expected his Strategic Air Command will increase the number of its very heavy bombardment groups from 6 to 12 within six months and that some units will have powerful new B-50 bombers.

The veteran Army airman discussed the AAF expansion program, as the War Department announced the creation of the first of the six new VHB groups to be activated.

Designated as the Ninety-second VHB Group, the new unit will be based at Spokane, Wash., close to the northwest tip of the United States and nearest point to Alaska and Siberia.

An AAF depot now at the Spokane Army Air Field will be moved out and three squadrons of B-29 Superfortresses installed, it was said. Supplies now at the depot will be left for B-29 needs, the announcement said.

Strength of the new group will be 296 officers and 1571 enlisted men. One squadron and more than 500 officers and men reported at Spokane within the past two weeks, and the group will receive its full complement of 33 B-29s and reach peacetime manpower strength within the next few months.

Commenting on plans for rebuilding his long range bomber force, Kenney said:

"We now have a hard-hitting and efficient force. But it is small and not adequate for our mission. We expect, however, to add two more groups to our present six very soon, and hope to reach 15 to 18 groups before too long. I should say we'd double our strength by the end of the year."

The AAF Strategic Air Command now consists of the following very heavy bomber units: Seventh Group, Fort Worth, Tex.; Forty-third Group, Tucson, Ariz.; Twenty-eighth Group, Rapid City, S. Dak.; Ninety-Seventh Group, Smoky Hill, Kans.; 307th Group, McDill Field, Fla.; 509th Group, Roswell, N. Mex.

More Senators Seen Needed To Break Vote Probe Deadlock

Additional members may be named to the Senate Judiciary Committee investigating the Kansas City vote frauds in order to break up a deadlock, it was reported on Capitol Hill yesterday.

The subcommittee headed by Senator Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.), top GOP investigator, is split three ways over a recommendation for a full Senate inquiry into the conduct of Attorney General Tom Clark.

Ferguson has prepared a report strongly critical of Clark because he ordered only a limited FBI inquiry into the vote fraud scandal in President Truman's home bailiwick in Kansas City. The scandal flamed up anew several weeks ago when a safe was dynamited and ballots which formed part of a county grand jury case were stolen.

The county grand jury handed down some 78 indictments in the case and the FBI was then directed to make a complete inquiry. FBI officials admitted the safe-blowing and theft of the ballots would hamper their inquiry into the conduct of the Democratic primary last August, when President Truman's candidate, Enos Axtell, defeated incumbent Representative Roger Slaughter (D., Mo.). Axtell later was defeated by a Republican in the general election.

Ferguson's report has never been acted upon by the full subcommittee. The other two members, Senators William Langer (R., N. Dak.) and Pat McCarran (D., Nev.), have each prepared a separate report

The full Senate Judiciary Committee cannot act until the deadlock in the subcommittee is broken.

Capitol Hill authorities pointed out yesterday that Chairman Alexander Wiley (R., Wis.) of the full committee has the power to appoint additional members of the subcommittee and thus free the log jam.

Congress to Give Priority To Six-Point Loyalty Bill

By The Associated Press

Republican leaders said yesterday that enactment of a six-point loyality standard for Federal employes is almost certain before Congress adjourns at the end of this month.

Among other things, the measure is designed to winnow out Federal employes maintaining even "sympathetic association" with any communist, fascist, totalitarian or subservsive group in this country or abroad.

It is designed, also, to prevent "leaks" in confidential Government information.

Action Due Next Week

With only three weeks to go before the scheduled July 26 adjournment goal, GOP leaders gave the measure a top priority rating for congressional action next week, along with bills for unification of the armed forces and the rejuvenated billion dollar tax cut.

House passage of the loyalty bill is expected next week. It then would go to the Senate.

The loyalty standard was recently set up by President Truman in an executive order establishing a loyalty committee to check on the Americanism of Government workers. The House Civil Service Committee, however, decided that a law is needed.

The proposed loyalty board, in determining whether an employe or applicant for a Federal job should be in Government service, would be instructed to consider the individual's record on these six points:

1. Sabotage, espionage, or attempts or preparations therefor, or knowingly associating with spies or saboteurs.

2. Treason or sedition or advocacy thereof.

3. Advocacy of revolution by force or violence to alter the constitutional form of government of the United States.

4. Intentional, unauthorized disclosure to any person, under circumstances which may indicate disloyalty to the United States, of documents or information of a confidential or nonpublic character obtained by the employe making the disclosure as a result of his employment in or under the executive branch of the Government.

5. Performing or attempting to perform his duties as an employe, or otherwise acting, so as to serve the interests of another government in preference to the interests of the United States.

6. Membership in, affiliation with, or sympathetic association with, any foreign or domestic organization, association, movement, group, or combination of persons, designated by the Attorney General as totalitarian, fascist, communist, or subversive, or as having adopted a policy of advocating or approving the commission of acts of force or violence to deny other persons their rights under the Constitution of the United States, or as seeking to alter the form of government of the United States by unconstitutional means.

Calvary Sets 'Christmas in July' Service

The fifth annual Christmas-in-July service July 13 at 11 a. m. at Calvary Baptist Church will aid the new George Washington Hospital.

The proceeds will be used to equip a memorial room honoring the late Dean William Allen Wilbur, for 40 years a faculty member of George Washington University. A member of Calvary Baptist Church, he died January 26, 1945.

In previous years, collections from the unique Christmas-in-July service have been used to buy gifts that must be shipped in August to reach distant mission posts by Christmas.

Dr. Clarence W. Cranford, pastor of Calvary Baptist Church, started the Christmas-in-July idea in his previous pulpits in Philadelphia and Richmond.

Christianity Attracts Many On Okinawa

A program of "religious infiltration" launched by a group of Okinawans may convert most of the island's 580,000 individuals, according to Dr. Garland E. Hopkins.

Dr. Hopkins recently returned from a four months' trip through the Far East on behalf of the Methodist Church, the Church Committee on International Affairs of the World Council of Churches and the International Missionary Council.

Reporting to the Okinawa Committee of the Foreign Missions Conference of North America, Dr. Hopkins told how Toyama Seiken, lay leader of Okinawa's little pre-war Christian community, organized the Okinawa Christian Association.

"Only six ordained ministers were available," Dr. Hopkins related, "but Hoyama was undaunted. He called together several outstanding lay workers, commissioned them as 'acting pastors' and sent them out to organize cells of activity in strategic centers all over the island.

Dr. Braskamp To Serve House

Dr. Bernard Braskamp, pastor of Gunton-Temple Memorial Presbyterian Church, has been appointed acting chaplain of the House of Representatives for the remainder of this session. He will serve in the vacation absence of Dr. James Shera Montgomery, the regular House chaplain.

D. C. Woman, 96, Still Sews to Aid Needy

NONAGENARIAN KNITS—Mrs. Andrew R. Marsh, 96, (second from right) is knitting for hospitals and other institutions through a weekly project sponsored by the women of the Universalist National Memorial Church, 16th and S sts. nw. At work are (from left) Mrs. Jennie Parker, Miss Eva M. Chase, Mrs. F. W. Erdman, Mrs. W. H. McGlauflin, Mrs. Clara B. Pitcher, Mrs. George S. Holman, Mrs. Marsh and Mrs. R. H. Higgins. Mrs. Holman is Mrs. Marsh's daughter Mrs. Andrew J. Marsh is living proof that age need be no handicap in doing Christian deeds.

This 96-year-old woman goes every Wednesday to the Universalist National Memorial Church, 16th and S sts. nw., to join with others in sewing garments for various projects.

Mrs. Marsh, who lives at 3941 Livingston st. nw., loves to sew and tat, works without glasses. She was born September 15, 1850, in Canton, Me.

Sew for Red Cross

The women sew for the American Red Cross; for local hospitals and other institutions through the Washington Council of Church Women; for the District welfare projects; for Veterans' Hospitals and for the Frontier Nursing Service in Kentucky, and for the Goodwill Industries here.

They also repair garments to be sent to the Church World Service Center at New Windsor, Md., for eventual shipment abroad.

Miss Rose Erdman of 1404 Delafield pl. nw., is chairman of the sewing project.

Among other women workers are Mrs. F. W. Erdman, the chairman's mother; Mrs. Seth R. Brooks, wife of the pastor of the Universalist National Memorial Church; Miss Eva Chase, Miss Clara B. Pitcher and Mesdames C. B. Bradnack, Edgar B. Calvert, George S. Holman, Lola Millard, Frank W. Miller, William H. McGlauflin, Jennie C. H. Parker and Lydia S. Pitcher.

Pastor Praises Project

"This weekly sewing project has been a vital factor in keeping women of my church together through their interest in a common project," commented Dr. Seth R. Brooks, pastor of the Universalist National Memorial Church.

"They have done a tremendous amount of good," he said, "with hundreds of pounds of material repaired and shipped overseas. The project is fulfilling a great need in our church."

Dr. Brooks, by the way, dropped in his church last Wednesday to look over the sewing project and enjoy a lunch with the women. "I was amazed at the amount of work they turn out in one day," he said afterward.

Bible Conference To Hear Writer

Evangelist Tom M. Olson of San Francisco, Calif., will address a Bible conference July 11 at 2:30 p.m. and 8 p.m. at the National Tabernacle, Piney Branch, rd. and Georgia ave. nw. He is author of the Evangelical International Sunday School Lesson in the Sunday School Times.

Dr. Latch to Preach At Mt. Vernon Place

Dr. Edward G. Latch, pastor of Metropolitan Memorial Methodist Church, will speak tomorrow at 8 p. m. at Mount Vernon Place Church, 9th st. and Massachusetts ave. nw. Dr. John W. Rustin will preach at 9 a. m. and 11:15 a. m. on "Is God Essential?"

The District of Columbia Baptist Training Union Association will hold its first summer assembly July 7-14 at Camp Wabanna, Calawassee, Md.

The Rev. Walter Hill, formerly associate pastor of Metropolitan Baptist Church, will direct the camp activities, in cooperation with the Rev. J. Ray Garrett, pastor of Second Baptist Church. The Rev. Frank Burress, pastor of Fountain Memorial Baptist Church, heads the Training Union Association. Representative A. Leonard Allen (D., La.) will address a patriotic rally at the camp July 13 at 8 p. m.

Dr. K. Owen White, pastor of Metropolitan Baptist Church here, will be camp pastor. Mrs. Fred Nash will lead the conferences.

Bible School Opens Monday

Four Northeast Washington churches will open a joint daily vacation Bible School Monday at 9 a. m. at Ninth Street Christian Church, 9th and D sts. ne.

In addition to the host church, other cooperating congregations will be Eastern Presbyterian, Keller Memorial Lutheran and Ingram Memorial Congregational Churches. Children from 5 to 15 years old are eligible for the school, sessions of which will continue until July 18.

Accent on Youth

Junior Deacons Lead Service

The Board of Junior Deacons will conduct vespers tomorrow at 5 p. m. at Lincoln Congregational Temple, 11th and R sts. nw. Dr. Robert W. Brooks, pastor, will discuss "Youth's Challenge and the New World."

Delegates from First Congregational Church attending the Pilgrim Fellowship Conference this week at Blairstown, N. J., are the Rev. Hubert W. Beckwith, assistant pastor, and member of the conference faculty; Ann Asenbeck, Carol Benson, George Briggs, Fred Cain, Larry Holmes, Harry Hughes, Pat Knudson, June Lee, David Lord, Margaret Preston, Doris and Marion Radley and Willard Thompson.

The Young Adult Fellowship of National City Christian Church will present a patriotic program tomorrow at 7 p. m. in the social hall, 1308 Vermont ave. nw.

Miss Thelma Herriman will give a dramatic reading of "The Man Without a Country." Other participants will be Mrs. Polly Campbell, Robert Meeker and Mrs. Jane Ross. Dr. J. Warren Hastings will address worship services tomorrow

Lawn Service Is Scheduled For Leesburg

A number of outdoor and other summer church programs are scheduled for the Greater Washington area tomorrow. Guest clergymen will substitute for vacationing preachers.

The Rev. William A. Emmans, pastor of Maryland Avenue Baptist Church, will address services in Lincoln Park, 12th and East Capitol sts. at 4 p. m. The program will be sponsored by the YMCA and churches of Northeast and Southeast Washington.

Hundreds of Washington church folks will make a pilgrimage to Leesburg, Va., where a service will be held on the courthouse lawn at 8 p. m., marking the silver jubilee of the District of Columbia Organized Bible Class Association.

Flag to be Presented

The association will present a Christian flag to the Rev. J. Shenton Lodge, pastor of Leesburg Methodist Church, scene of the meeting that launched the Organized Bible Class Association on July 4, 1922.

Dr. Page McK. Etchison, Bible Association president and religious work secretary of the Central YMCA, will conduct the Leesburg program. Dr. Clifford Homer Richmond, pastor of Chevy Chase Methodist Church, will speak on "Faith of Our Fathers."

Members of the Universalist National Memorial and Mount Pleasant Congregational Churches will hold joint services tomorrow at 11 a. m. at the latter place, 1410 Columbia rd. nw. Chaplain Rowland C. Adams of Fort Meade, Md., will speak.

Guest Preachers

The Rev. Robert L. Lang, superintendent of the National Lutheran Home, will speak tomorrow at 11 a. m. at Atonement Lutheran Church, North Capitol st. and Rhode Island ave. nw., in place of the Rev. Paul L. Reaser, the pastor.

Summer Schedule Begins

Beginning tomorrow and continuing through July and August, the morning service at Ninth Street Christian Church, 9th and D sts. ne., will begin at 10:30 a. m. The Rev. J. Lloyd Black, pastor, will speak tomorrow morning on "So Great a Heritage." The young people's groups will sponsor summer Sunday services at 7:45 p. m.

African Missionary Among Guest Speakers

Mrs. Bertha Corbin, a returned missionary from Africa, will speak at 11 a. m. tomorrow at 15th Street Presbyterian Church, 15th and R sts. nw. This will be her last public appearance before sailing for Africa July 18.

Dr. Jenney Speaks

Dr. Raymond Freeman Jenney, pastor of Bryn Mawr Community Church, Chicago, Ill., will speak at 11 a. m. tomorrow at First Congregational Church, 10th and G sts. nw. He was onetime pastor of the Park Central Presbyterian Church in Syracuse, N. Y., and was a chaplain in World War I.

Guest speaker at 11 a. m. tomorrow at All Souls Unitarian Church, 16th and Harvard sts. nw., will be the Rev. William Whittemore Lewis, minister of the historic South Parish, Portsmouth, N. H.

Service Hour Changed

Meanwhile, Dr. J. Hillman Hollister, pastor of Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church, announced that during July and August the Sunday services will be at 9:30 to 10:30 a. m., instead of 11 a. m. His subject tomorrow will be "Why Fear?"

Four Churches To Broadcast On Sunday

Several churches will broadcast their services tomorrow over Washington stations.

The service at 11 a. m., and other services at that hour during July, will be broadcast from the Washington Cathedral over WINX.

The Rockville Baptist Church will begin a series of broadcasts over WGAY at 11:30 a. m. The Rev. William B. Adams, pastor, and former Army chaplain, and who has had wide radio experience, will bring the opening address. The Rockville Baptist choir, directed by Harry Beall, will sing.

St. Paul's Lutheran services will be broadcast over WBCC at 11 a. m. from the church at Connecticut ave. and Everett st. nw. Dr. Henry W. Snyder will speak on "God and Caesar."

Dr. Blackwelder Speaks

Ex-Teacher Writes of Life Of Missionary in Baghdad

By Robert Tate Allan
Post Reporter

Pleasures and problems of being a missionary are described in a letter from Miss Lynda Carver, now in Baghdad, formerly active in the National (Covenant-First) Presbyterian Church here.

"My Arabic vocabulary is growing but it is difficult," she wrote to this department. "I get some practice with Jamilah, the 16-year-old servant girl; Hamzah, the iceman, and the grocer boy. Then I must write my vegetable order in Arabic.

"The temperature has already reached 108 degrees with 10 or 12 more degrees to rise," she related, "and I am cooling off at 9:30 p. m. writing by electric light which floods the garden and attracts the bugs."

"One of the joys of our house is the fun of having our friends, for people are very hospitable here. We like having late tea in the garden and enjoy the sunset and twilight here. Then it is marvelous sleeping on the roof. All roofs are flat with about a three-foot wall around the edge, so everybody sleeps outside during the heat."

In May, 1946, Miss Carver resigned as principal of Montgomery Hills (Md.) Junior High School to serve under the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions. She was onetime president of the Christian En-

DIPLOMAT AUTHORS BOOK

Dr. Alfred Bilmanis, Latvian Minister to the United States, is author of a book on "The Church in Latvia." Dr. Bilmanis was originally of the Lutheran faith but was converted to Catholicism shortly after coming to America.

CHAPLAIN AT CATHEDERAL

Maj. Johnstone Beech, Army chaplain, will preach tomorrow at 11 a. m. at the Washington Cathedral, with which organization he will be affiliated until the middle of August. The Rev. Crawford W. Brown, acting canon precentor and former chief of the Veterans Bureau chaplaincy, will preach at 4 p. m.

Chaplain Beech, now awaiting separation from the Army, was severely wonded in August, 1944, while serving with the Twelfth Army in France. While recovering in the hospital, he resigned as rector of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Staten Island, N. Y. He and his wife are temporarily living at the College of Preachers, Washington Cathederal.

NEW MINISTER OF MUSIC

Luther C. Carter has begun his new duties as minister of music at Petworth Baptist Church, 7th and Randolph sts. nw. He will train the five choirs and give private voice lessons.

He holds a master's degree in sacred music from Northwestern University. He studied at the University of Chicago and was for eight years head of the voice department of Carson Newman College, Jefferson City, Tenn. He was formerly music director at First Baptist Church, Knoxville, Tenn. and Main Street Baptist Church, Jacksonville, Fla., and was for two years tenor soloist at National Baptist Memorial Church here. He and his family are living at 29 Westmoreland ave., Takoma Park, Md.

BAUTZ GETS SCHOLARSHIP

The Rev. Donald F. Bautz, executive secretary of the Washington Lutheran Inner Mission Society, has received a full maintenance scholarship to the Yale School of Alcohol Studies for the 1947 summer sesion this month. The school disseminates findings of scientific research available for application to the problems of alcohol in the community. Meanwhile, Mr. Bautz announced yesterday there are a openings for applicants to the Mission's summer camp at Jolly Acres, Md.

MISS GIANCOLA APPOINTED

Miss Anna G. Giancola tomorrow will begin her new duties as director of Christian education at Hamline Methodist Church, 16th and Allison sts. nw.

She recently served as extension worker for the board of education, New England Southern Conference of the Methodist Church. She is a native of New Castle, Pa., and a graduate of the National College for Christian Workers, Kansas City, Mo.

Of Personal Interest

Dr. Brooks Will Be Summer Resident Preacher at Harvard

Dr. Seth R. Brooks, pastor of the Universalist National Memorial Church, will be resident preacher at Harvard University during August and early September.

In that capacity, he will conduct morning prayers in Appleton Chapel and preach at Sunday morning services in Harvard Memorial Church. He will live in the preacher's quarters at Lowell House, and serve as chaplain of the university.

Dr. Enders' Anniversary

Dr. Charles Enders, pastor of Concordia Lutheran Evangelical Church, 20th and G sts. nw., tomorrow at 11 a. m. will observe the 40th anniversary of his ordination to the ministry. His sermon theme will be "A Testimony."

He was ordained July 7, 1907, at St. John's Evangelical Church, Richmond, Va. Before coming here 23 years ago, he served pulpits in New York City, Baltimore, Detroit and Kansas City. He is a member of the board of missions of the Evangelical and Reformed Church, vice president of the Washington Federation of Churches, and former president of the Washington Ministerial Union.

3 High Nazis In Italy Escape Death Verdict

Rome, July 4 (AP).—Death sentences imposed on three former German commanders in Italy, Field Marshal Kesselring, Col. Gen. Eberhard von Mackensen and Lieut. Gen. Kurt Maeltzer, have been commuted to life imprisonment by the British high command in Italy, it was announced today. The announcement was made through the British Embassy in Rome.

Kesselring

Kesselring, who directed the stubborn German retreat northward in Italy in 1944, was convicted of responsibility for the Ardeatine Caves massacre of 335 Italians in reprisal for the killing of 32 German police troops.

Von Mackensen and Maeltzer were also convicted of responsibility for the Ardeatine Caves massacre.

Paroled Killer Goes Berserk, Slain by Police

Nashville, Tenn., July 4 (AP).—A paroled Negro killer, who police said went on a shooting and dynamiting rampage in a frenzied effort to free himself of an imagined "hex," was slain last night in a gun battle.

The victim, Robert Waddy, 47, went down under a fusillade of police bullets in a brisk exchange in which Assistant Police Chief Martin Stephens was wounded slightly in the knee.

A manhunt had been under way for Waddy since last Tuesday when a combination residence-filing station occupied by a fortuneteller was blown up, followed by the "voodoo" shooting of two Negro women the next morning.

Tipped that Waddy would appear at a friend's home last night, police laid an elaborate ambush. He walked into it and, when challenged, he started shooting.

Waddy was wounded but dashed out of the police trap and ran to the home of another acquaintance three blocks away. There he was killed by the pursing police.

Arctic Development Aid Asked of All by Canada

Ottawa, July 4 (U.P.).—Canada welcomes the cooperation of any "northern nation" in developing Arctic regions, External Affairs Minister Louis St. Laurent told Commons today.

Speaking with particular reference to weather stations established in the Arctic, St. Laurent said that though present activities were being carried out only by the United States and Canada, there was no intention of excluding other powers.

Marge Hurlburt, Famed Flier, Is Killed Stunting at Circus

Decorah, Iowa, July 4 (AP).—Marge Hurlburt, women's speed flyer, was killed about 2:50 p. m. (CST) today when an A-T-6 she was flying in a Fourth of July airshow crashed at the Decorah Airport.

Miss Hurlburt, who set a new world record for women of 337 miles an hour in Florida last winter, zoomed over the field before a crowd of several thousand spectators and went into a loop.

Her plane failed to come out of the loop and dived into the ground at the east end of the airport. It did not catch fire.

Grain Thieves Jailed

Moscow, July 4 (AP).—Newspaper reports said today that seven thieves who stole 111 tons of grain from a southern elevator received terms of three to 25 years. Several were officials.

Deportations Laid to Tito

Frankfurt, July 4 (INS).—An official British observer with the Refugee Defense Committee said tonight that more than 40,000 anti-Communist Yugoslavs are now awaiting forced expulsion to Austria and Germany from Yugloslav slave labor camps.

Harold Smith, the observer, declared that the "famished and desperate" men and women are being evicted under the Yugoslav policy of "ridding the country of its anti-Communist minority."

Smith, who has just completed an inspection tour of the Yugoslav-Austrian border area, said that 19,000 so-called "Volksdeutsche" Yugoslavs already have been turned into the over-strained Austrian economy.

Aussie Urges Aid to Britain By Dominions

Canberra, Australia, July 4 (AP).—Opposition Leader R. G. Menzies suggested today that all British dominions send senior representatives, preferably prime ministers, to a British Empire conference to devise "a general strategy for winning the 1947 battle for Britain."

He advocated that Australia as a starter announce her willingness to provide the mother country with 323 million dollars worth of whatever materials Britain desired.

"Disaster to the old country would mean disaster and ruin to the world in general and Australia in particular," said Menzies, a former Prime Minister.

Paraguayan Gunboats May Attempt Blockade

Montevideo, Uruguay, July 4 (AP).—Two Paraguayan gunboats, anchored off Carmelo since their seizure by Paraguayan rebels in May, sailed up the Parana River today. Observers said they might attempt to blockade loyalist ports of southern Paraguay.

Several Paraguayan army officers were aboard in addition to the crews. The vessels were the Humaita and the Paraguay. Rebels seized them in Buenos Aires harbor.

War Department Accepts 2615 Units Of National Guard

The War Department has given its approval to about 41 per cent of the 6388 National Guard units planned for the postwar national defense structure.

Maj. Gen. Butler B. Miltonberger, National Guard bureau chief, announced yesterday that Federal recognition has been granted so far to 2358 ground and 257 air units in the various States and territories.

When a guard unit qualifies, by virtue of its strength, equipment and other factors for Federal recognition, its personnel receives Federal pay for each of the 48 weekly training periods and the 15-day summer field training.

Forest Fire Loss Is Half Million In California

Los Angeles, July 4 (AP).—Property damage soared past the half-million mark and at least 200 persons were homeless today in southern California's two worst brush and forest fires of the season.

Biggest property loss was in the Chatsworth section, in the foothills above the San Fernando Valley, where wind-sped flames last night destroyed 50 houses. The Red Cross quickly set up an emergency station in a schoolhouse, passing out blankets and food. Many had lost all their possessions.

Yankees Thump Nats Twice, 7-3, 4-2

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

NEW YORK, July 4.—Bill Veeck, the Cleveland owner who broke American League precedent by signing a colored ball player, did it at least the correct way in contrast to Brooklyn's grab of Jackie Robinson from the Kansas City Monarchs of the Negro National League.

POVICH

The Kansas City club squawked, and justifiably, a coupe of years ago when Branch Rickey whisked Robinson out of their lineup and put him in Brooklyn's Montreal farm without so much as an if-you-please.

Not a shilling passed between Rickey and the Monarch owners. When Veeck signed Larry Doby, of the Newark National League club the other day, it was all very businesslike with $15,000 being paid over to Mrs. Effie Manley, owner of the Newark franchise.

This Doby fellow is a considerable ballplayer, as I hear it, even with his .400 batting average in the Negro National League dismissed as an unsafe standard.

Mickey Vernon, who played with him on Navy teams at Great Lakes, says "He's a good ballplayer." The Yankees who saw a lot of him in Puerto Rico where he was playing on All-Star teams last spring, are of the same opinion.

IN FACT VERNON, who saw much of Jackie Robinson during his tour with the Feller All-Stars last year, asserts that Doby is a better ballplayer than the Brooklyn first baseman. "I don't know where Doby will end up with the Indians," said Vernon, "because when I saw him trying to play first base, he was no first baseman. He can play second or short, though."

That's where it may be rough for Doby. Of all the things the Indians don't need, a shortstop and second baseman head the list. He'll have to be a triple-distilled wonder to break in at short with Lou Boudreau, the league's leading hitter and the best shortstop in the majors, still around. And at second base the Indians have Joe Gordon, who rates as the finest in the league.

At first base, though, the colored boy from Newark might well make it with the Indians, even if he is something less than a good first baseman. If he can hit as the Cleveland scouts believe he will, well, the Indians will welcome him at first base inasmuch as their present first-sackers, Les Fleming and Eddie Robinson, are no balls of fire.

THE NEGRO RACE is batting 1.000 thus far in the big leagues, with Robinson something of a sensational success with Brooklyn. Going into today's game he had a 20-game hitting streak going and was hitting more than .300. He's the fastest man on the club, leads the league in stolen bases, is tremendously popular with the Brooklyn fans, and is one of the chief reasons why Brooklyn is leading the league.

Robinson isn't a good first baseman, or even an adequate one, but his other talents counteract his defensive weakness. The complaints against him can be easily answered anyway. Natively, he's a second baseman or shortstop, and for a guy who is playing out of position, he is doing an immense job. At second base, he might well be the league's best, and certainly he would be the best-hitting second baseman.

It makes a lousy prophet of Bob Feller, incidentally. After pitching to Robinson on his All-Star tour, Feller delivered the opinion, "That guy won't hit big league pitching." That's the thing Robinson has been doing best.

IN FACT, IF THE Brooklyn club's great need this year was not for a first baseman, Robinson probably would be playing second and as a second baseman he would doubtless be on the National League All-Star team. But at first base, he is a gone pigeon what with Johnny Mize and his 22 home runs overshadowing every other first sacker in the league.

Robinson doesn't scare easily, either. He's been hit by pitched balls seven times this year, more than any other player in the league, but you'd never know it the way he persists in his crowd-the-plate batting stance. He used to sit on the corner of the Dodgers' bench by himself, but now his teammates cotton to him and he's one of the boys.

If Doby is a good ballplayer, he will have fewer worries than Robinson did at the outset. The National is a rougher league than the American, which is not as sharp-tongued. And for the Negro with baseball talent, the significant item was that Cleveland had to outbid a couple of other big league clubs in signing a colored player.

Bogley Ousts Schwartz, Meets Behrens in Finals

Charlottesville, Va., July 4 (AP).—Buddy Behrens, the top-seeded star from Fort Lauderdale, Fla., and Gilbert Bogley, third-ranked entrant from Washington, D. C., advanced today to the final round of singles play in the National Interscholastic Tennis Tournament.

Behrens whizzed through Don Mathey of Deerfield Academy, Mass., with a minimum of effort, 6—4, 6—0.

Bogley sprang one of the tournament surprises, however, in eliminating Sidney Schwartz of Brooklyn in a bitter duel, 8—6, 6—3. Schwartz had been rated a notch above Bogley in the tournament seedings.

Later, Schwartz teamed with Bob Luxenburg to advance to the finals of the doubles competition. The Brooklyn duo, seeded first, beat Jack Turpin and Dixon Osburn of Dallas, 6—4, 7—5.

The combination of Behrens and George King, of Fort Lauderdale, had little trouble reaching the finals by conquering the Dockerill brothers—Walt and Don—of New Rochelle, N. Y. Behrens and King lost only one game in whipping the Dockerills, 6—0, 6—1, in a match which lasted about a half hour.

Behrens and Bogley, the national boys titleholder, meet tomorrow at 2 p. m. for the singles crown with the doubles final scheduled to follow immediately.

Lady Astor will present trophies to the winners after the final round.

Quantico Title Won by Conrad

Quantico, Va., July 4.—Capt. R. L. Conrad won the Quantico Golf Club championship today by defeating Lieut. Col. E. N. Rydalch, 2 up. Conrad had rounds of 75—79 to Rydahlch's 76—80.

Post Athletic Instructor L. Biskup won the flag tournament by planting his marker 200 yards down the 21st fairway.

Walsh, of D. C., Fires 868 for Pistol Meet Lead

Quantico, Va., July 4.—Lieut. Col. Walter Walsh, USMC, of Washington, D. C., led the field of 226 competitors at the end of the first day of the three day fifth annual Eastern Regional Pistol Championships here today with a score of 868 points.

The first day's firing, limited to the .22-caliber pistol, found Walsh firing a 186 out of a possible 200 in the slow-fire match, 198 in the time-fire match, 192 in the rapid-fire and a 295 over the National Match Course.

One point behind the leader was W. L. Devine, Quantico, with an 865, followed by Sergt. Mark Walsh, of the New York City Police, with 864; Lieut. Col N. J. Rodeheffer, USMC, of Hawaii, with 863, and Harold Voebel, New York City Police with 862.

Kramer Easily Whips Brown for Tennis Title

Royal Family Sees Quick Net Victory

By Bill Macklin

London, July 4 (AP).—Jack Kramer of Los Angeles added the Wimbledon singles championship to his imposing list of tennis titles today by routing Tom Brown of San Francisco, 6—1, 6—3, 6—2, in one of the most one-sided finals ever played in the all-England tournament.

Kramer needed only 45 minutes to blow his fellow Californian off Wimbledon's famed center court as the royal family and 15,000 other spectators sat in virtual silence, completely awed by his mastery of the game.

The 25-year-old holder of both the outdoor and indoor titles in his own country drove Brown from the net with passing shots to the pocket, delivered a service that was unbreakable and never surrendered the offensive.

First Since Riggs

In succeeding France's Yvon Petra and recapturing the trophy last brought to America by Bobby Riggs in 1939, Kramer demonstrated conclusively that he is the best amateur player in the world today.

Kramer put Brown on the defensive by stealing his service in the third game of the first set with a battery of passing shots.

From then on he was an unchallenged dictator. He forced the match with a service that credited him with only three clean aces but invited errors by its speed. Whenever Brown failed to get length in his returns, Kramer pounced to the net to kill mercilessly.

Margaret Osborne of San Francisco and Louise Brough of Beverly Hills, Calif., defending champion, turned back Mrs. Molly Blair and Mrs. Kay Stammers of Britain, 6—2, 6—2, while Doris Hart of Miami, Fla., and Mrs. Pat Todd of Hidden Valley, Calif., eliminated Mrs. Jean Bostock and Mrs. Betty Hilton of Britain, 6—0, 6—1, in the women's doubles semifinals.

Miss Osborne and Miss Hart will face each other in the women's singles finals tomorrow and then team with their partners to fight it out for the doubles crown.

The Brough-Bromwich duo reached the finals with a 6—4, 6—2 victory over Miss Hart and her Swedish partner, Lennart Bergelin.

Bromwich Duo Bows

Kramer and Bob Falkenburg of Los Angeles, already in the doubles finals by virtue of a Thursday triumph, will tangle with unranked Tony Mottram of Britain and Billy Sidwell of Australia, who engineered today's biggest upset by whipping the second-seeded Australian combination of Bromwich and Dinny Pails, 6—3, 6—3, 7—5.

When King George—making his first Wimbledon visit since he played in the 1926 tournament—had taken his seat with Queen Elizabeth and Princess Margaret, Kramer and Brown ambled on to the worn lawn for their payoff struggle.

They faced the royal box, dipped their heads and then turned to the match for which they had practiced together, eaten steaks at the same table and shared each other's nervousness in the locker room.

PRINCESS CONGRATULATES KRAMER—Holding his trophy, Jack Kramer, Los Angeles, Calif., is congratulated by Princess Margaret Rose after winning the Wimbledon Men's Tennis championship in England yesterday. Looking on are Queen Elizabeth (behind the Princess) and King George (center). Kramer defeated Tom Brown, San Francisco, 6—1, 6—3, 6—2, for the title

Riggs Beats Elwood Cooke

Bobby Riggs showed 500 tennis enthusiasts why he is considered the world's best player yesterday in an exhibition match at the Army-Navy Country Club.

Riggs, playing his usual back court game, defeated Elwood Cooke, 6—2, 9—7. Riggs handled Cooke's service with ease, and his lobs kept clipping the baseline when Cooke rushed the net.

Cooke's overhead smashes on the lobs he was able to reach kept him in the match, but as usual, the perfection of the champions play was too much to cope with.

In a doubles match, Riggs and Bill Crosby downed Cooke and John Faunce, 4—6, 6—1, 6—1, and in an abbreviated singles exhibition, France downed Crosby, 6—2.

Armed Wins and Sets Track Mark

Chicago, July 4 (AP).—Armed galloped to a two-length victory in the $55,700 Stars and Stripes Handicap at Arlington Park today. With Pleasure was second, Mighty Story third and Eternal Reward fourth. Armed ran the mile and an eighth in 1:49 1/5, a new track record, before a holiday throng of 41,000.

Armed, coming with terrific speed, overhauled the pace-setting With Pleasure at the stretch turn. Armed went to the post at odds of 1 to 2 and paid $3.00, $2.60 and $2.20.

Monarchs Divide Bill With Clowns

Before a holiday crowd of 13,000, the Indianapolis Clowns divided a double-header with the champion Kansas City Monarchs yesterday at Griffith Stadium. The Clowns annexed the opener, 8-7, Pitcher (Hop) Williams, driving in the winning run in the tenth with a single to center.

In the nightcap, the Monarchs won by 7-3, with doubles by Fred Smith and "Hen" Thompson, a triple by Buck Cooper in the fifth figuring in a five-run rally.

Bosox Split With A's, End Losing Streak

Boston, July 4 (AP).—A three-hit pitching performance by Tex Hughson enabled the Boston Red Sox to end a six-game losing streak by shutting out the Philadelphia Athletics, 4-0, in the second game of today's holiday doubleheader. The A's gained their sixth straight win over the American League champions by putting over two runs in the 12th inning for an 8-6 win in the opener.

While giving the Sockers their first Fenway triumph of the season over the Mackmen, Hughson fanned six of them and issued only one base on balls. He struck a mighty blow for his own cause in the second inning by banging out a two-bagger to drive in Birdie Tibbets and Eddie Pellagrini. After going hitless during the opener, Ted Williams collected three singles on his last three appearances in the afterpiece.

Fred Daly Wins With 293

Stranahan Misses Tie for British Open Title By Three Inches on 110-Foot Approach Shot

Hoylake, England, July 4 (AP). Frank Stranahan's desperate 110-yard, last-hole chip shot that stopped dead 3 inches from the pin instead of rolling into the cup cost the Toledo, Ohio, amateur a tie for the British Open golf title today and saved it for Fred Daly of Belfast, Ireland.

Daly's 293 was on the scoreboard before Stranahan, only major American threat after Johnny Bulla and Vic Ghezzi faltered, had gone three holes of the final round.

Then the Ohio muscle-man, one stroke off the pace at the start of the day's second round, ran into all kinds of trouble in the first nine, using up 38 of the 71 strokes he knew would give him a tie.

On the final hole, he was 110 yards away on his second which left him but a single blow to tie Daly.

With hands that were as brittle as glass because of the cold wind and rain, he fired away with an eight iron only to have the ball stop short.

"I just three-putted too many greens," he muttered as he walked to the clubhouse through the 10,000 spectators who walked the last few holes with the young American who was determined that the title and trophy which Sam Snead relinquished should return to the United States.

Sinking that small tap boosted Stranahan's score to 294 and put him in a tie for second place with Reg Horne, a London professional.

Daly, known as one of the longest iron players in Europe despite his 140 pounds, traveled today's two rounds in 78-72 to make sure that the huge trophy woul dmake its first visit to Ireland in 76 years.

Stranahan used 72 strokes on the morning round and then duplicated that total after lunch.

In contrast to his even shooting, Bulla needed 74 in the morning and 71 for the final 18. The Phoenix, Ariz., airplane pilot tied for sixth place at 297. Ghezzi, who now lists Kansas City, Kans., as his home, got around in 72 the first time only to zoom to 79 on the second. That lifted his total to 304.

Stranahan started the day in a four-way tie for ninth place with a 150 while Daly led with 143.

Oliver Misses $3160 Putt But Still Leads Tam

Chicago, July 4 (AP).—Under pressure of a 500-to-1 side bet on the 18th green with Promoter George S. May, Ed (Porky) Oliver today missed an 18-foot, $3000 birdie putt—but still carded a record-breaking 36-hole score of 131 to nail down the halfway lead in the Tam O'Shanter golf jamboree.

The putt would have given the 30-year-old pro from Wilmington, Del., a competitive course record of 64, which would have been eligible for a $666 special prize. On top of this, May lobbed on a pressure wager with Oliver after he stepped onto the last green, surrounded by some 2500 spectators.

If Oliver had sunk it, "it would have been worth at least $3000 to him," May said.

"I bet him 500 to 1 on the putt," smiled May.

This meant Oliver, who clowned with the gallery by waving at imaginary gremlins on the green and by fingering his adam's apple, put up $5 to May's $2500 on the 18-footer. With the course record prize also included, the total worth of the tap of the ball was $3166.

Oliver needed but 28 strokes on the greens in fashioning his 34-31—65. Added to his first round 66, it was a record 13 under par for the 6825-yard Tam landscape.

Bobby Locke, the visitor from the Veldt, was three strokes behind after adding a 68 to his 66 for 134.

Chick Harbert of Detroit, the 1947 national P. G. A. runner-up, matched his opening 68 for 136 and third place, while Ed Furgol, the 26-year-old Pontiac, Mich., star, punched a 67 for fourth position on the money trail with 137.

Following were Johnny Palmer, up and coming pro from Badin, N. C., with 70, 68—138; Herman Keiser of Akron, Ohio, one of the first day leaders with Locke and Oliver, with 66, 73—139, and Harry Todd, Dallas, Tex., 72, 68—140. Sam Snead faded to 143.

The original pro field of 117 was cut to 90 today with 156's or better remaining in the chase.

Meanwhile, the amateurs completed their 36-hole tolling and blond Bill Campbell of Huntington, W. Va., a 24-year-old, 205-pound giant, took the lead by equaling his first round 73 for 146.

Following Campbell at 147 was Felice Torza of Wethersfield, Conn., the qualifying medalist among unexempt simon-pures. He broke par with a 71 today after an opening 76.

Masterson Weakens in Late Innings Of 2d Game

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

New York, N. Y., July 4.—What did you do over the Fourth? The Nats spent the day getting themselves licked by the Yankees, twice, before 56,717 fans in Yankee Stadium. They lost the first game, 7 to 3, and then showed marked improvement, losing the second game only 4 to 2.

The Nats blew that second one, after taking a 2-0 lead into the seventh inning.

But first thing first. The opener was a sad outing for Early Wynn who couldn't restrain his homerun pitch and was the victim of two swats by a couple of irregulars in the Yankees' home run hitting department.

Mr. Spud Chandler, Yankee pitcher, personally provided the Yanks with most of their margin of victory when he clouted Wynn for a three-run homer in the fourth inning. A bit later, in the seventh, George Stirnweiss checked in with his first homer of the year.

Walter Masterson couldn't get home in the second game after the Nats provided him with a 2-0 lead in the first seven innings. Pinch-hitter Bobby Brown tied the score at 2-2 with a two-run single in the seventh, and in the eighth, it was awful.

DiMaggio Blasts Triple

Joe DiMaggio opened that inning with a triple to center, but he was still on third with two out when Manager Ossie Bluege scorned the idea of an intentional pass to Yogi Berra.

Masterson got orders to pitch to Berra whose single had helped the Yanks in the previous inning, and Berra lashed a hit to center that scored DiMaggio. The Yanks got another run, but is was superfluous.

The winning pitcher in that second game was Joe Page, the third to appear on the scene for the Yanks after Don Johnson was forced out in the second inning and Karl Drews was withdrawn for a pinchhitter.

Page held the Nats to one hit in the last two innings and struck out four of 'em. The three Yankee workmen combined to pitch a six-hitter.

Johnson Doesn't Last Long

Rookie Don Johnson of the Yankees was scarcely warmed up in the second game when he was beckoned to the showers by Manager Bucky Harris after forcing home the Nats first run.

That happened in the second inning after Stan Spence led off with a single to left, stole second and moved to third on Grace's single to left.

A walk to Travis filled the bases with none out, but Priddy popped up. Ferrell drew a walk to force Spence in, and the Yanks rushed Karl Drews to the mound. He slipped a third strike past Masterson and got Yost on a force play to halt the damage.

Masterson nursed his 1-0 lead along until the Nats got another run for him in the sixth after Grace drew a walk. Priddy's single to center put Grace on second and Ferrell scored him with a single to left. Drews called a halt by fanning both Masterson and Yost to retire the side.

In addition to Chandler's pitching, the Yankees set up a double-play defense for the Nats in that first game. The Nats encountered a heap of frustration when the Yanks pulled four double plays in the first five innings.

When the Nats finally did get a run in the fifth to cut the Yanks' lead to 5-1, a double play knocked them out of a big inning. The run scored when Priddy singled to center after Grace and Travis drew walks. With two on and one out, Evans grounded to McQuinn, who launched the Yanks' fourth twin-killing.

The Nats made an effort to get back into the ball game in the seventh and cut the Yanks' lead to 5-3 with two quick runs on a triple to center by Cece Travis after Spence walked and Grace singled. But with none out, the

Dodgers Gain Revenge for 19-2 Beating by Bumping Giants Twice

Bums Romp In 1st, 16-7, Grab 2d, 4-3

Brooklyn, Juyy 4 (AP).—Pinch Hitter Hermanski's single in the last of the ninth inning today scored Johnny Jorgenson with the winning run of a 4-3 Brooklyn victory over New York for a clean sweep of the holiday games.

The Dodgers had ripped the Giants, 16-7, in a morning game, to gain revenge for yesterday's 19-2 licking.

The twin bill, witnessed by 52,397 fans, 20,565 in the morning and 32,332 in the afternoon, cemented the Brooks' hold on first place in the National League at the end of the July 4th fireworks.

Hermanski's hit broke up a pitching duel between Harry Taylor and the veteran Mort Cooper, whose third-inning home run enabled the Giants to set a new league record with homers in 15 consecutive games.

All three earlier runs off Cooper came on homers by Arky Vaughan, Dixie Walker and Pee Wee Reese, but Taylor needed Hermanski's hit over Shortstop Buddy Kerr's head after Jorgenson doubled to clinch his seventh win and his third over New York.

Jackie Robinson had stretched his consecutive-game-hitting streak to 21 in the prelunch game but went hitless in the second tilt in four at bats against Cooper.

Phils Absorb Double Beating, 10-3, 7-1

Philadelphia, July 4 (AP).—The Boston Braves swept to a double win over the Philadelphia Phillies today, Frank McCormick's big bat leading a 15-hit blast to take the opener 10-3 and two Blue Jay wild throws paving the way for a 7-1 decision in the aftermath.

McCormick had four safeties, as Johnny Sain scattered 11 Phil hits to win his tenth victory in the first game.

Tribe Beats Detroit, 13-6, Second Tied

Cleveland, July 4 (AP).—Joe Gordon and Eddie Robinson paced a home run barrage by the Cleveland Indians today as the tribe defeated Detroit's Tigers 13 to 6 in the front half of a double bill before approximately 35,000.

Gordon and Robinson each clouted a pair of round-trippers, while Ken Keltner added another circuit blow for Cleveland. Eddie Lake hit a pair of home runs for Detroit. Don Black went the distance for Cleveland, allowing eight hits. Al Benton, relieved in the third by rookie Art Houtteman, was charged with the loss.

The Indians came up with one run in the last of the ninth to tie the Detroit Tigers 4 to 4 in the nightcap as the contest was called at the end of the regulation distance to permit Cleveland Stadium to be used for a Fourth of July celebration.

Twins at Palace In Bull Session

By Richard L. Coe

"FIESTA," AT THE PALACE, is often beautiful to watch for its many lovely scenes of the Mexican countryside, though it does have a drowsy quality that tempts one to change the F of the title to an S.

The story, though, gets curiouser and curiouser. It concerns twins, a brother and a sister, in which the sister triumphs in the bull ring in the guise of her brother, a chap who'd rather write music.

There are overtones in this situation which will delight a critic named Parker Tyler, who's recently published a book titled, "Magic and Myth of the Movies." In it he details psychological situations which probably struck mighty few people when they saw the pictures he discusses. What Tyler will have to say about this brother-sister relationship will make juicy and utterly unreal reading.

The twins' father, a noted bullfighter of his day, is mighty disappointed when his first child is a girl. Fortunately for his wife, a twin arrives, a boy, on whom the father lavishes all his knowledge of the bullring. The sister follows the lessons carefully, to her father's disgust.

The twins grow up into Esther Williams, the swimming beauty, and Ricardo Montalban, a Mexican player who makes a promising Hollywood debut in the part. While they certainly don't look alike, they've that close affinity which some twins do have.

The boy, Mario, is more interested in his music than his father's ambitions for him in the ring, but, respecting his father, he goes along with the planned career. Only when he learns that his father has deliberately thwarted a promising connection with a leading conductor does he give up the bullring.

The Girl in the Ring

Unfortunately, he does this in the ring itself, a terrible blow to the father's pride. Then he disappears. One way of finding him, sister Maria figures, is to make a name for Mario as a toreador. Slipping (and very attractively, too) into his fighting costumes, she makes a name for Mario. But the boy hasn't been keeping up with the bull sessions.

The conductor has a brighter idea. He plays Mario's symphonic suite and lures him back via radio. Ultimately, of course, things work out happily. Miss Williams goes off to the United States with her husband, who's been none too happy about his wife's devotion to her twin.

Somehow this story smacks more of Hollywood than Mexico, but then we retired from the bullring some years ago and perhaps this sort of thing does happen, implausible as it may sound. Critic Tyler no doubt will dig up many hidden motives from the bottom of this one.

"FIESTA." M-G-M release produced by Jack Cummings. Original story and screenplay by George Bruce and Lester Cole. Dances by Eugene Loring. Directed by Richard Thorpe. "El Salon Mexico" by Aaron Copland arranged by Johnny Green. At the Palace Theater.

Pete Smith on Peeves

The casting is pleasant enough, with Miss Williams enjoying only one brief swimming scene, to be sure, but looking more than striking in her glittering fight apparel and shawl. Montalban turns out to be a rather pleasant-looking juvenile, whose most refreshing quality is a take-it-or-leave-it air. Cyd Charisse dances with him in two rhythmical numbers and Mary Astor looks ladylike as well as youthful as the twins' troubled mother.

Best sequence in the film is the playing of Aaron Copland's "El Salon Mexico," strange as it is to find this contemporary American composer's most noted work ascribed to a young Mexican. Though there is Copland's own fine orchestration, the one used is ascribed to Pianist Johnny Green, which adds to the curiously trumped up air of the film. Still it's nice to hear Copland on the screen.

The Palace does have an amusing short, one of those Pete Smith reels on "Pet Peeves," done with that surefire touch he has for life's little annoyances.

"GOLDEN EARRINGS" titles Marlene Dietrich's first film in a long time. The star plays a Hungarian gypsy fortune teller and Ray Milland a British officer who's escaped from Nazi wartime Germany

Jack Oakie Drops 30 Pounds For Role as Cowboy Comic

Hollywood.—Jack Oakie, who's been off the screen for two years, is being brought back by Brynie Foy for the role of a cowboy comic in "Stampede."

Vivien Leigh

He'll join the company in Calgary, Alta. Jack's sweated off 30 pounds, so he won't be mistaken for the prize steer. I asked him when he was going to marry pretty Victoria Horne. He replied, "Don't rush me, honey." . . . Bob Fellows prepared a version of "Ivanhoe" for Paramount; and that studio sold it to R. K. O. for $100,000. I wonder what Bob got out of the deal? R. K. O. aims to make the picture in England where J. Arthur Rank is planning to film his version of the same story with Laurence Olivier and Vivien Leigh. I don't think I'd care to sit through two "Ivanhoe" pictures, would you? . . . Walter Slezak has bought Stefan Zweig's story of Balzac as a starring vehicle for himself. It'll be filmed as an independent production . . . Effie Shannon, who's in her early eighties, got a bid to come west for "Gentlemen's Agreement." But she turned down the offer regretfully. Said she. "I'm afraid that picture work is too strenous for me now." . . . Adeline De Walt Reynolds, who's 83, will star in "The Royal Family" at the Santa Ana playhouse near here . . . Maurice Evans will do George Bernard Shaw's "Man and Superman" both on Broadway and the road next year . . . Noel Coward has written a new play titled "Peace in Our Times." . . . June Allyson's next picture will be "Belle of New York."

Heavy on the Brass

For the last week, many guys have been trying to crash the stage on which Danny Kaye is rehearsing his routines for "That's Life." One even claimed to be the trainer of Howard Hawks' horses. The studio investigated and discovered that the would-be crashers were song pluggers who were trying to get into the sound stage to see Benny Goodman, not Kaye. . . .

Panned Own Brother So Owner Canned Him

One of Variety's former editors tells this story of the late Sime Silverman, who owned and made the paper: One day a Variety reviewer panned a dance act which had opened at the Palace. The critic had been particularly hard on the male member of the dance act. Silverman questioned him about it and commented on the similarity of names. "He's my brother," said the critic . . . 'Don't you like him?" asked Silverman . . . 'I love him," said the critic. 'He's my only brother" . . . 'They why did you pan him so hard?" asked Silverman . . . 'I'm a critic," was the explanation. I work for you. My first loyalty is to you" . . . Silverman stared at the critic and said: You're a mean, awful person. Pick up your pay check. You're fired."

Pat O'Brien

When Rank first met G. B. Shaw, the playwright made his usual shocking opening. "Mr. Rank, I hear you're a very rich man," he said. "Who'd you swindle, to get so much money?" . . . "I swindled nobody," replied Rank. "I inherited money from my father" . . . "Then who'd he swindle?" Shaw continued. "No man can amass a large fortune, without having swindled somebody."

Gilbert Gabriel, the novelist, entertained a member of the Stock Exchange at his home in Brewster one weekend. "By the way, Gil," said the broker, "I've been doing some writing lately. I think I may have a book" . . . "That's all right, feller," replied Gabriel. "As a matter of fact, I've been buying some stocks in the market myself."

Pat O'Brien tells of the period when Joe Frisco, the veteran dancer-comedian, worked for Charlie Foy in Hollywood and went to Foy's refrigerator after the show ended each night, and took some snacks . . . One night Foy opened his regrigerator and discovered that the ham and chicken and turkey and fruit were all gone. He questioned Frisco about it. Frisco protested his innocence and vowed that he hadn't been near the refrigerator. Foy expressed skepticism . . . "So help me, I didn't touch that food," Frisco said. "If you think I did it—weigh me."

Al Parker, the British theatrical agent, was in the Stork Club the other night and told of having taken Joe Frisco to meet John Barrymore. After the introductions, Frisco studied the black ribbon-tie which Barrymore sometimes affected, and said: "Mr. Barrymore, that's a helluva way to dry a sock."

WASHINGTON: SATURDAY, JULY 5, 1947

Thugs Use Clubs, Fists And Knives In Robberies

Burglars Making Use of Less Violent Methods Make Off With $168 in Loot

Thugs used clubs, knives and even fists yesterday to beat or threaten their robbery victims into submission on Washington streets.

Burglars also were busy. Using less violent methods, they carried off loot valued at $168.

Earl Stanley, 44, of 924 G pl. nw., reported that about 5:30 a. m. he was robbed at the point of a knife of $42 at 9th and Mount Vernon pls. nw.

Charged With Robbery

Police later arrested Mosley F. Arnold, 29, of 6801 Whitehouse rd., Md., and charged him with Stanley's robbery.

Paul H. Edmonds, 31, of 1832 Connecticut ave. nw., janitors quarters, was robbed of $36 by two men who beat him over the head.

Edmonds, robbed at 7th st. and Rhode Island ave. nw., said he thought the men used a bottle to beat him.

Van D. Neale, 37, of 1832 Corcoran st. nw., reported that about 4:45 a. m., he was robbed of his wallet containing $15 by two men who knocked him to the ground while he was walking in an alley in the rear of the 2000 block of 9th st. nw.

Robbed of $80

Hiram Leake, 28, of 1109 S st. nw., said that about 12:35 a. m., two men threw him to the sidewalk in front of 1224 7th st. nw., and robbed him of $80.

A barefoot burglar awakened Charles Washington of 1452 Howard rd. se., about 4 a. m. After he frightened the intruder away, Washington said he missed $51 and seven tickets for an Emanuel Baptist Church excursion to Sparrows Beach, Md.

Howell S. Creswell of 612 18th st. nw. said that between 2 and 11 a. m. a billfold containing $65 was removed from his pants which were hanging on a chair at his home. Also reported missing was a purse containing $2.

John Krause, owner, Tavern Restaurant, 3910 12th st. ne., reported the theft of three $2 bills, a roll of 50 pennies and whisky valued at $47.50 between 12:45 a. m. and noon yesterday.

Affection Test

Lover's Fight Gets Speedy Police Action

Two Washington policemen had a ringside seat early yesterday at a fight between a pretty brunette and a man who, according to the police, said he was beating her because he "wanted to find out if they were still engaged."

Pvts. W. I. Williams and M. G. Bailes, cruising in a Twelfth Precinct scout car, heard a scream and saw scuffling about 2 a. m. as they were passing Bladensburg rd. and Earl pl. ne.

Williams said the fight subsided when they approached and the woman, Lillian May Barrett, 30, told him the man had choked and then struck her in the left eye. She was treated at Casualty Hospital.

Police arrested George J. Munson, 23, of 1701 E st. ne., at the scene and charged him with assault.

Munson was quoted by Williams as saying that he "wanted to find out if they were still engaged" and that the only way he could find out was "to beat it out of her."

Williams said that Miss Barrett was a waitress at the Fat Boy restaurant, New York ave. ne., near Bladensburg rd., and that Munson was a draftsman for the Potomac Electric Power Co.

Alexandria Shuts Chemical Plant After Complaints

Following complaints by neighboring residents, Alexandria officials yesterday forced the American Agriculture Chemical Co., wet mix plant to suspend operations for permitting fluorine gas to escape.

The suspension order was issued by Smoke Control Engineer John Kelly following reports from residents near the plant, located at 411 N. Lee st.

City Councilman Paul L. Delaney said the plant's water supply system, which is used to spray the chemicals, broke down a week ago. Neighborhood complaints of escaping gas, and the city crackdown followed. Delaney said the water supply system should be in operation "in several days."

Nunnally, Fredericksburg physician, will be principal speaker at the annual joint meeting of the Stafford County Health and Welfare Association and the Stafford Chapter of the Red Cross at Clearview, home of Mrs. Michael Wallace, at 8 p. m. July 14. Officers will be elected and reports submitted.

Death Takes a Holiday in These 4th of July Traffic Mishaps...

THEY WERE RIDING IN THIS—Car in which three youths were riding in the early hours of Independence Day when it rammed a streetcar is towed away. Capital Transit Co. Inspector P. Throckmorton is at the wheel. Man identified as Elbert Mills, 22 (in sweater), of 4415 N. 13th st., Arlington, Va., driver of the auto, gives details to police. Mills was unhurt, elected to forfeit $50 on a charge of failing to give full time and attention to driving

IT WAS ONCE AN AUTO—James Hickerson, 10, and R. P. Rice, both of Seabrook, Md., look over the wreckage of a 1940 Plymouth sedan, struck by a Pennsylvania Railroad train yesterday at the grade crossing in Seabrook, Prince Georges County. Elizabeth Murphy, 25, a passenger in the car, who gave her address as 736 3d st. nw., was tossed 40 feet by the impact, but was uninjured, police report. The car stalled on the tracks mother and a sister of the dead woman. She was treated for minor injuries at Casualty Hospital and released.

Hit by Flying Debris

At Seabrook, Md., a 25-year-old Washington woman was hurled about 40 feet with flying debris when the stalled automobile from which she had alighted was demolished by a Pennsylvania Railroad train.

In Norfolk County, Va., three men were killed and four others hurt in a truck and automobile collision at Toll Free Bridge, at the start of the prolonged Fourth of July weekend.

Two men were injured when a coupe smashed into the rear of a standing streetcar at Wisconsin ave. and M st. nw., and a pedestrian was struck by a moving streetcar on Pennsylvania ave. near 25th st. nw.

Driver Charged

The two men hurt at 2:10 a. m. yesterday at Wisconsin ave. and M st. nw., were identified as Carroll Mills, 21, of 3426 N. Washington blvd., and Eddie Hollingsworth, 21, of 924 N. Stafford st., both of Arlington, Va. They were given first aid for head cuts at Emergency Hospital.

Police charged the driver of the coupe, Elbert E. Mills, 22, of 4415 N. 13th st., Arlington, with failure to give full time and attention to his driving. He elected to forfeit $50 collateral on the charge, police said.

The pedestrian hurt in front of 2512 Pennsylvania ave. nw. when he walked into the path of an eastbound streetcar at 2:13 a. m., was also treated and released at Emergency Hospital. Police charged the victim, Axel N. Lundby, 38, of 701 19th st. nw., with "crossing so as to create a traffic hazard."

Streetcar operators of the two accidents were identified, respectively, as William C. Hutchinson, 33, of 1207 34th st. nw., and Carl F. Auth, 31, of 1612 17th pl. se.

The Washington woman hurt at Seabrook, Md., was identified as Miss Elizabeth Murphy, 25, of 736 3rd st. nw. Police said she was struck and swept 40 feet by a flying part of the stalled automobile as she watched the train plow into it.

Abandoned on Tracks

She was taken to Prince Georges County General Hospital, near Cheverly, Md., where physicians said her injuries were not serious.

The car was operated by Woodrow Wilson Atkinson, 37, of Seabrook, and occupied by Miss Murphy and John Berkley, 43, of Seabrook, when it stalled on the railroad tracks, police said. They attempted to push the vehicle from the tracks but abandoned it when the train bore down upon them.

The train was the advance section of Train 141, Washington-bound from New York, and operated by Engineer L. A. Arnold.

Crash With Dump Truck

Dead in the Toll Free Bridge collision, in Norfolk County, were listed as William D. Belch, 27, of Cradock, Va.; Robert D. Thornton, 25, of Loxley pl., Norfolk County, and Joseph Bolding, 43, of Broadmoor, Va.

Norfolk County police said the car driven by Belch was headed eastward toward the bridge. Crossing the bridge from the other side were two trucks, police said. The front truck slowed down and the truck following, a dump-type vehicle loaded with steel, swung into the east lane to avoid hitting it.

Belch's car and the passing truck met almost head-on at the bridge's east end. The accident occurred at the start of the holiday crush, at 4:10 p. m. Thursday.

Sworn as Attorney

Baltimore, July 4 (AP).—James S. Morrow, jr., a former enforcement attorney for the Office of Price Administration, was sworn in here yesterday as assistant United States attorney. Morrow, a native of Baltimore, was clerk for Federal Judge W. Calvin Chesnut in 1940 and 1941. He served in the Army until October, 1945, and two months later joined the OPA.

Progressives In Arlington Plan 'Boycott'

Label Democratic Summons 'Brazen Attempt' at Smear

Labeling their summons a "brazen attempt" to smear them, Arlington Progressive Democrat candidates for the county Democratic Executive Committee, yesterday declared they'd boycott a scheduled "inquiry" Monday by committee incumbents.

Harold L. Schilz, Progressive group chairman, said he and fellow Progressives would not show up Monday night to answer "under oath and before public stenographer" on their qualifications, as directed by the present Arlington County Democratic Executive Committee.

Makes Letter Public

Schilz made public a letter he and his fellow candidates received last week, purportedly from an inquiry committee of the incumbents, requesting their appearances. Committee members named in the unsigned letter were Harry A. Grant, W. L. Bragg, E. W. Hamman, M. M. Caskie, jr., and Maude Dove.

"The only possible effect of such an inquisition would be to personally and publicly insult people of integrity," Schilz declared, pointing out that the candidates had already pledged "upon their sacred honor" they were qualified for candidacy

Called for Monday

"It seems to us that the voters in each precinct should be given the opportunity to choose which Democrats shall serve on the Executive Committee, not the present incumbents of those offices," he said.

The committee letter to Schilz and others directed them "to appear before this designated committee at Democratic headquarters, second floor, Rucker Building, 3179 Wilson blvd., at 8:45 p.m. Monday, July 7."

Schilz pointed to the letter as "confirmation of rumors heard in Arlington County that the Old Guard of the Democratic Party would attempt to purge liberal candidates who stand for better government measures in the county."

Wax-Fed Blaze Causes $6000 Damage in Md.

Salisbury, Md., July 4 (AP).—A spectacular fire, fed by molten wax and waxed paper, destroyed the packing houses of a Salisbury nursery today, and L. Sherman Townsend, the owner, estimated the damage at more than $6000.

Edward Taylor, an Eastern Shore Public Service Co. lineman, was showered by hot wax from an exploding barrel while working on a pole at the height of the blaze.

Volunteer firemen immediately turned their hoses from the building and sprayed Taylor. He dropped from the pole and was taken to Peninsula General Hospital for treatment of first and second degree burns and shock.

The interiors of the concrete packing houses were burned out but Townsend said volunteer firemen, who had stretched hoseline three quarters of a mile saved two homes on the property and the company office.

The wax was used for coating paper and boxes in which the nursery products are packed and also for treating some of the products.

Townsend said he was preparing to start packing cucumbers this weekend.

Salisbury Fire Marshal F. A. Grier, jr., said the blaze apparently started from overheating in large vats on which welders had been working early last night.

Fire Destroys Mill

Columbus, Ohio, July 4 (AP).—Eleven Columbus fire companies still were on duty tonight at the smouldering ruins of the seven-story Gwinn Milling Co. where fire early today destroyed property valued at $500,000.

VICTIM OF THE FOURTH'S FIRST SERIOUS ACCIDENT—Unconscious on the sidewalk, Axel N. Lundby, 38, of 701 19th st. nw., is given first aid by an apprehensive passerby, Lex Noonan of Arlington, Va. Lunby was struck by a streetcar on Pennsylvania ave. near 25th st. nw. at 2:15 a.m. yesterday. Noonan is requesting someone in the crowd to call police. Lundby was treated at Emergency Hospital and sent home. Police charged him with crossing the street so as to create a traffic hazard (not at a crosswalk)

10,000 See Air Field Day At Baltimore

Baltimore, July 4 (AP).—Featuring three Army P-80 Lockheed Shooting Star jet-propelled planes, traveling in excess of 500 miles per hour, the Maryland Wing Air Show and Field Day today drew more than 10,000 persons to the Baltimore Municipal Airport.

The administration building platforms were jammed by the Independence Day throng and the hills bordering one side of the field were lined with those viewing the day-long program.

Winner of the $150 prize for best-drilled units on the parade grounds was the Baltimore Polytechnic Institute unit of 35 student cadets. They will use the money to purchase training equipment.

The 121st Fighter Squadron of the Washington National Guard and the 104th Fighter Squadron of the Maryland National Guard gave the crowd a thrill with combat maneuvers. Twenty-five P-47s made mock strafing and bombing attacks on the airport installations.

Jacqueline Clark of Arlington Farms, Va., chosen Miss Civil Air Patrol of 1947, was queen of the show.

Lieut. Col. James W. Wray, jr., assistant director of operations and training for the National Headquarters in Washington, served as judge of the drill competition, involving 10 of the top units of the 15 squadrons making up the wing.

Head-On Auto Collision Kills Baltimore Woman

Glen Burnie, Md., July 4 (AP).—Mrs. Verna Sichelsteil, 24, of Baltimore, was killed instantly today in a head-on automobile collision on Crane Highway, one mile south of here, Anne Arundel County police reported.

Her husband, Joseph, 25, and Gordon C. Spillman, 39, Roselle, N. J., were treated in South Baltimore General Hospital for injuries.

Chest Clinics Set

Maryland Tuberculosis Association chest clinics will be held in Prince Georges County, Md., in July as follows: July 11 and 18, 10 a. m., County Service Building, Hyattsville; July 25, 1 p. m., Police Court Building, Laurel.

Funeral Held For Newsman F. L. Werner

Cumberland, Md., July 4 (AP).—A requiem mass was said in St. Patrick's Church today for Frank Louis Werner, 46-year-old telegraph editor of the Cumberland Evening and Sunday Times who died Wednesday night.

Werner had been an employe of the Times and Alleganian Co. since 1938, when he began his newspaper career as a proofreader on the Cumberland News. He switched to the Times a short time later as a reporter covering the court house beat.

During World War II he edited the Times' service page. He became the paper's telegraph editor last year.

A native of Clifton Forge, Va., Werner studied at St. Charles' Preparatory School, Catonsville, Md., and completed his education in Rome. He taught for a number of years at the old Army and Navy Preparatory School, Baltimore.

Werner is survived by his wife, the former Julia S. Walsh; two sons, two daughters, and two brothers, Leo Werner of Roanoke, Va., and Raymond Werner of Huntington, W. Va. He was a brother-in-law of former Maryland Attorney General William C. Walsh.

Start Zoning Survey

Frederick, Md., July 4.—City officials last night employed J. O. Grinnalds, Baltimore planning and zoning consultant, to make a survey and recommendations preliminary to adoption of a new zoning ordinance for Frederick.

The old corporate limits will be rezoned, under the plan, along with zoning of the area recently taken into the city limits. The present zoning law, adopted in 1929, is currently outmoded. Grinnalds said it would take from five to six months to complete his survey.

Tea House Reopens

Hains Point Tea House was reopened to the general public yesterday. Closed down during the war when Hains Point was declared a military area, the tea house has been renovated and redecorated. Luncheons, teas and dinners will be served every day except Monday.

Md. Dealers Plan to Absorb Sales Taxes

Action Taken to Avoid Loss of Business to Washington Stores

Some Maryland dealers, still afraid that customers will go to the District to evade the sales tax, have reduced prices so that the new price plus the tax is the same as the pretax amount.

The head of the Maryland retail sales tax division, Walter E. Kennedy, said yesterday he had no objection to such changes, although merchants are forbidden, under penalty of fines, from advertising that they will absorb the taxes.

Meanwhile, the Baltimore office of State Comptroller James J. Lacy said some merchants have attempted to evade the sales tax by purchasing goods for their own use but certifying them for resale.

The office reported that in some instances, however, "resale certificates" were issued improperly "in error due to a misunderstanding of the law."

About 35,000 of Maryland's 50,000 retail and wholesale dealers have applied for the sales tax permits and the division is still issuing licenses.

Among applicants were an undisclosed number from the District, who followed Kennedy's request made here Wednesday that local dealers aid Maryland in the collection of the tax. Many are withholding action pending a meeting of the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association Tuesday at 10:30 a. m. in the Star building to clarify the District- Maryland relationship.

Md. Holiday Swimmer Drowns in Back River

Essex, Md., July 4 (AP).—A man identified as Sherman Leroy Brick, 25, of Baltimore, was drowned today while bathing off Breezy Point, at the confluence of Back River with Chesapeake Bay, Essex police reported.

Police said friends with whom he had gone on a Fourth of July outing told them Brick stepped from shallow water into a hole and disappeared.

First Wheat Due

Frederick, Md., July 4.—First wheat from the 1947 Frederick County crop is expected to reach the local market early next week, elevator operators reported today. Farmers will receive approximately $2 per bushel for their product—the highest quotation in history here for opening of the season.

"It is just a case of no wheat and many outlets for it," explained one Frederick grain dealer. Some cutting and threshing of wheat has started in the county, but the grain is reported generally too soft to sack. The recent high humidity and showers have failed to properly cure the grain for threshing. Some clear, windy days are needed to get the wheat in shape, it was declared.

Services at Leesburg

Leesburg, Va., July 4.—The first of the 1947 union open-air services on the court house lawn here will be held Sunday evening and will mark the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Organized Bible Class Association of the District of Columbia, which was founded in Leesburg July 4, 1922.

The sermon will be delivered by Dr. Clifford Homer Richmond, pastor of the Chevy Chase Methodist Church. He will be introduced by the Rev. J. Shenton Lodge, pastor of the Leesburg Methodist Church. Remarks will also be made by Dr. Page McK. Etchison, chairman of the association, and George E. Harris, executive vice president of the class.

The Leesburg Methodist Church was the birthplace of the Bible Class Association, and the first two conferences were held here, records show.

Font to Honor Dead Hero

A baptismal font given in memory of Filmore Ernest Burton, who lost his life while in the service of his country of the U. S. S. Houston will be dedicated tomorrow at 11 a. m. at Memorial Methodist Church Hyattsville, Md.

In Rooming House

Woman Hurt In Leap to Escape Fire

A 27-year-old woman was seriously injured when she leaped from a second-floor window during a fire early yesterday at 610 Orleans pl. ne.

Seven other persons escaped comparatively uninjured, including a grandmother and a mother with a six-months-old daughter in her arms who was helped down from a porch by her husband.

Mrs. Lillie Isler, who lived in the rear bedroom, suffered a compound fracture of her right leg and a possible fracture of her right shoulder when she leaped from her bedroom window. She was admitted to Casualty Hospital.

Mrs. Marie Head, 54, and a granddaughter, Emma Head, 5, were on the first floor and safe from flames which broke out in a second-floor room and blocked the stairway.

Mrs. Margie Head, 24, holding her daughter, Elizabeth Ann, was caught by her husband, Monroe, 37, when she slid off the front porch at his instructions not to leap.

As soon as the fire had been discovered about 4:20 a. m., he had run through the house arousing other occupants. His wife injured her left leg slightly when she slid.

Others who escaped were Vernon Head, 18, and a roomer identified only as Mr. Sullivan.

Rural Affairs Institute Set For July 29-31

Blacksburg, Va., July 4 (AP).—Three addresses on the general theme, "Peacetime Problems in Agriculture," will highlight the evening programs of the 14th Institue of Rural Affairs here July 29-31, the Agricultural Extension Service announced today.

Col. Francis P. Miller of United States Army Intelligence is the scheduled speaker on international agricultural problems and Dr. Virginius Dabney, editor of the Richmond Times-Dispatch, will talk on State problems.

The institute, which drew 2500 persons to Blacksburg when it was last held in 1941, will be limited to an attendance of 600 this year, due to the large summer school enrollment at Virginia Tech. Persons who wish to attend were advised to contact their county agents immediately.

Speaks on "Human Erosion

Scheduled to speak on health topics at the July 30 morning session are Dr. M. V. Ziegler of the Farm Home Administration and Dr. H. B. Mulholland, head of the University of Virginia Medical School.

At the same session, Dr. T. B. Hutcheson, Virginia Tech dean of agriculture, and Dr. Fireman E. Baer of the New Jersey Agricultural Experiment Station are to speak on the theme "Human Erosion."

Miss Ruby Loper of the New York Agricultural Experiment Station, Dr. C. C. Taylor of the United States Department of Agriculture's Bureau of Agricultural Economics, and Dr. Louis Herman of the National Cooperative Milk Producers Federation are to discuss housing and economics at the July 31 morning session.

Labor-Saving Exhibit

The Virginia Federation of Home Demonstration Clubs will begin its annual business meeting at the institute the morning of July 29 and that afternoon will participate in leadership training in home management, house furnishins, foods and clothing.

The extension service farm labor-saving exhibition, now being assembled for a tour of the State in September, will be on display at the institute the afternoon of July 29.

The July 30 and 31 sessions are to be conducted by Virginia Tech departments on agronomy, animal husbandry, fruit production, wild life, dairy, poultry husbandry and vegetable production.

D. C. Heads Deny Veil Of Mystery On Fire Code

Regulatory Rules Were Prepared Beginning in '44, Director States

District officials yesterday denied there is any "veil of mystery" surrounding authorship of the District's new fire safety regulations.

They expressed surprise at an article published in the July issue of Citizens, official organ of the Federation of Citizens Associations, which said District officials were "hazy" about who authored the regulations.

The article also stated that an association member, who had served on a committee formed to advise the Commissioners on regulation changes, "publicly stated . . . he didn't think the Commissioners ever had read the code before promulgating it."

Started in 1944

Robert H. Davis, director of inspections, said yesterday the new regulations were prepared "beginning in 1944" by the building department under supervision of Col. Carl Oehmann, then head of the department.

"That's common knowledge as far as I know," Davis declared.

Engineer Commissioner Gordon R. Young, the only Commissioner who could be reached yesterday, said, "The code was drawn up before I took office, but I've certainly read it—every bit of it."

Davis also pointed out that the code had been carefully studied by the District Regulations Committee, which includes representatives from the fire, police, inspection and health departments and of the office of the corporation counsel.

Two Public Hearings Held

"At least two public hearings were held before the code was adopted," he added.

The new code was adopted March 8, 1946, but the Commissioners have granted two successive enforcement delays to April 1, 1948—because building owners protested compliance would be too costly now.

A special Commissioners' committee is now preparing recommendations for modifying the code, which was designed to avert tragedies like Boston's Cocoanut Grove fire and the Atlanta Winecoff Hotel holocaust.

The Citizen story observed that "nobody seems to know who wrote the rules."

"The matter is exciting attention among federation leaders as another indication of the urgent need for a new governmental set-up for the District of Columbia which will be responsible to the residents of the city," the article added.

U. S. Army Band, Jackie Kelk to Aid Junior Police Unit

The United States Army Band and Jackie Kelk, who is "Homer" in radio's Aldrich Family, are the latest recruits for the Sunday afternoon benefit show which the Junior Police and Citizens' Corps will sponsor at the Sylvan Theater, Washington Monument Grounds.

The Army Band will offer a special concert from 11:50 to 12:20, while Kelk will join with a host of stage, night club and radio performers in a two-hour variety show from 1:30 to 3:30. Jackson Lowe, of WWDC, will serve as master of ceremonies, and also will preside over a one-hour "amateur talent" show, from 12:30 to 1:30.

Capitol Theater will have some of its stage performers on hand, while other entertainment will be provided by Billy Eckstine from Club Bengasi, Illinois Jacquet and his club Bali orchestra and Tommy Reynolds and Dorothy Donnegan from the Howard Theater stage show.

Baseballs, autographed by the Washington Nats; boxing gloves which Champion Joe Louis used in his second title fight with Max Schmeling and a bow-tie worn by Frank Sinatra will be auctioned off during the show.

Tickets, priced at 30 cents for children and $1.00 for adults, are on sale at all People's Drug Stores and at Junior Police headquarters, 720 Barry pl. nw. All proceeds will go to the Junior Police campaign to raise $25,000.

3 Boys Suspected Of Having Polio, Are 'Doing Well'

Three boys suspected of having polio were reported "feeling fine" at Gallinger Hospital yesterday.

Dr. Ercell Bigge, interne assigned to the boys, said "no definite diagnosis" of polio would be made pending results of blood studies.

"The boys are all doing very well," she said.

They include two brothers, age 7 and 10, of the 1300 block of S. Capitol st. and a 5-year-old boy of the 300 block of L st. se.

They were admitted to the hospital Wednesday and placed in the polio isolation ward.

Sunday Schools to Meet

In Maryland and Virginia

Agriculture Teachers To Convene Next Week

Blacksburg, Va., July 4 (AP).—The Annual Virginia Conference of Vocational Agriculture Instructors will be held here Tuesday to Friday with a list of scheduled speakers including Dr. Walter S. Newman, acting president of Virginia Tech, and Dr. Paul D. Sanders of Richmond, editor of the Southern Planter, it was announced today.

Dr. Newman will address an opening day session on "The Challenge to the Teacher of Agriculture," and Dr. Sanders is to speak the same day on "The Agricultural Teacher and the Farmer."

Other scheduled speakers include Dr. T. B. Hutcheson, Virginia Tech dean of agriculture; E. W. Mundie, agricultural extension service soil conservationist, and Dr. Harry M. Love, head of the Virginia Tech department of agricultural economics.

F. B. Cale of Richmond, State supervisor of agricultural education, will preside over the sessions.

Milestone Passed

Baltimore, July 4 (AP).—Maryland's Blue Cross Hospitalization Organization has issued its five hundred thousandth membership card. It went to Edward J. Davis, sr., a Baltimore industrial worker who decided to take out membership after one of his five children had a fall a few days ago that necessitated hospital treatment.

Climaxing nearly 10 years of existance, the Maryland Hospital Service—better known as the Blue Cross—can now claim at least a fifth of the State's population on its membership rolls.

Church Has Birthday

Fredericksburg, Va., July 4.—The seventieth anniversary of Eleys Ford Baptist Church, Spotsylvania County, will be celebrated Sunday at homecoming day services sponsored by the Eleys Ford Citizens Association, The Rev. Wilmer A. Blankenbaker, pastor of Huntington Court Methodist Church, Roanoke, will deliver the morning sermon, and Dr. E. V. Peyton, pastor of Rhoadesville Baptist Church, Orange County, will preach in the afternoon.

Held on Car Charge

Winchester, Va., July 4.—Arvis Johnson, said by police to be AWOL from the USS John W. Weeks, Charleston Navy Yard, has been held for action of the grand jury on the charge of stealing a car belonging to R. T. Pence of Stephens City.

Johnson was arrested after hitting a car on U. S. 11 and leaving the scene. He was fined a total of $205 and given suspended jail sentences totaling 60 days for hit and run driving, drunken driving and driving without an operator's permit.

Dairymen Cautioned

Blacksburg, Va., July 4 (AP).—An Agricultural Extension Service official today warned Virginia dairymen that penicillin, increasingly popular as a treatment for mastitis in dairy cows, will not control mastitis unless it is combined with good herd management.

Extension Dairyman R. G. Connelly said the first step in a control program should be the identification of infected cows by taking milk samples for laboratory analysis. Once the identification is established, treatment should be according to the type of mastitis infection indicated by laboratory test, Connelly said.

Church to Be Wired

Leonardtown, Md., July 4.—The Christ Episcopal Church at Port Republic will change from candle to electric light this month, H. Clare Briscoe, register, disclosed today, in announcing the church would accept bids for wiring the building. Bids will be opened Monday.

Heads Legion Post

Winchester, Va., July 4.—Mifflin B. Clowe, jr., has been elected president of the Conrad-Hoover American Legion Post No. 21 here, succeeding L. E. Hill. The new commander is a veteran of World War II.

Trooper Transferred

Winchester, Va., July 4 Sergt. F. L. Woolf announced today the transfer of Trooper Joseph Lewis from Alexandria to Berryville and the assignment of a probationary trooper, Lawrence Coverstone of Nokesville, Va., to Winchester.

Coverstone will serve here until the next State Police school at Richmond. Trooper Lewis, a former serviceman, replaces Trooper H. W. Glascock who left the State Police payroll July 1 to become a member of the new six-man "flying squadron" of game wardens.

Licenses Tie Record

Martinsburg, W. Va., July 4.—Marriage licenses issued last month here matched the record high of June last year. Among those married were one 15-year-old girl, two 16-year-old girls and five 17-year-olds. The oldest couple married was a 62-year-old man and a 60-year-old woman.

CIO Drops Appeal

Waynesboro, Va., July 4.—Local DuPont plant officials have received a letter from CIO Regional Director Boyd E. Payton stating that the CIO has withdrawn its appeal to the NLRB on the election results at the local plant last month, plant officials said today.

The CIO had previously entered an objection on charges that the employes were "not permitted to exercise their rights to a free choice of unions, without interference, restraint, and coercion on the part of the company."

Stock Run Is High

Winchester, Va., July 4.—The total run for June is the highest on Record for the Virginia livestock market here. But according to Brown Lovett, manager, the great demand and sharp increase in price have had some unfavorable reactions.

Some producers rushed to market with cattle that were not ready, with the result that they butchered poorly. This week's holiday market was "draggy" with veal cattle down $2 per 100 pounds but with the few good to choice fat steers still bringing $24.80 per 100.

Fire Truck Ordered

Winchester, Va., July 4.—The Stephens City fire company has placed an order for a new fire truck which will cost about $5000 and will be delivered this fall. The fire apparatus will be installed by the Southern Apparatus Co. of Charlotte, N. C. The county company has been organized about 10 years and has 200 members. H. R. Mills is fire chief.

Blight Hits Tomatoes

By The Associated Press

Late tomato blight has made its appearance in some sections of Washington and Caroline counties, plant pathologist C. E. Cox of the University of Maryland reported yesterday.

Forty per cent of the total Maryland crop was lost last season as a result of the blight, a fungus which attacks stem, fruit and leaves.

Cox recommended that growers in the Hagerstown and Fredericksburg areas start spraying or dusting their crops immediately with fixed-copper compounds. He said no evidence of blight had been found in other areas of Maryland, but warned farmers to keep a close watch for evidence of the disease.

Arrange Program

Waynesboro, Va., July 4.—Felix E. Edmunds, local attorney, and Miss Ethel Irvin of Harrisonburg have been named co-chairmen of a committee to arrange for "Shenandoah Valley Night" August 3 during the showing of "The Common Glory" at Jamestown. The symphonic drama will be given at the Lake Matoaka Amphitheater.

Fire Loss Reduced

Annapolis, Md., July 4 (AP).—Less than one tenth of 1 per cent of Maryland's 2,700,000 acres of woodland were destroyed by forest fires this year, State Forester H. C. Buckingham reported. There were 331 fires burning 2372 acres this spring compared to 540 blazes ravaging 6732 acres last year.

Buckingham said the new record was due to highly trained personnel, modern equipment and the department's continuous fire prevention campaign.

Holdup Man Gets $300

Baltimore, July 4 (AP).—A holdup man escaped with about $300 in cash receipts of a Greenmount ave. contractor's office yesterday after he arrived too late to take the company payroll.

The man—wearing a mask, gloves and sunglasses—entered the office, pointed a pistol at two company officials and demanded the payroll. He was told it had already been distributed.

After emptying the open safe of its cash, the man fled to a getaway car parked in the rear of the building. Three men from the office blocked the driveway but the holdup man made his escape on foot.

Pencil Plant to Open

Waynesboro, Va., Berol Pen Co. will start production of lead pencil cores in a new plant here on Monday, according to Fred V. Daniels, who has been supervising engineering and installation of the process equipment of the plant. The property was acquired eight months ago for the new firm and equipment has been installed since then. Clay from Germany and Kentucky will be used to make the leads, a company spokesman said.

Expand Phone Lines

Winchester, Va., July 4. — The Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. of Virginia has started a 160-million-dollar project to increase cable facilities in and near Winchester, according to Charles P. Marks, manager of the local office.

Approximately 1000 telephones have been installed within the last year, but now cables in all directions are operating at capacity and further expansion will have to await relief. Between 400 and 500 persons are still on the waiting list for telephones, the manager said.

Church Disturber Fined

Winchester, Va., July 4.—Leslie Boone of Frederick County paid a $15 fine and received a suspended jail sentence for interrupting a church service. According to testimony in the trial justice court, Boone tossed a firecracker into a church at Nain near here. He entered a plea of guilty.

Baby Due in September Picks 4th for Birth; Woman Neighbor Assists in Delivery of Boy

UNEXPECTED ARRIVAL—Proud Papa Ronald V. Josey of Cheverly, Md., beams at his son, Stephen, who wasn't expected until September, but arrived yesterday—the Fourth of July. Mrs. Katherine Jeppesen (left), a next-door neighbor, helped deliver the infant when the family doctor couldn't be reached. "I pick the noisiest times to have kids," said Mrs. Josey, whose oldest child, Ronald, jr., was the first baby born in Prince Georges County on New Year's Day, 1946. "Now Stephen is born on Independence Day and he'll get the headlines," she said

By Joseph Paull
Post Reporter

What does a father do when the baby isn't due until September but is determined to be born on the Fourth of July?

What Ronald V. Josey, 24, did yesterday in that predicament was "to almost pass out right then and there." But then he remembered the lady next door had once boasted that she had helped deliver a child.

No Doctor Needed

And that recollection is the reason why Josey's wife bore him a 5-pound boy named Stephen at 8 a. m. with benefit neither of obstetrician nor maternity ward. The wife, Caroline, is 19 years old.

Both mother and son were doing well last night at Leland Memorial Hospital in Riverdale, Md.

As to the father, he says, "I'm still shaky. I'm not all right yet. I've got to lie down."

The helpful neighbor is Mrs. Katherine Jeppesen, of 2811 63d pl., Cheverly. She was awakened yesterday by Josey who rushed from his house at 2809 63d pl. and banged on her door. He says he "was too nervous to talk" but with signs was able to convince Mrs. Jeppeson that his wife needed help.

"The other neighbors were good, too," said Josey. "While Mrs. Jeppeson went to work, they fed me whisky and coffee and cigarettes. I just sat there while they comforted me."

The family physician, Dr. J. Francis Warren, said he talked to Josey on the telephone and the mother's symptoms did not indicate labor. He said he gave Josey advice on emergency measures.

Dr. Lawrence Malin completed the delivery.

Mrs. Josey said the infant was born feet first and was a "blue baby but looks just fine now."

She told a reporter:

"You know, I pick the noisiest times to have kids. The oldest, Ronald, jr., was the first child born on New Year's Day, 1946, in the county. And now Stephen arrives on Independence Day and he'll get all the headlines."

Mrs. Jeppeson has a 7-year-old boy, Edwin.

She said the other time she aided in a childbirth was in North Inglewood in 1945.

"Being a midwife isn't so hard," she said.

Baltimore Man Given Cancer Institute Post

Appointment of Dr. Harry Eagle of Baltimore as a scientific director in the National Cancer Institute was announced yesterday.

Dr. Eagle, associated with the United States Public Health Service since 1936, has been in charge of the laboratories for experimental therapeutics of the U. S. P. H. S. and the Johns Hopkins School of Hygiene since last year.

In his new post, effective at once, he will oversee the expenditure of about two million dollars in the next fiscal year and direct activities of some 250 institute employes.

Born July 13, 1905, in New York City, Dr. Eagle moved to Baltimore as a child with his family. He was educated in the Baltimore public schools and was graduated from Johns Hopkins Medical School in 1927. He interned at the hospital and later served on its medical staff for four years.

In 1932 and 1933 he was a National Research Council fellow at Harvard University. For the next three years he was on the staff of the University of Pennsylvania bacteriology department.

Dr. Eagle joined the public health service in 1936 and was in charge of the venereal disease research laboratory at Hopkins. He is known for his work on immunity in infectious diseases, blood coagulation and chemotherapy of infection, particularly with reference to syphilis and sleeping sickness.

He holds the Alvarenga prize of the College of Physicians in Philadelphia for a paper on blood coagulation. He is married and has one child.

Virginian Dies In Crash of Training Plane

Army First Lieut. Glenn LaForce of Prospect, Va., was killed in a training plane crash near Farmville, Va., yesterday while another pilot parachuted to safety from a P-80 "Shooting Star," which crashed near Baltimore.

The Associated Press said Lieutenant LaForce was killed while attempting to land an AT6 training ship on his brother-in-law's farm. Lieutenant LaForce was identified by Charles Maillett, the brother-in-law.

Crash of the P180 was reported by the Baltimore Municipal Airport Control Tower, the Associated Press reported. The plane was part of a Fourth Fighter Group flight, based at Andrews Field here.

Trooper Ernst Hudgins of the Maryland State Police said the plane was one of a flight of four. It crashed and burned in a wooded section about 12 miles south of Baltimore, he reported.

The pilot had bailed out of the jet plane before it crashed, he said, and was reported to have parachuted safely, although he was not found near the scene of the crash.

Citizens to Meet

The Mount Vernon (Va.) Citizens Association will hold its quarterly meeting at the Mount Vernon Fire House, Fort Hunt rd., at 8 p. m. Monday. Guest speakers will be Edwin Lynch and Robert McCandlish, Fairfax County candidates for the Virginia House of Delegates.

Asks Clemency

Curley Plea Sponsored by McCormack

Representative John W. McCormack, (D., Mass.) disclosed yesterday that he is sponsoring a petition to be signed by members of the House requesting executive clemency for Mayor James M. Curley, of Boston.

McCormack said it was a "matter of confidence who and how many members" have signed the petition. McCormack said the petition would be sent direct to President Truman.

Curley recently began a six-to-18-month prison term for mail fraud conspiracy in connection with a war broker firm called Engineers Group, Inc., which operated here.

Reasons McCormack gave as warranting clemency were: Curley's poor health; undisputed testimony that he did not profit from the enterprise; refusal by the Republican-dominated Massachusetts Legislature to remove Curley from office; the length of time (two days) the jury deliberated in the case; the split decision on the law rendered by the United States Court of Appeals.

Dr. Klein, 51, Washington Musician, Dies

Dr. Charlotte Elizabeth Klein, 61, prominent Washington musician, died early yesterday at the home of her brother, Percy Klein, 117 Grafton st., Chevy Chase, Md., following a month's illness.

A native Washingtonian, Dr. Klein was active for years in church music circles, serving as organist at St. Margaret's, St. Thomas' and Transfiguration Episcopal Churches and Western Presbyterian Church.

Trained in Baltimore

For the past five years she had been instructor in organ and piano at Mary Washington College at Fredericksburg, Va.

She received her early music training here under the late Edgar Priest, organist and choirmaster of Washington Cathedral.

Later she won a three-year scholarship to study organ at Peabody Conservatory of Music in Baltimore, Md., where she received artist's diplomas in both organ and piano. She also won the Fellowship of the American Guild of Organists, the organization's highest award.

Brother Only Survivor

She was a member of the Friends of Music in the Library of Congress; American Guild of Organists; Plainsong and Medieval Music Society of London; Mountainbleau (France) Alumni Association; Beethoven Association of New York; Mu Phi Epsilon Music Sorority; and the Music Teachers National Association.

She made her home here at 3217 Wisconsin ave. nw. Her brother is her only survivor.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Monday at Lee's Funeral Home, 4th st. and Massachusetts ave. nw. Burial will be in Congressional Cemetery.

New Residents Get Advice on Voting in Md.

New residents of Montgomery County must declare their intentions to become citizens of Maryland before November 1 if they wish to vote in the 1948 primary and general elections.

Ward W. Caddington, chief clerk of the Board of Supervisors of Elections, pointed out that the law requires that the new residents must declare their intentions at least one year before the general election in order to be qualified to vote in the primaries and the general elections.

The election office is open Monday through Friday from 9 a. m. to 4:30 p. m. in the Brosius bldg. on Montgomery ave., Rockville, to receive declarations. The new voter may register at the same time with either of the political parties or may decline to affiliate. In the latter case the voter may vote only in the general elections and not in the primaries.

Primaries for Republican and Democratic parties will be held May 3, 1948, and the general elections November 2, 1948.

The registration in the county as of March 1 was 30,092 Democrats, 11,215 Republicans, 17 miscellaneous and 2289 who declined to affiliate.

Caddington announced that Craig Bowman, of Rockville, has been named custodian of voting machines to replace Robert S. Billhimer, who resigned. The custodian works about three weeks before each election and receives $10 a day for his work in preparing and setting up the voting machines.

Roscoe L. Oatley

Funeral services will be held today for Roscoe L. Oatley, 76, former assistant custodian in the final audit department of the Register's Office, Treasury Department, who died at his home, 4101 N. Hampshire ave. nw., Thursday.

After the services at the S. H. Hines funeral home, 2901 14th st. nw., burial will take place at the Arlington National Cemetery. The Rev. Seth R. Brooks of the National Memorial Universalist Church will conduct the services.

Mr. Oatley, a veteran of the Spanish American War and World War I, participated in the 1926 capture of one of the murderers of a District policeman.

Mr. Oatley was a member of the American Legion, Sons of Veterans, Spanish War Veterans, the Osiris Lodge, the Tall Cedars of Lebanon of the Masonic Order and the Almas Temple.

Mr. Oatley is survived by his widow, Mrs. Zell Weaver, a stepson, John C. W. Jayne and a sister, Mrs. Henry A. Taylor of Providence.

Wayne E. Rees

Wayne E. Rees, 35, of 120 Danbury st. sw., died at Emergency Hospital yesterday afternoon following an attack of chest pains while rowing on the Potomac River with his wife, Eleanor.

Rees complained of the pains while on the river near Key Bridge. He was violently ill by the time he reached shore and an ambulance was called.

Dr. Richard Rosenberg, deputy coroner, expressed the belief that Rees died of a heart attack induced by the abnormal exercise. He withheld a certificate of death pending an autopsy.

Mr. Rees, up until a week ago, had been employed as a clerk in the Bureau of Internal Revenue. He was currently employed as a secretary for the Association of Rural Mail Carriers.

Besides his wife, he is survived by his mother Mrs. Emma B. Rees, Big Timber, Mont., three brothers, John A. Rees, Falls Church, Va., Yule Rees, Albuquerque, N. Mex., and Robert A. Rees, Los Angeles, Calif., and a sister, Mrs. Sylvester Lavold, Big Timber, Mont.

Mr. Rees served for 3½ years in the Army Air Forces.

Six Small Girls Drown Near Copenhagen Beach

Copenhagen, July 4 (AP).—Six small girls, aged 8 and 13, drowned today while bathing with their school mistress at a village south of Copenhagen.

The school mistress and seven girls went into the water, holding hands. The two leading girls disappeared in a hole and dragged four other girls with them. The school mistress was able to save only the girl whose hand she was grasping.

Lewis Morgen

New York, July 4 (AP).—Lewis Morgen, 81, who rose from a $3-a-week lather boy to a millionaire barber and credited his success to adherence to the policy of "politeness pays," died yesterday.

When he retired 18 years ago, Morgen was the proprietor of the Hotel McAlpin barber shop and had extensive real estate interests. Among his customers and friends at one time were former Presidents Taft, Wilson and Theodore Roosevelt.

On his retirement, he gave his employes the following rules for success in their occupation: Always be courteous; don't worry about the tip; try to humor the customer, and don't talk too much.

The Awful Truth

New Hats, Coiffures In Making

By Peggy Preston

REPORTS are coming through from New York on a subject of interest to the ladies as well as the men—fashion in hats and hair-dos.

Washington has yet to get a firsthand glimpse of what the stylists have dreamed up for us this winter. But in New York, the fashion writers have been attending previews for a couple of weeks. Now their typewriters are humming.

This is the gist of how your hair will hang.

Whether we like it or not, the high-stylists are bent on making us look like our younger grandmother of the World War I period.

The boys and girls who should know about such things have decided that our grandmothers of the World War I period had the right ideas in style after all.

Those close to the head "skull caps" of the roaring 20s may be back with us again, which means there will be no room for pompadours, upsweeps or our treasured long-hanging bobs.

So, the new coiffure is short, sleek, drawn forward to cover the ears. It clings to the head, is brushed forward into a faint notion of a curl, rimming the face. There is even whisperings of a return to the deadly shingle!

Her hats during the period of 1911-20 were voluminous things, rimming the forehead with just enough curl peeking from underneath. A woman was fashionably dressed in a stovepipe cloche with a narrow brim; a draped tam.

Harmony, Maybe

Designers are sponsoring a return to the feminine silhouette of that day. Millinery creators have fallen in line and selected a modernized duplication of the hats of that period to complete the picture.

"These hat types are the only ones to harmonize with the new fall costumes."

Judging from reports, about the oldest thing in the world this winter will be your pretty hat from last season with its neatly sculptured lines. The new ones will be heavily bloused and draped. The simple wide brim has been discarded in favor of a narrow shirred one, puffed out and dropping at one side. There you will pin a rose or a bunch of bows.

A simple hair-do with old-fashioned charm. The curl is managed by an encouraging vertical cut. It is dried with an infra-red lamp. This interesting new hair-do was designed by Victor Vito

Two combs hold down this hair-do in back, to give it the look of a smooth, shining skullcap. The ends are turned under in a slight curl, basis of which is a brief, hour and a half permanent. By Lura de Gez

Longer Hems Mean Shorter Hair-dos, Stylists Proclaim

By Sara Sutton

New York.

THERE'S just one way to balance a longer hemline and that, hair stylists say, is by a shorter hair-do. New hair-dos will be short and sweet. Smooth-brushed and shining, they will clip to heads like skullcaps, keeping the hairline clear and just missing the collar at the nape of the neck.

Curls, too, once a major operation unless provided by nature, are now everybody's inalienable right.

Lura de Gez holds by the hint of a permanent, just enough to give body to the hair, and all over before the client is aware of it. After that it's all done with cutting and shaping. Her scissors mold the hair-do with such decision that it falls into place after each shampoo with only a characteristic brush-dry treatment and no dryer. Miss de Gez pioneered against dryers.

Victor Vito coaxes curl into Indian straight hair with his shears. The cut must be repeated every five weeks. Between times any number of shampoos—dried under the sun or its equivalent, an infra-red lamp.

For Liberating Prague

Czech Government To Honor Americans

By Marie McNair

THE people of Czechoslovakia do not quickly forget. It took two years of diligent record searching, but at long last the Czech government has finally learned the identity of some American officers who participated in the battle against the Nazis on Czechoslovakian soil.

And so, on Wednesday at a cocktail party at the embassy, the Ambassador, Dr. Juraj Slavik, will bestow decorations on this group in grateful appreciation of his countrymen.

According to Major Antonin Novak, Assistant Military and Air Attache of the embassy, in the last days of the war all was confusion in Czechoslovakia. The western part of the republic was held by the American Army, and Prague in the central area was in German hands. The Russians were in the eastern regions and the Czech government was located at Kosice.

When Prague was finally taken some units of the Fifth Corps which contributed most to the liberation of western Czechoslovakia were already on their way to Japan or about to be redeployed. For that reason American units which were first to enter Czechoslovakia, received fewer decorations.

In the group to receive the War Cross, will be Maj. Gen. W. M. Hoge, Fort Belvoir, Va.; Maj. Gen. Willard S. Paul, Col. Raymond E. Bell, Col. Ernest A. Bixby, Col. Walter Burnside, Col. Sherman Hasbrouck, Col. John H. Hinds, Col. John C. Whitcomb, Col. Ralph W. Zwicker, Lieut. Col. James O. Boswell, Lieut. Col. Randolph D. Dickens, Lieut. Col. Alfred E. Graham, Lieut. Col. Richard McKee.

Rear Admiral Thomas B. Inglis, will receive the Medal of Merit, First Class. Also receiving the same medal will be Rear Admiral Hewlett Thebaud. The Medal of Merit will go to Col. Willoughby F. Brazeau, Col. Hugo A. Kenyon, Capt. John Lansing Callan, Capt. Floyd F. Ferris, Lieut. Col. Richard Weaver. Lieut. Sidney S. Alderman will be decorated with the White Lion, Fifth Class.

Leaving for Season

Vice Admiral W. H. P. Blandy, Commander of the Eighth Atlantic Fleet, and Mrs. Blandy, will leave on the 15th for Newport where Mrs. Blandy has taken an apartment at the Muenchinger-King for three months. Admiral Blandy will arrive July 18. In August Admiral and Mrs. Blandy's son-in-law and daughter, Comdr. and Mrs. John Marshall Lee, will arrive from Honolulu for station in Washington, and will occupy the Blandy apartment at the Westchester until they move into their new home on Massachusetts ave.

In September, Admiral Blandy will go back to the Naval Operating Base at Norfolk, Va., and he and Mrs. Blandy will exchange weekend visits, the latter keeping her apartment here.

Former Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes is at the Wianno Club, Cape Cod, to spend the summer with his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. William Gossett of Bronxville, N. Y.

Town Talk—

President Truman, on '4th' Sojourn, May Meet Another Pretty Good Pianist

By Eva Hinton

THE GUEST suite at "Colle," where President Truman is the holiday guest of Chief-of-Protocol and Mrs. Stanley Woodward, has beautiful antique furnishings, an open fireplace and a splendid view over wide, rolling country.

If he runs to schedule, the President will be getting up at five or six and walking over some of that beautiful country with the Woodwards' dogs, naughty "Mr. Justice Felix Frankfurter Cadwallader Woodward" (a red Cocker Spaniel named for you-know-whom) and a dignified Doberman, who answers to "Duke."

Before the President finishes his sightseeing around Monticello and the University of Virginia, with its serpentine wall and delightful colonnade, he will, I'm sure, pay a visit to President Roosevelt's hideaway nearby.

FDR had a charming white bungalow in the garden of his dear friend and aide, Gen. Edwin M. Watson. Gracious Mrs. Watson, the general's widow, visits back and forth constantly with the neighboring Woodwards and she and the President may even get together on a few piano numbers, for she's nationally known as a concert pianist.

WHILE Stanley Woodward was receiving the President in Virginia, his predecessor as Chief-of-Protocol, beloved George T. Summerlin, was being laid to rest at Arlington Cemetery with full military honors.

Most touching was the cavalcade which left Fort Myer Chapel after the service. The Military Band played softly Chopin's Funeral March, the flag-covered coffin following a caisson drawn by gray horses, and a beautiful riderless, black horse being led behind, bearing the former Cavalryman's boots reversed in the stirrups!

Few eyes were dry at this solemn tribute to the small man with the large heart who eschewed pomp and ceremony and was so warmly human.

In the chapel porch a girl who had been social secretary for an embassy during a potentate's visit said sadly: "Mr. Summerlin could make you feel better refusing a request than could most other people granting one!"

On the Party Calendar

THIS afternoon there will be a cocktail party at the Venezuelan Embassy from 6 to 8 o'clock. Cause for the celebration is Independence Day, dating back to 1811 when the Patriotica Junta declared independence from Spain.

Another important cause for the fete is the presence of the new Ambassador, Gonzalo Carnevali, who arrived in town Thursday afternoon, accompanied by his wife and two sons, Gonzalo, 17, and Angel, 15.

Members of the Venezuelan colony and embassy staff members and their wives have been invited.

Utah Visitors Feted At Buffet Supper

MISS Lillian Hathaway Willett and her brother, William S. Willett, entertained at a buffet supper last evening for Mr. and Mrs. Harold J. Steele of Utah, who are visiting Mrs. Steele's father, Marriner Eccles. Miss Willett visited Mrs. Steele on her recent trip West.

Guests at the party included Mr. and Mrs. John J. Boland, Mr. and Mrs. Donald P. Regan, Mr. and Mrs. Warren Rockwell, Ralph Wanlass, cousin of Mrs. Steele; Dr. and Mrs. Charles W. Jones, Miss Lydia O'Neal, Miss Mary S. Whiteley, John S. Grindle and Dudley Tibbitts.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Jean Willett, parents of the hosts, have gone to Rye, N. Y., to visit their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Hathaway Willett, for the holiday weekend.

Mrs. Robbins Becomes Bride Of Mr. Boyer

Of interest to Washington is the marriage of Mrs. Louise Auchincloss Robbins, daughter of Mrs. Gordon Auchincloss of Locust Valley, Long Island, to Philip Boyer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Boyer of New York, which took place Thursday at Ronda, home of the bride's mother. The Rev. Albert D. Deyo officiated.

The bride was the widow of Capt. Edward H. Robbins, Army Air Force, son of Mrs. Warren Delano Robbins of Washington, who left Wednesday for New York. Captain Robbins was killed in action in Europe in 1944.

Mrs. Boyer is the granddaughter of the late Col. Edward House wartime adviser to President Wilson and American delegate to the Versailles Peace Conference. She has two children, Edward Hutchinson Robbins, jr., and Gordon Auchincloss Robbins.

Mr. Boyer attended Groton and Harvard College, served as a lieutenant in the Naval Reserve during the war, and now with Colonial Williamsburg, Inc.

Following a brief wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Boyer will live in New York.

Lewis—Lowenstein

The marriage of Miss Gloria M. Lowenstein, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Lowenstein, to Herbert B. Lewis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Lewis, took place July 29 at the home of the bridegroom's parents, 4606 8th st. nw. Rabbi Henry Segal officiated.

Escorted by her father, the bride wore a gown of white slipper satin with lace peplum. A coronet of rosepoint lace belonging to the bridegroom's mother held her wedding veil and she carried a white satin prayer book, covered with an orchid. Mrs. Rennee Mackler, matron of honor, was attired in an aqua print dress with corsage of roses. Sidney Wager served as best man.

Stotlar—Lowe

Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Lowe of Pylesville, Md., announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Ora Lowe, to Hosea C. Stotler of Washington. The ceremony took place on June 21 at the home of the bride's parents in the presence of the immediate families and close friends.

Attendants were Mrs. George W. Christman of Columbus, Ohio, sister of the bride, and Lowell Abney of Harrisburg, Ill. After a wedding trip to Illinois and the Great Lakes region, the couple will reside in Landover, Md.

Leaving for California

Capt. and Mrs. Hugh MacKay and their small son, Trent, who have been living in Beverly Hills, Alexandria, will leave shortly for Coronado, Calif., where Capt. MacKay will be stationed.

En route they will visit Captain MacKay's parents in Kentucky and will stop in Lake Tahoe, Calif., where they have a summer home.

Quinones in New York

Mr. and Mrs. Salvador Quinones and their children are in New York for the holiday at the Barclay.

Franks in Maine

Women's Law Group Sets Up Legal Clinic in Philippines

By Genevieve Reynolds

ABOUT 100 potential Portias have set up a legal clinic to aid indigent men and women in the Philippines, reports petite Manolita Villanueva of Manila, who arrived in Washington this week with her parents and sister.

Members of the Philippine Women's Lawyers Association serve as volunteers in the clinic. Manolita, one of its founders, says that the feminine barristers are rendering a very valuable assistance to many veterans who are unable to afford to pay for legal advice.

Friendly, vivacious Manolita studied law at the University of Santo Tomas, but turned to journalism for a career. Except for her work in the clinic, she serves as executive secretary in the administration department of the Manila Chronicle, a family newspaper. Manuel B. Villanueva is president and publisher of the daily. A sister-in-law edits the society and woman's page. Two uncles write. All four of the Villanueva children assist in some way.

Leaving the Philippines in February, the Villanueva family visited Hongkong, Shanghai and Japan. They were the first civilians to enter Tokyo after the war, according to Manolita.

MANOLITA VILLANUEVA
. . . Capital visitor

Since coming to Washington the Villanueva family has been widely feted. The Philippine Ambassador, Joaquin M. Elizalde, honored them with a dinner. Yesterday they lunched with the U. S. Ambassador to the Philippines and Mrs. Emmet O'Neal and their two pretty daughters, Lydia and Mary O'Neal.

Anniversary Is Celebrated By Filipinos

Almost 300 Filipinos and their friends gathered in the West Ballroom of the Shoreham Hotel yesterday to celebrate the first anniversary of Philippine independence with a luncheon featured by a program of music and speeches.

The new United States Ambassador to the Philippines, Emmet O'Neal, was an honor guest and speaker. Joining him in reiterating friendliness to the new republic and good wishes on "Our Fourth of July" was former Ambassador Paul V. McNutt.

Summarizing the progress of the Islands the two years since they were devastated by war, the Philippine Ambassador, Joaquin M. Elizalde put in words the bond of loyalty still existing between the Philippines and the country which was its sovereign for more than 40 years.

"In any struggle over the principles to which both our countries subscribe," he declared, "the Filipino people will be arrayed on the side of America. . . . Our progress in the midst of the terrible devastation of war, gives us courage. Proudly and confidently, we face the future."

During the luncheon, which featured paella, a Filipino rice and chicken dish, toasts were drunk in champagne to the President of the United States and President Manuel Roxas. Jose P. Melencio, Philippine consul general from New York, presided. Other speakers were Miss Concepcion A. Aguila, representing the Filipino Women's Club of Washington, and Pablo Mamaril, president of the Filipino Executive Council of Washington.

Many of the women wore their pretty butterfly-sleeved native costumes and some of the men were in "parong tagalog," formal male attire with loose shirt of embroidered transparent pina cloth.

Miss Beverly Wolfe To Wed in Japan

From Nagoya, Japan, comes the announcement by Maj. Gen. K. B. Wolfe, commanding general of the Fifth Air Force, and Mrs. Wolfe of the engagement of their daughter, Beverly Ray, to Lieut. John Bradley Chickering, now on duty with the Fifth Air Force at Shiroi, near Tokyo. The wedding is planned for early September and will take place in the American Village Chapel, Nagoya.

The prospective bridegroom, son of Brig. Gen. William E. Chickering, USA, (retired), and grandson of Gen. John J. Bradley, is a graduate of Woodrow Wilson High School and the United States Military Academy.

Gilda Halpern Becomes Bride

Miss Gilda Halpern, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Halpern, Boston, Mass., was married in Harrisburg, Pa., on June 29 to David E. Feller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Feller of Harrisburg. The Rev. Philip D. Bookstaber officiated.

The bride is a graduate of Radcliffe College. Following graduation from Harvard Law School, Mr. Feller was lecturer in law and economics at the University of Chicago and served in military intelligence during the war. He is now an attorney in the Department of Justice in Washington where the couple will reside.

Visiting in Long Island

Mrs. Nicholas Longworth and Mrs. Arthur Fowler are visiting in Long Island. They left the city together Wednesday. Mrs. Fowler will spend three weeks visiting Mrs. Jacques Balsan at Oyster Bay and Mrs. Longworth will see her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Sturm, before returning to Washington.

Your Questions On Homemaking

I spilled a bottle of perfume on a blue rayon crepe dress. I have had the dress cleaned but the perfume spot did not come out. How can I remove the spot? B. M.

Perfume stains are just about as stubborn as they come. Even if you get rid of the stain, you may wind up with a ring around the area where the spot was. Here's a method that may work. Dampen the spot with water, then work on it with a clean cloth dipped in glycerine. Rinse out in clear water. If traces remain, try sponging the spot with vinegar, then rinsing with water.

I spilled some nail polish remover on a tan rayon-type dress. The effect was to make a hard, stiff place in the fabric. I have tried taking out the spots by washing and also with a cleaning fluid, but to no avail. Can you tell me what to use to get rid of this stiffness? L. E. M.

The amyl acetate (banana oil) used in many nail polish removers is usually injurious to acetate rayon fabrics. Evidently this is what your dress is made of. I'm afraid there isn't much you can do to remedy the damage.

Will you please answer the following questions: (1) How should spots and stain be removed from knives and other kitchenware made of steel which is not the stainless kind? (2) Should the inside of teapots be scoured? If so, how? K. L. S.

Scouring powder can be used in removing stains from steel knives and other kitchenware. It's al lright, too, to scour carefully the inside of crockery or china teapots. Use steel wool pads and soap or a fine scouring powder.

Will you please tell me the proper way to season a beef roast? I find that after the meat is done, so much of the salt has gone down to the bottom of the roaster that the gravy is too salty. The meat, on the other hand, is almost without salt.

Rubbing salt on the top and sides of a beef roast before you put it in the oven is the best and most practical way to salt it. Use about a teaspoon of salt to a pound of meat. Even though some of it cooks down into the bottom of the pan, the gravy made from the juices shouldn't be too salty.

Could you tell me the correct way to clean a strand of simulated pearls? M. L.

Wash your strand of pearls carefully with mild soap and water. Don't let them stand in the water, though. If the thread on which the pearls are strung is dirty, it would be a good idea to have them restrung as this indicates the strand has received considerable wear and may break at any time.

I have a new printed cotton dress which I am afraid is not color fast. Will salt be helpful in setting the color? M. R. N.

Contrary to the idea once held by many people, salt has no value in setting colors. There is, in fact, no method that can be counted on to set "fugitive" colors. You can, however, take precautions in laundering. Do not let the dress soak and, of course, do not wash it with other articles. Use cool suds and wash and rinse as rapidly as possible. Have the final rinse water practically cold. Place a turkish towel inside the garment and roll in another turkish towel. Unroll at once and hang in the shade or indoors to dry. Let the garment become almost dry before attempting to iron.

Is there any way that draperies and rugs can be fireproofed at home? All the members of my family smoke and I feel that such a precaution would be wise.

I. M. L.

Here is a formula for a fireproofing solution that is guaranteed to be noncorrosive, noncaustic and nonpoisonous: Dissolve 7 ounces of borax and 3 ounces of boric acid in 2 quarts of hot water. Dip dry articles in the solution until thoroughly wet. Wring out and dry. Or spray the solution on rugs, draperies and the like with a garden spray until they are thoroughly wet. If the fabric is water-resistant, add enough soap to the solution to make suds. Articles must be retreated after each washing. The treatment does not make them 100 per cent fireproof, but they are made fire-resistant and char instead of blazing.

Job Agencies Often Racket In England

By Barbara Wace

LONDON—Domestic help from liberated and neutral Europe, hailed as a boon to the harried British housewife, is proving a mixed blessing—on both sides.

When the Ministry of Labor announced that foreign girls could come to Britain to work as domestic servants, provided their future employers obtained a permit for them, middle-class, servantless British women thought their troubles were ended. And hundreds of girls from Europe saw in domestic service the only way to learn English and to travel after the long war years.

But unscrupulous domestic agencies, cashing in on the maid shortage, have reaped huge profits for themselves and often given little satisfaction to their clients, a Ministry of Labor spokesman said.

"It's something we can't help," said the spokesman. "The same thing happened before the war with girls from Germany. They wanted to come to England—or in that case Hitler wanted them to come—and they signed up to cook and scrub when they'd no idea how to do either. Some domestic agencies, seeing quick profits, piled up a good thing for themselves by taking fees from housewives for girls who couldn't boil a kettle of water or fry an egg.

Girls Not Happy

"Then it's often hard luck on the girls, too," he added. "Housewives in the depths of the country are often the ones who need the domestic help the most. Agencies fail to tell the girl of the loneliness and lack of modern conveniences to be expected in many of these jobs.

Nice girls from Scandinavia, Holland, Belgium or Switzerland come over from cities, and find nobody to speak to them in their own languages, and not even a movie. You can't blame them if they want to change their jobs and come to London where they know they'll find theaters, cinemas and clubs and can meet girls from home."

Duped for Fare

Often, however, housewives have paid the girls' fares to England. If they want to change after a month, they naturally feel cheated. But nothing, legally, can be done about it.

Here domestic agencies are said to have inaugurated a new racket. They get a housewife to pay a girl's fare. After a month they write to the girl, and promise her a better, softer job if she'll change.

Homesick, lonely, the girl is often lured to a new, allegedly "kinder" mistress. Meantime the agency pockets another "journey fare" paid willingly by the new, equally overworked British housewife. And so it goes on, sometimes through three or four changes, the girl innocent of any knowledge of the profit the agency is making out of her.

Six-Foot Girl in Season, Says Starlet Who Is One

By Betty Clarke

IF YOU'RE tall, summer is your magic season, says Dorothy Ford, Hollywood starlet. Dorothy ought to know—barefooted, she hits the measuring rod at 6 feet. She says:

"Tall girls can look dreamy in bathing suits. There is so much more of them to get a sunbronzed look and their long legged beauty can lend enchantment to the beach parade. Furthermore, they usually have better figures and don't have to worry about dieting. Potatoes and pastries have more room for distribution on big girls than little girls."

But, admonishes Dorothy, the tall girl must look proud of her height to look attractive. She shouldn't slink, stoop or slouch just because she towers over her sisters.

Maintain Poise

IN ANY season, Dorothy doesn't mind being tall. That's why she can't understand any girl being self-conscious about her height. But lots of them are.

No matter what the problem as a result of being tall, it can be solved, she says. The girl who is awkward can study ballet as Dorothy did to help develop grace. The right clothes will also prove a big help, says Dorothy, who offers this advice to tall girls:

Two colors are better than one—will help to cut your height. (Plain black will make you look taller.)

Bright belts are a boost and break up the straight elongating line.

Long dresses will make tall girls look taller, so skip the long-dress fashions if they make you look like a bean pole.

Accessories should be dramatic. Tiny or little pillbox type of hats look ridiculous on the tall girl. Big dramatic shoulder-strap bags, jewelry will complement her best. CONTRARY to popular opinion, high heels are the most flattering for big girls, she has found. She thinks this is because most tall girls have big feet and when they wear the low-heeled types it makes their feet look enormous.

In the beauty department, wear the hair down. An up-sweep will not only make you look taller, but a down-hairdo will give more softness to the face and big girls who are big-featured can use this softening effect.

Dates are no problem to Dorothy, who is one of the most popular girls in Hollywood in spite of the fact that she is one of the tallest. There are plenty of men in the 6-feet bracket, though they may be a little shorter than she. But it's not so noticeable when you are both tall, says Dorothy.

Only once did Dorothy think that "he was going to be taller than she." That was when she played with tall Jimmy Stewart in "A Miracle Can Happen." Dorothy didn't mind that the miracle didn't; in her high heel shoes she was one-half inch taller than Mr. Stewart.

Household Aids

Not even one American homemaker in every 20 has a servant of any kind. Household equipment makes the difference between the home drudge and the woman who does her work easily and with leisure time left over. At least four hours a week can be saved by an ironer in the average family. A saving of several hours can be accomplished by the washer. The total gain from the two amounts to several weeks a year.

Beware Household Dust

Disease germs are so thick in household dust that health authorities warn against any cleaning method that stirs it up. Instead, use the vacuum cleaner, they urge.

Market Memo

FRESH corn made the list of local vegetable plentifuls for the first time this week. For the most part, the "roasting ears" now being sold here are of the Golden Bantam variety.

You'll also find a wealth of beets, green and lima beans, and cabbage on today's market. All the fixings for a crisp garden salad are abundant—lettuce, cucumbers, onions, tomatoes, and celery. Practically all the tomatoes are shipped in, but a few rather pale-looking local ones are beginning to appear.

The meat news is slightly improved, but it isn't too good at that. Beef and veal have dropped a few cents in price, but pork and lamb are at about the same levels. A good buy in the poultry line right now is Long Island ducklings. It's recommended for summer use in delicious duck salad or as a cold, sliced meat.

Watermelons from Florida, Georgia, and South Carolina are rolling in—both the solid green and striped varieties. Lots of antaloupes and oranges are available, too, as well as Green Gage, Santa Rosa, and little red "sugar" plums.

Farm Families Search Debris After Storm

Grand Forks, N. Dak., July 4 (AP). A score or more farm families in the upper Red River Valley of North Dakota and Minnesota spent the Fourth of July picking over debris left by a tornado that took 11 lives and injured an estimated 30 others.

The tornado last night struck an area estimated at 80 miles long, running from Windy Gates, Manitoba, about 100 miles north of Grand Forks, to Oslo, Minn., 20 miles northeast of Grand Forks.

One victim, a man named Mikolasik, whose first name could not be learned, was killed at Windy Gates.

Seven of the victims were killed when the twister leveled a two-story house in a grove of cottonwood trees near Auburn N. Dak. They were among 21 Mexican transient sugar beet workers from San Antonio, Tex., living in the house. The other 14 were seriously injured, with doctors at the Grafton, N. Dak., hospital saying they were "not out of danger."

Mr. and Mrs. Martin C. Anderson were killed when a twister leveled their Oslo, Minn., farm home before apparently blowing itself out in that area. The other victim was Frank Rogalla, killed just a few minutes after he entered his Warsaw, N. Dak., farm home.

Watch Water Rise

Grand Tower, Ill., July 4 (AP).—Their battle against the relentless Mississippi lost, the people of this river town anxiously watched muddy water inching higher into their business district and most of their homes today as the river's crest approached.

A sandbag barrier feverishly erected by the town's 1000 residents after several days of back-breaking labor, in which even women and children took part, was smashed last night and the river spread over about two-thirds of the town, including all of the business district.

The break came so suddenly that the weary townspeople had no opportunity to repair it. The two big pumps which had been used to dispose of seepage water were washed away.

There was no danger of the town's residents being trapped by the waters which earlier had encircled the community. If necessary, they could flee to high bluffs back of the town.

The U. S. Coast Guard arranged to bring in food by boat for the duration of the emergency, and the Red Cross said it was prepared to start mass feeding if necessary. Elsewhere all remaining levees were reported by the Army engineers to be holding.

Approximately 1000 soldiers from Scott Field and Fort Sheridan, Ill., continued sandbagging and strengthening the more important barriers across the river in Perry County, Mo., and south of here on the Illinois side.

'White Paper' Tells Misery Of Japanese

TOKYO, July 4 (AP).—The Japanese government issued an economic "white paper" today replete with figures to show that the people have not fully realized yet the "profound misery our military leaders brought upon us.

Issued to all Diet committees, the white paper portrayed a nation slipping steadily closer to the brink of chaos.

It made these points:

The government is operating at a deficit. (Some observers, including the Allied headquarters' banking chief, assert, however, the government is deliberately attempting to debase its own currency and to increase inflation.)

Industrial crisis is approaching, with stockpiles lower, repairs and replacements not obtainable.

The national debt to foreign countries is increasing. (Japan already owes the United States an estimated $300,000,000.)

National health is deteriorating; cost of living is outsprinting wage boosts, staple food production is falling off; industrial loans are being used to pay increased wages and production costs rather than to finance additional production.

Population is 12 per cent greater than 12 years ago and labor is one-third less productive than in prewar years.

Davies 'Out of Danger'

Hamilton, Bermuda, July 4 (U.P.).—The condition of Joseph B. Davies, seriously ill with an intestinal disorder, has improved considerably and he is now considered out of danger, his personal physicians announced today.

Wife of 'Death Dive' Pilot

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

MRS. INEZ SEIGLE, estranged wife of Torris V. Seigle, pilot, who crashed in a thickly populated section of Miami, Fla., told police "Torris wasn't trying to kill himself." She said they were nearing recconciliation and she believed he intended to "buzz" the store where she was employed. Police are investigating the theory that the pilot was trying to crash the house where his wife lives in a "suicide dive"

Searchers Find No Trace of Burned Ship

San Francisco, July 4 (AP).—A Marine mystery, as thick as an offshore fog, today surrounded reports of a ship burning and sinking off the northern California coast.

The Coast Guard, after almost 24 hours of air and surface search between Point Reyes and Point Arena, admitted bafflement.

Shortly after 4 p. m. yesterday Forest Ranger Earl Holle, at the Oak Ridge lookout station north of Fort Ross, Sonoma County, reported to the Coast Guard that a ship had burned and sunk at sea about 10 miles off the coast.

Holle's report, based on what he saw with glasses from the lookout station 2600 feet up in the coastal hills, stated that the ship was afire amidships. After burning for about 10 minutes, it began to settle, and in about 20 minutes went under.

The vessel, Holle reported, appeared to be a tanker.

Search planes were dispatched immediately from the Coast Guard base in San Francisco and the Army Search and Rescue Squadron, Hamilton Field.

Nothing at all was sighted out of the way. A heavy sea was running, however.

The Coast Guard sent out motor launches and reported negative results—no debris, no evidence of a disaster, and no survivors.

Indonesians Ask U. S. Aid In Dispute

Jogjakarta, Java, July 4 (AP).—Indonesian Premier Amir Sjarifoeddin asked the United States in a Fourth of July message today to remember her "revolutionary tradition" and help the Indonesian Republic attain an "independence day free from fear."

The Indonesian government leader's message, addressed to both the people and the Government of the United States, also urged America to "continue to exert her influence to safeguard the peace as we strive through peaceful course of negotiations to reach agreements with The Netherlands."

Sjarifoeddin became premier only yesterday after his predecessor, Sutan Sjahrir was forced out in a dispute over concessions granted the Dutch in negotiations for setting up an interim government to rule Indonesia until the United States of Indonesia becomes independent in 1949.

His new cabinet was busy today, framing a reply to new Dutch requests for clarification of the republican viewpoint on unsettled issues and to a United States memorandum sent June 28 pressing for a peaceful settlement.

(A commentator in the Russian newspaper Moscow Bolshevik today described the June 28 note as "interference in Indonesian affairs" and said it was a "valuable present to Dutch imperialists.")

At the same time, Sjarifoeddin ordered the republic's police to track down and arrest an estimated 600 to 700 Japanese who have been hiding out in republican territory since the Japanese capitulation. He said captured Japanese would be turned over to General MacArthur.

Senate Passes Export-Import Extension Bill

The Senate passed yesterday by a voice vote legislation extending export and import controls over scarce commodities through June 30, 1948.

The measure now goes to conference with the House, which had passed a similar bill.

Before acting finally, the Senate:

1. Adopted by voice vote an amendment by Senator Reed (R., Kans.) to extend authority for Office of Defense Transportation allocations of freight cars until January 1.

1. Wrote in an amendment by Senator Hawkes (R., N. J.) to continue controls over quinine and related products. It was approved by a standing vote.

3. Adopted a compromise on fiber and cordage worked out by Senators Cooper (R., Ky.) and Saltonstall (R., Mass.) under which fiber stocks on hand July 16 would be earmarked for binder twine needed in harvesting crops.

4. Rejected an amendment by Senator Elmer Thomas (D., Okla.) to require that export licenses be granted to anyone, whether they are traditional exporters or not. At present, the Commerce Department gives preference to established exporters.

5. Turned down a proposal by Senator Butler (R., Nebr.) to require that export sales of grain and its products be handled by private firms, not the Government. It lost on a standing vote.

Chest Needs Put Above Ties to States

Greater Washington's "special problem" to Community Chest fund drives—a population with "home interests" in other States—is just so much false reasoning which must be overcome by Chest workers.

Edward J. Keyes, newly seated executive director of the area federation, stressed the point in a broadcast for volunteer workers for the coming fall campaign. He spoke over Radio Station WINX, his first introduction to the area he officially began to serve July 1.

"The common denominator of this National Capital area to every citizen while resident here," he argued, "is concern for basic human needs of their neighbors."

The new director stated that area residents, "when adequately informed," will want to see that their own National Capital has "welfare services that should be a model to the Nation."

Terming local welfare problems the respsonsibility of local residents regardless of their home-town ties, Keyes declared:

"In the last anlaysis, only the human welfare problems we are responsible for financing are really important in this business we call the Community Chest."

Joining Keyes on the 25-minute radio program were Daniel W. Bell, president of the American Security & Trust Co., and for the past year president of the Community Chest Federation, and Edward H. Foley, jr., Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, who last week accepted chairmanship of the federation's fall campaign.

300 Autoists Must Get New Insurance

About 300 District motorists whose financial responsibility is backed by the Keystone Mutual Casualty Co. of Pittsburgh must get new backing under orders announced late yesterday by Traffic Director George E. Kenelpp.

Under the Motor Vehicle Financial Responsibility Act of May 3, 1935, certain persons must post guarantees of financial responsibility to obtain a District driver's license.

New guarantees must be presented within 72 hours by those affected, he said, or they must return to the traffic director's office their driver's permit, registration certificate and license plates. Notices to this effect will be sent out in a day or two.

Violators of the 72-hour requirement are liable to a maximum fine of $100 per day, he pointed out.

Under the act District residents who have been convicted by a court as a result of a traffic mishap, must post a guarantee of financial responsibility. To meet this requirement drivers may get a certificate from an authorized insurance company, give bond up to $11,000, or put up cash.

Schwellenbach Enters Hospital

By The Associated Press

Secretary of Labor Lewis B. Schwellenbach is in the Naval Hospital at Bethesda for treatment of a slight illness, his office said yesterday.

Labor Department officials said he went to the hospital this week after suffering a series of colds and an infected tooth.

They said his condition is not serious but he is undergoing a thorough physical examination. He is expected to be back at his desk next week.

6 Hurt by Explosion Of Fireworks Stand

St. Louis, Mo., July 3 (U.P.)—Hundreds of persons were thrown into panic tonight when a fireworks stand exploded in Wellston, a St. Louis suburb. Six persons were injured.

The explosion damaged awnings and windows two blocks away. The injured were among a large crowd of people clustered around the stand, buying fireworks. None was in serious condition.

In Senate Hearing

Alcohol Need Cause Of Clash

The medical expert, Dr. E. Y. Williams, chief of the neuropsychiatric service of Freedmen's Hospital, labeled alcohol a "necessity" in testimony before a Senate District subcommittee studying proposed establishment of an alcoholic clinic.

Senator Olin D. Johnston (D., S. C.), a trifle miffed, shot back:

"I don't think it's a bit necessary. I never touched a drop in my life and I never felt better."

The legislator was soon placated, however, when the physician explained that strong individuals do not require liquid bracers while many weak ones do. For many, he said, drinking is the only thing that keeps them going from day to day in America's "fast-paced" life.

Generally favorable to the House-approved Hebert Bill, Dr. Williams recommended that it be modified to provide for emphasis on rehabilitation rather than treatment.

U. N. Prepares List of Europe Finance Needs

By Peter Khiss

Lake Success, L. I., July 3.—The United Nations is drawing up a scoreboard of the financial needs and resources of war-ravaged Europe and other devastated areas, which demonstrates the growing economic desperation behind the willingness of Britain and France to push forward on the Marshall plan—even without Russia.

The new U. N. report, it was learned today, shows the European nations nearing "the brink of an economic breakdown," with their relief, reconstruction and other needs far surpassing the foreign exchange resources at their command.

The U. N. secretariat, under orders of the Economic and Social Council, has been collecting and reviewing reports from various nations, and has received data from France and Austria, in particular, showing them extremely low on dollar exchange, and confronting huge deficits.

3 Accusers Of Rep. Jones To Be Called

The Senate Interstate Commerce Committee yesterday voted to subpena three persons who signed affidavits that Representative Robert F. Jones (R., Ohio) was once a member of the Black Legion, an anti-Semitic, anti-Catholic organization, which was an off-shoot of the Ku Klux Klan.

The committee is considering the nomination of Jones as a member of the Federal Communications Commission.

Jones has categorically denied membership in either the Black Legion or the Ku Klux Klan and has pointed to his successful activities against the Black Legion when he was county prosecutor.

A subcommittee will meet Monday to hear the three persons whose affidavits were submitted. They are Virgil Effinger, whose brother was prosecuted by Jones, Glenn E. Webb and Frank Barber.

Halleck Asks U. S. Position On Wool Tariff

Secretary of State Marshall was asked yesterday to inform Congress if the United States "intends to propose or agree to" a reduction in the American tariff on wool at the International Trade Conference at Geneva.

The request was voiced by House Majority Leader Charles Halleck (R., Ind.) in a letter to the Secretary.

Halleck also asked the Secretary to furnish an estimate of how much the wool subsidy plan will cost the American taxpayer annually under present tariff plans.

Halleck's letter, which he made public yesterday, was another round in the White House-congressional battle over wool tariffs and subsidies.

Dentist Allows Patients To Switch Off Drill

New York, July 3.—A patient of Dr. Chester J. Henschel, a dentist, announces that for nervous patients—and who aren't?—he has provided a way for the patient to control the drill. Dr. Henschel bought a 25-cent electric switch of the push variety, a length of cord, and wired the switch into the control box of his drill.

The patient holds the switch and if the going gets too rough, he can turn off the drill. Dr. Henschel can't turn it on again, either, till the patient pushes his switch. "You'd be amazed how few patients push it, once they know they can," says Dr. Henschel.

MacArthur Reviews 15,000 Allied Troops

Tokyo (Friday), July 4 (U.P.)—Gen. Douglas MacArthur today reviewed 15,000 Allied troops from a red, white and blue Fourth of July reviewing stand erected in the Imperial Palace plaza where the Japanese once boasted he would be executed.

It was the first time that MacArthur has reviewed his troops in Japan and it was Tokyo's largest postwar exhibition of Allied air and ground equipment and personnel.

AN EXTRAORDINARY small estate, located for year-round living, 7 miles from historic and colorful Annapolis, 40 minutes commuting from the Nation's Capital. Nicely secluded setting 2 miles off Defense highway on South River—a salt water tributary of Chesapeake Bay. On 3 acres of land, this luxurious home setting boasts a 900-ft. waterfront with a fine dock and boathouse having dressing rooms, bar, sun deck, etc. Fully equipped. The plan of the house is ideal, all built around the vast 36-ft. living room which opens directly to all other rooms. On the first floor there is also the dining room, bar, pantry and kitchen, a master suite of 2 bedroom, 2 dressing rooms and bath, another suite of 2 bedrooms and bath and a front guestroom and bath. A 110-ft. screened porch overlooks the river. On the second floor there is a 36-ft. recreation room and 2 suites, each with 2 rooms and bath. 14 large closets provide unusual storage space for all purposes. 3-car garage has two rooms and bath above. New, small greenhouse permits early start of annuals. For a family seeking delightful surroundings—with emphasis on seclusion and boating from yacht to canoe—"WOODHAVEN" will offer an irresistible appeal. Privacy, yet not isolation—a setting for pleasant living and gracious entertaining. Offered at less than two-thirds of cost of building with financing—a real value. Come out and see for yourself. Owner, W. WADSWORTH WOOD, now at 82 West Washington st., Chicago, Ill., will be there over 4th of July weekend. Take Defense highway, Route 50, toward Annapolis, turn south (right) 2 miles at Palmer's Garage road.

INVEST IN A PERMANENT VACATION HOME AT

Drum Point Beach

Washington's newest and largest beach development offers 2,200 acres of playground, including approximately 6 miles of beautiful shore front with miles of clean, wide, white sand beach bordered by tall majestic hardwood trees.

Enjoy clean wholesome living all summer long—not far from the teeming summer steaming city are sands of opportunity beckoning you to own a piece of good living at DRUM POINT BEACH—an enchanting playground of 2,200 acres, including miles of white sand beach and 4 fresh-water lakes bordered by majestic hardwood trees. Here is your chance to own a home where you can retreat at the end of the business day—to relax and enjoy the restfulness of DRUM POINT BEACH.

The beauty of DRUM POINT BEACH has been preserved in the many secluded spots off the beaten path where one may place a cozy cottage and still have a wide outlook over the sparkling blue water of Chesapeake Bay.

Large beautiful wooded sites at pre-development prices, some with riparian rights, make DRUM POINT BEACH a sound permanent vacation investment. Every property owner has the privilege and use of approximately 6 miles of shore fronting on the salt water of Chesapeake Bay and the Patuxent River, plus the use of 4 silvery, spring-fed fresh-water lakes teeming with fish.

DRUM POINT BEACH has one of the finest all-year-round harbors in the Chesapeake Bay area where yachtsmen may leisurely indulge their hobby—sun bathers and swimmers have unbounded areas for sport—Izaak Walton fans are bid welcome by the fresh-water lakes teeming with fish.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Impending Resignation of Clayton Will Mark Complete Turnover in Top State Executives

By Drew Pearson

The White House isn't announcing it yet, but Will Clayton, Undersecretary of State for Economics, has told the President he wants to resign.

So far, Truman and General Marshall have persuaded Clayton to remain on until September, at which time his job as delegate to the Geneva Trade Conference will be concluded.

Clayton

Clayton's resignation will leave William Benton the oldest executive of the State Department in years of service, indicating how fast the turnover has been in probably the most important department of the entire Government. Benton has served less than two years, and because of congressional criticism leveled against his information and propaganda service, is one of the most controversial figures in Washington.

None of the State Department executives under Cordell Hull remains. In fact, with the exit of Spruille Braden last week and the pending exit of Will Clayton, there are few State Department executives left who served under Jimmy Byrnes. If a similar quick turnover of top men took place in the Army or Navy, it would be considered a national scandal. Yet the State Department is to days of peace what the Army and Navy are to times of war.

Clayton, the biggest cotton dealer in the world, came into the Roosevelt Administration as adviser to Henry Wallace in 1933; did not agree with Wallace and later broke with Roosevelt. He was a heavy contributor to the Liberty League which fought Roosevelt's reelection in 1936. But Mrs. Clayton announced that for every dollar her husband gave to defeat Roosevelt, she would give an equal amount to reelect him. Mrs. Clayton is one of those who now wants her husband to resign for reasons of health.

Regardless of politics and background, most people agree (including this sometimes critic) that Clayton has done a conscientious, skillful job in the State Department.

Truman's Ghost-Writer

Truman's personal lawyer, Clark Clifford, has been getting a rough ride from White House friends since a magazine article describing Clifford's ability to disappear with a "pencil stub" and come back in 20 minutes with a stem-winding speech ready to be delivered by the President.

Genial Gen. Harry Vaughan, Clifford's chief heckler, tells him he should at least try to live up to the magazine's glowing description.

"Your actions around here certainly belie what you told that magazine writer about yourself, Clark," chided Truman's military aide the other day. "You told us recently that it took you all day and all night to finish a speech, but this article says that you are a 20-minute man."

"From what I observe," continued Vaughan, "it's very difficult to get a speech out of you under any circumstances. But you really shouldn't contradict yourself in print, Clark. One of these days the President may want a speech draft produced in 20 minutes. Then where will you be?"

Power Lobby Revives

The power-trust lobby, which kept in the background during Roosevelt's day, is now busy as a pack of bird dogs all over Capitol Hill. It's not unusual for the power boys to have half a dozen bills scattered through several committees of Congress.

Recently two significant power-lobby bills popped up in the House Interstate Commerce Committee, introduced by Connecticut's Republican William J. Miller. If passed, the bills would hamstring the Federal Power Commission, restore to the power companies the same halcyon days they enjoyed under Coolidge-Hoover.

"The District Line" by Bill Gold is being suspended during Bill's vacation.

A small army of power-company vice presidents—from Montana to Georgia—trekked to Washington to testify in support of Miller's two bills. Obviously, it was no accident that a Congressman from Connecticut introduced these carefully written documents, with utility support immediately springing up from coast to coast.

His bill would:

1. Prevent the Federal Power Commission from regulating power companies which do not sell electricity outside a State.

2. Permit power companies to deliver electricity across State lines wholesale, without Federal control.

This issue was fought out during the latter part of the Hoover Administration and taken to the Supreme Court, which ruled that the Federal Power Commission did have control over all power generated from navigable streams. Congressman Miller, in effect, now seeks to set aside this Supreme Court ruling.

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

The Bridge Deck

By Florence Osborn

"Just look what couple number eight did on the replay of this hand," writes W. Dean Ferres, jr., of Ridgewood, N. J., the contributor. "The rest of us called for the tournament manager, but there is none in this little neighborhood club.

"The club 10 took the opening trick. The spade queen drove out the ace on trick two. In some manner not clearly recalled by the perpetrator, she picked up all the heart tricks. Total loot: four spades, five hearts, one diamond and two clubs."

When east won the queen of spades with the ace he probably returned a club to dummy's ace. Declarer next laid down the ace of hearts and continued the 10 which east covered with the queen (it did not matter if he ducked). Declarer won the queen with the king, successfully finesses dummy's spade 10 and ran three more spade tricks.

Then she took a heart finesse against east's nine, enabling her to run her heart suit. The diamond ace gave south her twelfth trick. She made three no trump with three overtricks, losing only the spade ace.

The first time she set four hearts by three tricks.

What Will You Say

I have not told you very much . . . Of what I think or do . . . And I am not too confident . . . Of what I mean to you . . . But this is just to let you know . . . My heart and soul agree . . . That you are sweet and charming and . . . You mean the world to me . . . I do not have the courage, dear . . . To say it to your face . . . But I can write it down all right . . . And never once erase . . . And I can even seal it up . . . And send it on its way . . . The while I hope and wonder what . . . You will decide to say . . . But, darling, if you turn me down . . . It will be quite a blow . . . And I shall be unhappier . . . Than you will ever know.

D. C. Rent Ceiling May Be Forced Up

Pressure of Water, Real Estate Taxes Affecting Senate

District rents may be forced upward soon—despite present rent ceilings—due to the pressure of new real estate and water taxes, it was learned yesterday.

Robert F. Cogswell, District rent-control administrator, is known to be studying the problem pending congressional action on District rent controls.

Under the model District rent-control law—which operates differently from the legislation for the rest of the Nation—Congress has liberal powers for granting increases in rent to landlords.

However, due to the pressure of increased taxes, Congress may act itself by permitting 15 per cent "voluntary" rent increases, as is allowed the rest of the country under the new national rent law of July 1.

The present D. C. rent-control act expires at the end of this year. A bill extending the present law for three months—to March 31, 1948—has passed the House, and is now before the Senate District Committee.

The national rent-control laws were considerably eased after the wartime emergency law expired June 30. The new legislation permitted certain types of decontrols and generally extended rent ceilings to February 29, 1948.

The new national controls permitted a "voluntary" rent increase of 15 per cent when landlord and tenant mutually agreed to an 18-month lease, running from July 1, 1947, to December 31, 1948.

The Senate District Committee is now under pressure from some landlords to amend the local rent-control law so as to permit the "voluntary" 15 per cent increase.

These landlords point to:

1. The reassessment of residential real estate, effective July 1, which raises by 20 per cent the assessed value of homes.

2. An increase in the tax rate, on the same date, from $1.75 to $2 per $100 valuation.

3. Pending legislation to authorize a 25 per cent increase in the water rate.

Senator John Sherman Cooper (R., Ky.), a member of the District Committee, said yesterday that while he had not had an opportunity to study the local rent problem carefully, he believed his committee should be "consistent" and vote the 15 per cent rise into the District of Columbia rent bill. "Unless," he added, "there is some compelling reason against it."

If Congress takes no action on the 15 per cent "voluntary" rent increase the entire issue will be dropped in the lap of District Rent Administrator Cogswell, whose office has already handled 35,000 rent increase petitions since 1942.

One local landlord has already filed a formal plea for a 16 per cent rent hike, citing the new tax boost as part of his argument. The petitioner is S. D. Moses, owner of an 86-unit apartment house at 1314 Massachusetts ave. nw.

Meanwhile, in nearby Arlington County, the 109 tenants of Lyon Village, on Lee Highway, have been given 15 days in which to accept "voluntary" 15 per cent rent boosts.

Frank Lyon, who developed the apartments in 1940, said yesterday that his tenants were sent notifications of the new law permitting rent increases in return for 18-months leases. He gave them until July 15 to agree to the increased rents, or continue with the present rents without a new lease until ceilings are lifted, February 29.

The present rent range at Lyon Village, $60 to $72.50, has been in effect since January, 1941, according to Lyon.

Similar rental increase proposals have been made at Buckingham Community, N. Glebe rd., Arlington, 1800 tenants; Falkland Apartments, 16th st., Silver Spring, 484 tenants; Bradley Boulevard Apartments, Hillandale rd., Bethesda-Chevy Chase, 400 tenants.

Italy, U. S. Sign Accord

Rome, July 4 (AP).—Italy and the United States signed an agreement today by which Italy will be provided food and medicines under the United States 350-million-dollar foreign relief program.

United States Ambassador James C. Dunn, Italian Premier Alcide de Gasperi and Foreign Minister Carl Sforza signed the documents in the Palazzo Chigi.

De Gasperi said it was an especially "happy coincidence" that the accord was signed on American Independence Day." He expressed thanks to the U. S. Government, President Truman and the entire American people.

Russian Plan To Aid Europe Is Possibility

Moscow, July 4 (AP).—Informed persons said today Russia, with one of her best harvests in years in prospect and industry building toward an impressive production rate, was in a position to offer economic aid of her own to European countries as a counterattraction to the Marshall proposal.

These informants suggested there was reason to believe that aid in one form or another might be offered or made available by Russia.

It might be recalled that Prime Minister Stalin told British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin at the Moscow conference that the USSR was not as bad as some persons believed. He suggested that the Soviet Union might be able to sell Britain some grain. This is why James Wilson, secretary of the British Overseas Trade Agency, hurried to Moscow.

With the breakdown of the three-power talks in Paris on the American aid plan, and the decision of France and Britain to go along with the U. S. on their own, informed foreign sources in the Soviet capital said they believed Wilson's chance of making a grain deal had dwindled.

Society of Cincinnati Votes in Churchill

Hartford, Conn., July 4 (AP).—Winston Churchill, wartime Prime Minister of Great Britain, was elected today as a member of the Connecticut Chapter, Society of the Cincinnati—an organization of descendants of officers in the American Army which fought England in the Revolutionary War. He was the first Englishman to be made a member of the society.

Churchill, who qualified as a great-great-grandson of Lieut. Reuben Murray of Guilford, said in a letter read at the annual meeting here that he would be happy to accept membership.

Senora Peron Wishes U. S. Envoy 'Happy 4th'

Rome, July 4 (AP).—Mrs. Juan D. Peron, the wife of Argentina's President who is now visiting in Italy, called today at the Villa Taverna, residence of United States Ambassador and Mrs. James C. Dunn and wished them a "happy Fourth of July."

Simon Ingberg, Standards Fire Safety Expert, Retires

Simon H. Ingberg, 70, has retired from his post as chief of the fire resistance section of the National Bureau of Standards, it was announced yesterday.

Ingberg

Ingberg is recognized as one of the Nation's leaders in experimental techniques in fire prevention. Through his investigations, it is possible to predict the conditions under which fires can be caused by cigarettes and matches, according to Dr. E. U. Condon, director of the bureau.

Ingberg's major scientific contributions are in fire severity research, and have proved to be important to fireproofing. Through his research, trial and error procedure was largely eliminated from selecting materials to be used in construction.

Ingberg was born in Norway in 1877. He is a graduate of the Universities of Minnesota and Illinois, and has been with the bureau since 1914. He holds a fellowship in the American Association for the Advancement of Science and is a member of the Philosophical Society of Washington, the American Society for Testing Materials, the National Fire Protection Association, the Building Officials Conference of America and the Federal Fire Council.

He lives at 7018 Hampden la., Bethesda, with his wife, four children and a grandchild.

Hearing in Weaver Murder on Monday

Preliminary hearing on charges of murder of her husband will be held for Mrs. Katherine Weaver, 39, Monday at 10 a. m. in Prince Georges County Police Court at Hyattsville, Md.

Mrs. Weaver yesterday was being held without bond in the county jail at Upper Marlboro for the hearing. Robert W. McCullough, her attorney, has announced that he intends seeking her freedom on bond through a writ of habeas corpus.

Mrs. Weaver is said by county police to have admitted firing five pistol shots into her husband, Joseph Weaver, 43, at their home, 3802 37th ave., Cottage City, Md., Wednesday night as the result of a quarrel over "another woman."

The couple had been married 22 years and have two children, Mary, 20, and Nancy, 8. Weaver operated a gasoline filling station at 3327 M st. nw.

Dr. James I. Boyd, county medical examiner, issued a certificate stating the cause of death was bullet wounds in the chest, head and abdomen.

Thinned Ranks of Yanks Fete Independence Day in Europe

Nowhere were the thinned ranks of the Yanks more noticeable than in Germany.

Today, at United States Army Headquarters in Frankfurt, the Army fell back within its barbed wire inclosure for a small decoration ceremony watched by a few hundred officers and their families.

In Bucharest, within the Soviet sphere, Col. Clarence N. Culp, chief of the United States Mission to Romania, told the Society of Friends of the United States that "a new declaration of independence, world-wide — independence from political ideologies — and more human rights, which the Founding Fathers referred to as 'inalienable rights,' are most needed today."

In London, United States Ambassador and Mrs. Lewis W. Douglas greeted more than 3000 guests at a garden party attended by Prime Minister Attlee and other cabinet members, as well as the "American colony."

In France the only American military uniforms to be seen were those of the Graves Registration Command, which sponsored modest observations at its various stations.

Warsaw newspapers published accounts of the signing of the American Declaration of Independence but in Moscow the press and radio did not make any mention of the anniversary.

"Make The Investment Fit The Time"

That isn't quite what Gilbert and Sullivan's Lord High Executioner declared, but it very decidedly states what should be the investor's "object all sublime."

Thorough and unremitting study of business conditions, of industrial and corporate prospects, is necessary to attain that objective. Our Investment Advisory Department carries on such studies to assist holders of securities in determining sound investment policies. We will be glad to discuss the work of the Department at any time.

Flashing Mirror Summons Doctor From His Plane

Carrollton, Ga., July 4 (U.P.).—Many times in medical history, doctor's wives have ridden through the snow or frantically telephoned for their husbands when a patient was seriously sick.

Mrs. J. W. Watts, wife of a Bowden, Ga., doctor, claimed a new method today. She brought her husband down from an airplane by reflecting the sun's rays in his face through a tiny pocket mirror.

Luanas Dukes, farmhand, had been bitten by a rattlesnake. About that time her husband, a plane enthusiast, flew over.

Mrs. Watts took out her pocket mirror and signaled to him in Morse code.

'Flying Saucer' With Fiery Appearance Is Reported Seen by Arlington Woman

Mrs. Ruth Cole, 3202 Valley Drive Park, Arlington, Va., called The Post to say she saw a "flying saucer" in the sky yesterday about 4:40 a.m.

She said she woke up, saw it only a few moments and then "went back to sleep."

She said it was about the size of the sun and did not seem to be moving. It appeared in the southwest sky, with the outline clearly defined and had a fiery appearance, she asserted.

Is It the Flapjack?

Chicago, July 4 (U.P.).—Sky watchers from coast to coast said today they had seen the "flying saucers" which have been careening through the skies since June 24, and a Los Angeles newspaper suggested the discs might be a new type Navy plane.

The "saucers" might be a plane resembling a legless crab with its antennae described in a recent issue of Science Magazine, the Los Angeles Daily News said.

The craft, known as the "Flying Flapjack," can travel at 400 to 425 miles per hour and looks for all the world like a saucer spinning across the heavens, the News quoted the magazine.

The News said the magazine recently carried a five-page article which warned people not to be surprised if they saw a new-type aircraft shooting through the air.

". . . Don't be amazed when one of these days you hear a whistling sound from the sky and see a blurred, circular object scaling across the heavens at a speed never before attained by man!" the magazine was quoted.

The article said the Navy had designated its experimental "Flapjack" as "XF5U1," a twin-engined craft with two propellers sticking out from the sides of the front, like insect antennae.

The plane reportedly has no tail, and the cockpit is sunk in the center of the gleaming "shell," the News said.

San Francisco, July 4 (U.P.).—A San Franciscan asked in a letter to the editor today what was the matter with America that it didn't know those mysterious flying saucers were space ships from another solar system.

He shuddered to think what would happen if the United States Army got tough about the reconnoitering discs.

Ole J. Sneide, San Francisco, said in a letter in "Safety Valve," the letters column of the San Francisco Chronicle, that those flying discs were "oblate spheroid space ships from the older planets."

"Usually they travel in outer space with speeds approximating that of light by use of antigravity devices and hyperspace. In our space they travel much slower, and, of course, become visible either by intent or by accident, for in their travels they use the invisibility screen," he said.

"This space navigation has been going on for millions of millions of years, these 'navo" having come into our galaxy originally from the greater Magellanic cloud via the lesser Magellanic cloud, 47 Tucanae, Omega and Alpha Centauri clusters.

"Their masters planted the original humanities here and which did not develop sui-generis . . . They have been absent from our planet since before the fall of the Roman Empire when the Great Master left Earth for the outer galaxy by fohatic teleportation.

"He is now back and what is going to be done depends upon mankind, but my advice is that physical man set up no belligerence, for a small concentration of those discs just beyond the range of our atmosphere could clean the surface of our planet completely in a matter of less than 24 hours.

"Their present local headquarters is on the unseen side of our moon. I discovered this by teleportation visits hither and yon in and beyond our galaxy.

"Mankind," he concluded, "will just have to learn their physics all over again, someday, if they live. Ah! If they live!"

Argentine Assassins Bungle Attempt on Life of Peron Foe

La Plata, Argentina, July 4 (AP).—Representative Cipriano Reyes, leader of a small dissident Laborite bloc in the Chamber of Deputies which broke with President Juan D. Peron several months ago, was a target of assassins today, but escaped with slight injuries.

Unidentified assailants fired at least 20 shots into his taxicab.

Witnesses said the shots came from another car which sped away.

The legislator was en route to a session of Congress in Buenos Aires from his home here. The Chamber of Deputies ordered an immediate investigation.

One of Reyes' brothers was shot to death two years ago as a result of a labor dispute.

Four hours after the shooting Reyes strode into the Chamber of Deputies in Buenos Aires and shouted triumphantly, "Long live liberty! Death to the assassins." He was given an ovation by his fellow legislators.
